"Ascension and the Journey Home" is a gift of insight that may aid you on your journey. It contains nothing that you don't already know, where deep inside you resides the truth, the light, the sacred witness of your life. A gift that was given to us from the inspiration of the source of all things. It may help you find light in the darkness and truth in the illusion of the past. It may help you find love and hope to replace fear and greed that is passing mankind.

Feel free to copy and share with others, however, we ask that this be duplicated in its entirety with no modifications so as not to confuse one by incomplete explanations so that the full understanding may be presented.

No commercial proceeds shall be made from this gift of spirit. It was given in love and truth and that is how it is to be passed on.

Printed copies may become available as donations permit.

PROLOGUE

Peering into the darkness requires courage when eyes from the shadow return your gaze. Those who live in the darkness, their eyes peering back from the shadow of years spent away from the light, tell us much about the countless others who remain hidden. Most of the eyes staring back are veiled with discouragement, but some are enraged at anyone who ventures into their darkness. These shadows of false perception border each life, each personal experience on the journey into the light.

When you stand in that light and turn back to look into the eyes within the shadows of illusion, you will want to meet their gaze, greet the soul behind them, direct their course with knowledge and wisdom, and aid them with understanding. You have spent each day of your life digging a well of refreshment, each day filling a shovel of knowledge, a shovel of wisdom, reaching for that understanding that comes with the inspiration and the flow of the spirit. This you did to quench your own thirst, but also to create a access to the source, a flow, from which to give other travelers refreshment on their pathway to discover truth.

Truth, hidden by doctrine and false philosophies that place religion and science at odds, is now being revealed. There is not a separate truth for religion and a separate truth for science. These are not separate truths. Truth is one. Long ago man thought the world was flat. Even after the discovery that it was round, many died still believing in the old view that it was flat. Look through the eyes of science in this day and age. How vastly different is scientific perception now from what it was a few years ago. Today's view is as monumentally different from the old one as looking at a flat world with a new understanding of earth's relationship to the rotation of galaxies. Science has shifted its understanding and is merging with truth. The discoveries of quantum physics indicate that what you are experiencing is a subjective reality. Quantum physics has uncovered the unifying formula, the equation that reveals the divine intent the moment before creation. Rather than being at odds with truth, science is now helping to lift the veil that has kept it hidden. It will not be long before all will know the truth.

This book is a journey into the light of truth beyond the illusion. Its intent is to aid you into the center of that light and evolve your human sense of perception. From within that light, You will have the opportunity to lead others from their darkness. Let that light be your well of refreshment. Offer the truth that heals the bitterness, the discouragement, and the confusion within the shadows. Offer an inspiration at your well.

WHAT IS OUT THERE?

What is written about the out-of-body and remote viewing experience, the near-death experience, and the recorded insights of the yogis and mystics leads to one provocative question. Once you are out of your body, what is out there?

This physical reality may appear as solid as the table, the chairs, the food we eat, but it is truly just a large quantity of stable light. What you find beyond this physical reality is the great and luminous dimension of spirit. Your separation from that spiritual dimension is but an illusion. All things are ultimately interconnected.

Look at it in reverse. If you come into the earth from out there, you descend from a much higher spiritual vibrational level to a lower physical one. As You do this, a progressive law of fragmentation takes over. You fragment things because you are at a lower vibration of consciousness and reality. It is your propensity for dividing and categorizing what you perceive that keeps you from experiencing the true intensity of consciousness, an experience of love, joy and the delight for life that is present for those on a higher, more spiritual level beyond this existence. At this lower vibrational level, you are just having an in-body experience, a dream.

The universe ultimately is not broken into parts. It is whole. The same is true of your consciousness. If a single point of the universe were totally unconscious, the whole universe would be totally unconscious. If you perceive a rock or a grain of wheat to be without consciousness and dead, your perception is again illusory, brought about by your sense of fragmentation. It is literally the wholeness and consciousness of all things that will lead you by deep meditation, an contemplation of remote viewing, astral projection, or a near-death experience into the ultimate reality of truth, that The Many have already found and documented in the science of the subjective reality.

Actually, Your consciousness is everywhere. There is no particular space/time continuum that Your consciousness doesn't exist in. It is the limits of the in-body experience which say that you cannot accomplish something. You make your limitations in conjunction with the reality you are experiencing collectively, and therefore you are bound by your agreement with the collective consciousness. If you want to see beyond this physical realm, remove the mental screen of your thoughts, become silent, become nowhere yet everywhere. You will find that beyond this place, there exists a realm more subtle than in nature.

The guidance of love and God are subtle in the physical reality. The eternal reality beyond this physical realm is always providing you with subtle influences in the form of a thought or an inspiration. You may consider the suggestion or reject it.

Subtle advice is constantly being given to you about the implications of your choices and decisions. When your consciousness begins to recognize this advice or inspiration through quiet meditation and reflection, the subtle influence from beyond this physical reality will guide and direct in a positive way. It is your sensitivity to the subtle guidance from beyond the physical reality which invites the influences of peace, love, joy, happiness and prosperity. Remember when you had an intuition, a gut feeling, but didn't follow it, and then regretted not listening to that feeling? The subtle influence was speaking to you. You learn from the subtle hands of love, peace, happiness and freewill. The subtle influence helps shape naturally, without struggle, when we are willing to go along with what's best for us, and the world, from a higher reference. This tool has been present in our life in all our incarnations. The awareness of this and our ability to allow ourselves to heed the subtle advice, instead of our own fear will keep us from perpetuating anger, greed, resentment and hatred. These emotions will dissipate once you've learned to transmute, those reactions into positive, through the guidance of the subtle influence. Negatives can no longer feed on themselves when you learn there is an endless source of love, happiness and prosperity that can keep unfolding for here an eternity.

The subtle influence is quiet. It is neither loud nor boisterous. It is not cruel. It is gentle in nature, kind and considerate. It is understanding and patient. It is that which opens the heart, which echoes the greatest truth and invites the greatest experience. As we respond to that influence, our consciousness is prepared to exist both here and "out there" at the same time. Our consciousness will literally pass through the veil of this physical reality to life eternal. You will take with you all of your life experiences, including the riches, joys as well as a deep understanding of the negative of each moment you lived.

As you begin to perceive this life with your eternal consciousness, you can start to see how pliable, how plastic, and how unformed the future is, yet it is marked in destiny. You can see how it can be influenced by a sense of perception that passes beyond the physical realm into the reality that is eternal. The eternal reality is so great and vast that conscious thought expands in an environment of sheer revelation. It is from that perspective ability that consciousness can begin to unfold and to truly mark and affect the reality about you. Then you can lead yourself and others from darkness and fear, anger and hatred into an individual, personal sense of light, love, joy, and prosperity, each a unique. It is when You have returned from the light that you can, help your brothers and sisters come out of the darkness into the light of reality, being in the world but not of the world, being something much greater, the eternal being that You are. From that perception, you can share the eternal with all, with compassion, love and understanding. There beloved ancient wisdom will be your voice, echoing the truth an guidance within.

When you begin the transformation of feeling and emulating love, you do not stop being yourself. You do not necessarily quit habits that society may disagree with, but the things You judge as not right for yourself will fall away from you. Eternal reality is full of joyful giving and receiving, each one giving from the heart and mind in an individual way. The uniqueness and the difference each of us expresses is the beauty, not the flaw of creation. Our individual wealth, here is what we find inside ourself, darkness reveals character. Living from that perception while you are inside the physical realm is the key that opens the door for you to pass through the veil as You truly are, knowing and appreciating your own weaknesses and strengths -- knowing you are eternal, but enjoying the moments of your childhood here in this reality.

When we open the door and consciously move into eternal reality, We will discover a world of infinite complexity and diversity as will simplicity, what works forever. There, life is reviewed in an instant. There, loved ones, light beings, angelic forms, saints are present in whatever form we can comfortably accept to guide, to help, to answer questions. Our new perception of the infinite nature of consciousness at that moment needs guidance, for there is not much difference between being born from the womb into this physical reality and being born from this physical reality into eternity. In this physical reality, we learn our perceptions are limited to what you can see, taste, feel and hear with our senses. In the eternal reality, you stand in a new light, gaining a new perception. There, the body is made whole, the physical body healed, appearing in whatever form you desire. There, the body's past incarnations are read through your own nerve fiber. There, WE can exist as a being of light, of energy, as the truest essence of ourself. In the eternal reality, food is not necessary, but if you desire it, it appears. There is flight, but no need to fly. There is air to breathe, but no need to breathe. To describe these things is to glimpse only one small image of another complex universe.

Let these words engrave that image on your heart. Let these words, written in the softness of love, colored with the passion of care, held in the hands of understanding, bring you comfort. Be not afraid. Be not afraid. For all is well. In eternity, there is no condemnation except that which you manifest from your own life experiences. There is no guilt except that which you feel yourself. In a moment, you can choose to truly be who You are, the eternal person, the eternal you, with eternity unfolding around you. You can take the time to weigh these things, to consider your coming and going, to pause where there is no time, where there is no space, to ponder this vastness and seek the knowledge and wisdom to make choices and decisions.

This is the miraculous Heaven that is spoken of in the Bible and religious traditions of every culture. It is a simple, clear, common understanding of the formula of creation. It is a logical progression from the Motive an Intent of the Creator -- "to love and be loved" -- the motive an intent, the moment before your experience began, in this place where light slows to energy and energy slows to matter, to understand. This is the expression, formed for you to experience life at the lowest level, without the liberties that exist in the spirit of Your true, eternal self. You coexist inside the animal's body. You coexist in a time that marks that passage of life in days, in weeks, in years, years that are marked with the price of birth and death, joy and sorrow. It is in this place that you dance in life, singing the songs that are part of your eternal being, a part that we do not see. Yet we can experience it even within that veil of human consciousness that sees only what is before it, what it can touch, taste and hear. Always present is that eternal portion, that which loves, which hopes, that which can give you comfort, in the deepest part of yourself.

Know that these words are meant to bring you comfort, to awaken in you a truth your heart already knows. You are the immortal child of God. Be strong and be brave. Life is a journey, a sojourn. You are the Traveler. You are not isolated by distance or time, for all are bound in one fabric that is present in each particle of every stone, leaf and tree. All are bound together with the fabric that forms the universe. All are bound within a fabric of divine intent common on all planes of existence. All are bound in love that comforts us when we struggle to find some magic blessing, some truth. All are bound in love when we peer through the darkness and see a glimmer of light.

Look for that light within your consciousness, beyond the pettiness of thoughts, beyond the limits of concept, to logical perfection. Listen and look, taste, feel and hear the truth with your heart. As we kneel at the alter before the door of eternal consciousness before you are engraved the words that quiet all yearning, heal all wounds -- "All Is Forgiven, Including Yourself". That is the truth beyond all else. That is what is "out there". It is the KEY. The great door with no lock, with no handle, opens with Your Will. You are welcome, as each is, into the great temple and tabernacle of eternity. Pains will be healed, your passions will be satisfied, your dreams will become reality. In the midst of eternity, you are loved as though you are the only one, and You love with the deepest appreciation of the preciousness of each other.

Step through the door in your meditations now. You can see mountains that never move or never change, or change at your command, trees that are created at your will. Anger can be transmuted into love. Evil becomes light. Power becomes humility.

You are on your way Home. In just a little bit of time, whether years, decades, a few weeks, or in the next moment, you are going home. On that journey home, you will pass by many places, one of them just beyond, where there are those waiting to guide you, to help you. There, WE, will all join hands in a noble procession back from life, individualized by our experience, unique in our sense of perception, a family of loving, happy children, going HOME.

Where Did You Come From?....Where Are You?....Where Are You

All existence is a beam of light. The source of that light is God's Divine Motive an Intent the moment before Creation: "to love and be loved". Out of that Intention, You were Born, You chose to come within a holographic, illusionary reality.

God created this hologram we call reality for you. You experience the projected images of the hologram in your daily life, while the film itself remains hidden from you. God's intent created this holographic physical reality for you.

Why?

Love needs reflection, a form to reflect back, cause creating effect. You are that effect, godlike in quality but with a separate sense of perception from God. As that godlike effect, you return God's love. The hologram was created as a place for us to learn our own ability to love and be loved. To understand love, we chose life experiences. The way we develop our ability to love and be loved becomes unique to us as we experience life within the illusion, the hologram. Then the reflection of light becomes a collection of unique individuals, reflecting into eternity. Through the limitations of the hologram, with the experiences of anger, frustration, joy, sorrow, sickness, health, and memory comes your own sense of perception. Like a unique snowflake created through the math of fractal geometry, you become individualized, a unique, Eternal entity, made different by your own sense of perception from the source of Your Being. The Divine Formula unfolds to give us our own sense of perception. All this was done so that you could return with, the profound explorational understanding, of darkness, of limitations to chose and effect, fear greed, Love and Hope.

While we have lived within the hologram, one quality has always been present. It is that one thing that prevails within you, the constant vibration from which all were created, the intent "to love and be loved", the basis of our motivation, the basis of the universe. Coming into this life differentiates you as you gather experiences which will mature you, bring you into your own eternal identity once again. This process is so individualized that you have actually chosen your own life experiences as difficult and as hard as that is to imagine.

The subjectivity of this holographic reality is supported by the findings of quantum physics. Would we continue to think the world is flat when it has been shown it is not? Quantum physics has shown that, on the subatomic level, reality is subjective to the viewer. How much of this subjectivity affects the reality we see with our eyes and feel with our hands as an individual? Remember, reality is also subjective on a mass consciousness level. We are linked together with all other consciousness within this reality, and we have agreed to certain rules and laws. We are free to break out of these rules to an extent, and there have been instances in history when groups were able to break out completely.

One of the great examples of this occurred in Paris, France, after the Abbe Francois de Paris died and was entombed in 1727. Because he held a high mystical position in a sect of the Catholic church known as the Jansenists. His love for people, they began visiting his tomb, where extraordinary things began to happen. These events occurred for over twenty years, attracting people from all over the world. Miraculous healings, such as the instantaneous shrinking of tumors, were witnessed. There were voluminous written accounts of what was observed, recorded by investigators hired by the government and the church. People went into trances. When hit with axes, their skin was not penetrated, showing that they had created a psychic-kinetic force about their bodies during the trance state which would protect them. Others had boulders dropped on them with such force that they should have been driven into the ground.

One example concerns a young woman. Standing against a wall, she asked to be hit in the stomach with a thirty pound sledge hammer. Although this was done one hundred times, the hammer never broke the skin or hurt her. Afterward, the investigator took the hammer and hit the wall she had been standing against. The bricks shattered and flew out of the hole the hammer made. The force with which the young woman was hit should literally have driven her through the wall, shattering the wall behind her. But it couldn't pass through the subjective space/time continuum she had created around her. At this time and in this place, physical laws were overturned by the consciousness of a group of individuals. All who came believed that reality was now different, or that they had discovered its true nature. They thought their world had changed forever.

These events were so profound and threatening to the government and to the traditional church, the king finally proclaimed that God would do no more miracles there, and the church proclaimed that devils were responsible for what was happening. Even though people literally believed the world had changed because of the events that had occurred there for over twenty years, when the government and church commanded that it be stopped, bringing to bear the authority they held over the collective consciousness, the miracles eventually ended, and the volummes of research on what happened in Paris, France were kept secret. You may find some conformational experiences in you own life's history.

The realization those people had is now as always reawakening in man's consciousness. The divine influence is returning to spark the evolution of mankind. The school of life is drawing to a close, as it has before in other cultures, for other races. When it does, do you know where you are going? If you are tired of war, hatred, disease and poverty, if you are offended by the corruption of government and religion, then you, as part of the collective consciousness of mankind, are approaching critical mass.

What does this mean? In the near future, a mass of people will agree on new rules for their subjective reality, a reality without war, hatred, disease, a reality without fear, a reality based in love. When this happens, it will not be the first time it has occurred on earth. It has happened before in a number of societies. It happened to the Mayans, to the Incas in Peru, to ancient tribes in Tibet and a host of lesser known civilizations. These were not primitive cultures. They were great civilizations with advanced technology and a diverse, complete understanding of scientific principles. They mapped the stars, yet they experienced corrupt forms of government and religion. At the point that enough individuals in these societies became profoundly dissatisfied and wanted things to be better, critical mass was struck, and a shift occurred in their subjective reality. The corrupt and uncomfortable conditions they experienced were the actual mechanism which led them into a true spiritual understanding, and brought about the change. When critical mass was struck, a portion of the society completely vanished. For them a new process began, the process of leaving this earth space/time continuum and moving to another plane, another level of experience.

Where did they go? Where are we going? Consider this. When is the ideal time for a harvest? When the greatest number of fields have been planted, and the fields are ripe. The current size of earth's population will never be reached again. It is time for the first part of man's evolution to end. It is harvest time.

When will the harvest begin? At the point critical mass is struck, when enough of us say that this is just not right, it should be different, we don't want this anymore, we want it to be better. It takes negativity to bring about change. In the cultures that previously reached critical mass, the corrupt governments and religions literally forced the collective consciousness the view that things needed to be different. Earth's population as a whole is moving to that same point. When the critical mass of our society is suddenly struck, we will start the process of expanding back.

For many, the shift will be subtle. Sitting in your room, you may not notice anything. Then, the first effect will reach you. There will be an absolute end to pain, sickness, disease and fear. WE will be in the second plane of reality where those races before us have gone, and, like them, We will begin to understand Our True identity. We will have eternity to assimilate your past lives which will come to you clear and defined, the memories of our childhood. The resistances on the human mind to the lower percent (3%-5%) will fall off. The physical laws We knew here will be subjective to our consciousness. Vast amounts of wisdom and knowledge will be accessible, so that Understanding what is happening, We are guided by those from the higher levels, by counsel from each other, by Your own experimentation, You will come to a point where you will venture on to the next level, always in the process of entering into Our True, Eternal Identity.

As We expanding, sensing universes and galaxies as though they were your own body. Even on this level of experience, viewing your human hand on the subatomic level, you would see galaxies of stars separated by great, vast spaces. This subatomic universe is the same as when as you look up at the stars at night and see galaxies on the macrocosmic level. The universe of galaxies is present in both the night sky and your hand. Remember, in a hologram, one small piece of the hologram itself contains all the information of the entire hologram. One can break the hologram of a rose into a thousand pieces, and each will contain the entire rose from a unique perspective. A palm leaf moving in the breeze on the island of Tahiti is as instantly accessible to you and as clear and precise as what you see when you look at the rose you hold in your hand.

You are not separated from the Whole, or from the knowledge of the Whole. You are connected with the Whole. Your little finger is connected with the quality of the star. If one piece of the hologram contains the whole, then you contain the Whole. What has happened and what will happen because of this connection, is astounding. This is the heart and essence of remote viewing.

Within our Eternal Consciousness, You will be able to experience this Wholeness. It is the way things really are. As we push back the envelope of our awareness, whether you go on vision quests, meditate or pray at an altar, you are letting the truth come through, a gentle contemplation, that this physical reality is a hologram, an illusion. This reality is not eternal, in the physical sense, but it is purposeful. It dose allows us to become different from each other, so that when You stand in Eternity, You sure will have your own sense of Being. You will express love with a different sense of perception than the Source that gave birth. You will have a unique personality and character, so that you can turn back to God with love, not as a mirror reflection, but as an individual reflection.

Note that as critical mass approaches and the influences which encourage transformation once again aline, the illusions of this subjective reality are becoming more fragile. Mankind faces choices and decisions on a Huge scale, but you can actually help turn the tides for self and All. When you reach out with the truth, know that those few you touch will touch others and that a catalyst of change can occur because of it. Events and circumstances will confirm every step you take. Reassured and confirmed, WE will prosper and We are Blessed.

As your consciousness changes and the fragments of your personality are drawn into a whole, you will perceive the truth of reality and the truth of yourself as an eternal being, participating in a shared illusion. This perception then becomes the true center of your reality as our level of consciousness evolves beyond what is called the critical mass level. Because of this, you tremendously affect critical mass being struck. Your perception of truth prepares the consciousness of others to receive the truth, because you are perceiving reality beyond the illusion and are solidly established in a higher perception of your own identity. The farther you go in perceiving the truth while still within the hologram, the greater the effect the waves of your consciousness will have on others.

Mankind has used its life energy to wage war. When critical mass is struck, many will leave this plane and journey on the pathway home. We all will make it, from First to Last, in our own time and in our own way. Eternity has room for all. Through our differences, we find a kinsmanship in our ability to be ourselves. Real enlightenment is knowing you are part of the Whole. The eternal you, the future you, the you that exists beyond this lifetime and beyond all the lifetimes you have lived, is with you here. When you move your mind into that eternal sense of perception and start acclimating to it, let the visions an dreams come, let the truth come to you, let the understanding unfold and unravel like a fine, straight line, with the line of reason, What lives for ever. It will lead you Home..

Critical Mass and the Evolution of Man

Critical mass is not the end of the human species on this planet. It is a period when the evolution of a portion of mankind occurs, when human consciousness goes to the edge of the illusion, like the edge of a cliff, and jumps off. Critical mass concerns only a portion of mankind, because it will depend upon each individual's personal, conscious awareness and ability to accept the truth.

Consider a little, wild rabbit. That rabbit's entire world is a small brushy patch where it nibbles, grazes, jumps, plays, eats and drinks from the stream. That is the rabbit's world. What if the little rabbit is not actually a rabbit, but just thinks it is?

There is a storm called the Mysterium Tremendum, it is that most confrontational Storm the world of that rabbit has never known, its force reaches all levels of reality, personal, psychical, cellular, subatomic, planetary, galactic, spiritual, the very fabric of space and time. How will you get that rabbit to shift out of that delusion without scaring it to death, without traumatizing it, without harming it? How are you going to awaken that rabbit from its dream? God's way of dealing with rabbits is to get the rabbit to move from that place of his own free will, to simply shift within consciousness from one plane to another. At critical mass, the rabbit simply shifts from this reality to another one -- a parallel dimension, a parallel universe, parallel time. The rules will be vastly different. The rabbit will know it's in a different place. This place will be full of sweet grass. This place will be full of streams that don't run dry. The rabbit is the animal with a thousand enemies, living life always afraid, his ears always listening for the sounds of danger, yet a humble, soft creature inside. In this new place, the rabbit will have no need of fear.

At critical mass, the rabbit moves in a natural way to a sweeter pasture, into an awareness of the truth about who he is. He has moved beyond the edge of the cliff within his consciousness. The rabbit is now in the middle of a field with a peaceful atmosphere, there is more energy, there are no enemies and no starvation. The animal has no more fear, He has ascended. The rabbit is present in the same form he had before, but without the same rules and regulations. If the rabbit wants to fly, the rules of gravity won't stop him. Nor will the rules of gravity allow him to be harmed by falling. So that rabbit can jump up and fly in the air, fly and land softly on the ground. He and the other rabbits can explore this new reality, this new dimension. They can bring their consciousness into it and adjust to it. Back in the old brushy patch, those that didn't jump off the edge and ascend will go to the edge themselves and try to understand what happened to their friends. Did they jump off? Where did they go? What happened?

A massive flux of energy will occur as the earth, our solar system and our galaxy swing back to a certain degree of alignment, the storm of none local light. When this position is reached, we will be aligned with a intent behind the creation, with a strong influence of the purpose behind the creation of physical reality: "to love and be loved by the Creator". When this wave hits, the children of eternity who are to go, will be swept away. So large a number of people will be involved, that it will have a staggering effect on the world. It will not be an isolated 30,000 people, but 1/3 to 1/5 of the population that will instantly be gone. For those who remain, the illusion will be shattered. The face of God will be revealed, and "all will know that God is God". A profound part of that realization for many will be that it isn't just the religion, just the these, just those who are ascending. It is all those whose consciousness is connected with God to whatever level they can accept that divine energy, of truth, a rather personal choice of freewill. This news will spread through the world and will cause a mass movement of those remaining to rush to the edge. Some won't even pause, but will simply dive across because of loved ones. Some will dive across because they feel compelled to. People will vanish and people will record it. People will learn they are immortal, eternal beings. They will know there is a process through which they can go Home. All they have to do is step across the edge, go to the next level and start acclimating. The rules of the game, the illusion, the lies will be obvious. The make-believe will be over.

At some point after the mass ascension of mankind, the ascension process will be understood, including a scientific outline of what occurred and the steps needed to bring it about. Those left will be able to use this knowledge, insight and wisdom until they are ready to go. They will become aware, knowing when their time is coming to ascend, for the guidance will walk amidst.

There are things not said.

For the millennium on earth that follows, the mass of people who have not evolved will experience different conditions on earth. The events that take place will lift the veil that covers this reality. Man will know reality as it is. The conditions of earth and the vibratory influences that affect the earth will cause more rapid growth and more productivity. The fundamental scientific principles of energy levels will be understood. Economic standards will be changed. There will be abundance, education, easy movement, extended life spans, an guidance walking amidst. These conditions will exist for those who still want to enter into physical incarnations to deal with life on earth. This will be the New Heaven and the New Earth. Earth will be regenerated.

When you were a child in the school room, perhaps you took a No. 2 pencil and a Red Chief tablet and wrote numbers in it, believing it was going to take you into mathematics and be a part of your education. As you got older, you sat at a typewriter, punched a calculator or sat in front of a computer. Perceptions change. If you acclimate to one stage, there is a point in trying to go to the next. Metaphysics itself is not the answer. If you are dealing with emotional problems or you're off base with being in this reality, you're not really trying to handle more advanced concepts. Right now we are still in our childhood, incarnated on earth, in which the hidden agenda, of you life may will be left to the eternal spirit that needs to understand the physical experiences of pain and pleasure, joy and happiness, sorrow, misery, lust, adventure, depression, all the things necessary for a good rounded education. But the point is approaching when we will be prepared for the advanced concepts. We will know, God is God, You will know you are an eternal spirit. This concept will override fear and pain. Faith will be abolished, replaced by true knowledge. You won't believe anymore. You will know. You will know there is a God and you are his child.

What will it be like for you on the next level? You have already experienced it to some extent. Do you remember a dreams that was so real and so wonderful, you didn't want to wake up? The voice of preparation has whispered, in your life, in your dreams, aware or unaware, Remember when you dreamed you could fly? There is always a clear sensation of how you did it, how you were able to fly. Dream researchers have found that everyone uses the same technique in the lucid dream of flight, pushing themselves off with a downward motion of the body, our styles may differ. The dreamer can easily perfect this skill within the dream state. These dreams hint at something just beyond the subjective reality you are experiencing on this plane, a second level of existence, the place where we begin the acclimation process into your eternal identity. This is as applicable with remote viewing and other paranormal experiences.

Why would there be another level up from earth? The answer lies in how you came to be here. Consider that you began as an eternal being. We have been crushed down, literally condensed, into a smaller consciousness. We are condensed, but we are also an expanded consciousness, an eternal entities of God in the human body, in a physical animal's form. Your expansion back into your true identity may happen in an instant, might be but a matter of time, it will happen. It will occur in stages, which are really states of consciousness. These states of consciousness are the different levels of existence mentioned in many mystical and metaphysical studies. They are the levels of the evolution of the eternal being back from earth.

When you were condensed into your body and were born, you found yourself in an alien surrounding, the physical body. How will you expand back out? Reincarnation allows a progressive expansion so that you can move from one body to the next without expanding outward all the way. Between incarnations, as you expand, you may dwell momentarily, or for a long period of time, at the second level before coming into the physical body to complete your cycle of experience.

What is the purpose of your life experiences here? Why did you press yourself into a small human form, and separate yourself from the consciousness of self as an eternal being? Why have we painfully adjusted to an alien reality, to physical sensations, gravity, emotions, survival, life, death, instinct, and the genetics of the animal's body? Why have we learned to perceive, manipulate and work within this realm? The purpose, that hidden agenda is for you to have personal experiences which give you an individual sense of perception. You are on a temporal journey with eternal rewards. The journey through physical time and space marks you, makes you unique as you expand out from earth.

On the second level away from earth, you don't have physical pain or disease, unless you choose them, not a popular choice. The group consciousness no longer makes the solid rules of reality. Within this dimension, you can start the assimilation of all the lives you have lived, the lives you could have lived or would have lived, with what you are eternally. You become a unique, individual eternal being. Without this birthing process of the identity, all the children of God would have the same sense of perception. If all the same, "I love you," the tone, the sound, the vibration would be identical. To differentiate you from the others, you need experiences which give you an individual sense of perception. So you put on all these garments of beggar, thief, king, prince, murderer, lover, father, mother, and child. You are thrown into this life and go through your own personal, experiences to become unique. If you were to lose everything you experienced and learned here as you expand away from this consciousness back into your true identity, then life here would serve no purpose. The incarnation in life would serve no function at all if you can't retain it, assimilate it and let it define you as an eternal entity.

One school of thought says what you experienced in life will not matter. All the good and bad you did, all the heartaches and happiness will make no difference. It will just fade away, and you'll go back to being your higher self. But that isn't the purpose of life at all. The purpose is for you to assimilate the higher self into this new being, this unique and differentiated eternal being. What if you were a horrible, lousy person? It doesn't mean you want to assimilate an eternal, horrible person. What you would assimilate is a person who is much more courteous and considerate, with an understanding of the motivation of selfishness. A person who would have a conscious sense of understanding of justifications for and the conditions and situations that caused the selfishness, and maybe even a unique liking of it from time to time. All this would affect your eternal identity. In one sense, the more diverse experiences you have the better. They are your real reward for existence here.

At the second level, the conditions of existence are optimum. That being true, why do you come back into this physical reality? Because of its preciousness, because of its importance to you. It is important for you to be in the physical body to develop your own individual characteristics and personal sense of perception. These are the treasures you will take with you as you expand back outward.

Towards the end of your incarnations on the earth, prior to the last ones, you spend more time on the second level. Toward the end, you spend time acclimating, learning the truth and then expanding outward, perhaps checking out the third level a little bit more. There, if you want a square wave and a purple sun with green polka dots, you can have it. On the third and fourth levels, you can materialize what you want. Everyone can have a completely subjective reality. You might eventually delve into the fifth or sixth levels, where you can be a light body without physical form. Each level has its own rules. As you grow, explore and progress through these levels, we come to a door at the seventh level, the seventh mansion, Home.

The second level, though, is still a communal reality like earth, although the rules are not the same as the level we are on now. At the second level, we no longer have the confusion of isolation. There's a calmness and time for reflection, readjustment and guidance. Toward the end of all our incarnations, we start to expand back outward. Realizing the purpose of life and begin to interact with it for more than self, because the expanding outward takes in more than self. You truly begin to relate to others. You're preparing for the intimacy that is characteristic of the second level which cannot easily be achieved on earth. Before we begin the final expansion outward from earth, WE will come to understand the whole. This is difficult because of the complexity of reality of life on earth, human fear and the restraint of using only three to five percent of our cognitive consciousness. In helping others, it's not that you are earning your own evolution. It's just part of the evolutionary process as both recipient and giver, without judgement.

The school here is coming to a close as we have known it. Earth will exist for another thousand years, but it will be for those that have chosen to remain, and those that return from time to time, to walk in the Garden of Gaia's Love, that it will take some time for them to come to the second level. All God's children are eternal entities, and each will come around in their own time. WE can participate in this process by assimilating your physical incarnations while we are still here. You can participate by doing work for the whole, until that time when you move, like the little rabbit, to a sweeter pasture and begin your journey home..

Preparing For Ascension

We are the manifestation of God, finding the shades and colors of our own identity through physical incarnations, through the illusion of existence. As We expand back outward, coming into unity once again with the wholeness of the continuum. To be in this illusion of matter is to experience isolation for the purpose of developing an individual sense of perception. The aspects of this deal in the individual uniquely. It deals in the world, the Earth, in Gaia, in the collective and in the personal. The signs of Ascension are prophecies fulfilled, circumstances and heralding events. Seeds laid in the past of life's experiences that come to fruit.

Circumstances surrounding you by chance are used for the hidden agenda of self evolution. A personal preparation of Ascension that one might look into their past and define from childhood the prophecies of their life. But with each in a collective state for the world there comes the bearing of fruit without the blossoms. Because of the individual and their point as they approach destiny as the world moves into the leap of enlightenment.

A rational process of self examination and world consciousness, the common denominator is the equal fraction between the human and the eternal spirit. Exploring thought, an ancient race that lived before time present as a species puts on the mantle of flesh and isolation to understand experiences of personalized isolation. The race of human has lives for thousands of years coming to its point from time to time, from place to place to its return of its state.

Wisdom gleamed in each personal life, a treasure my beloved beyond price, in humble reference, hear these words such are your and we shall pass from this night and see the dawn of new life. Man shall learn, war no more, or be separated by any shore! For in the truth that lies in all the mysteries we are the continuum of God's Love.

Through the distance beyond sight we stand on ground that is steadfast to eternity where the joy of many is so precious. This time was when hand in hand the last night of illusion passes.

We never stand alone. We stand with the future and We stand with the past. But just as today there need be yesterday so there will be a tomorrow. That tomorrow, soon comes.

As to this day the past and the future, the Sacred Witness is fulfilling the Motive and the intent of the Continuum. In the silent self those choices and conditions, to your situation, your surroundings, environment and in combination with the physical body you are inhabiting, its genetic animal history, and the history of its society which places certain rules and demands on an individual. Yet with all these things, you are never disconnected from the part of yourself that is eternal and the eternal reality. WE are in a holographic universe where each segment is connected to all other segments containing the pattern of everything in its smallest portion. This mystery is explored by quantum physics which show that reality is subjective and is influenced on a subatomic level by the observer's mere will or presence. This understanding, though still not common in the lay community, implies technically that even a small influence on the subatomic level leads to an astronomical influence on the cosmic level.

The order and pattern of your life in this physical realm is influenced mentally, physically and spiritually by you. When you step aside from everything and begin in earnest to reevaluate your life experiences, possibly seeing this leading to a sense of perception of the divine part of yourself and into spiritual or evolutionary work that aids mankind. The resonant hum of creation within you is still "to love and be loved" and is the principle behind the circumstances and coincidences that have always governed you. When you realize that this principle is still present and operating, you can move into what is called the flow, into the life work and pattern the Creator leads you to, where that principle will enhance the steps before you. Coincidence will bear confirmation without your even asking for it. The illumination of ideals, small insights, and visions will be there to inspire you as you join in a uniform dance with Your eternal self.

This insight is usually found when you go just beyond the edge of religion into private worship and the private development of your own spirituality, not set by rigid rules of religious standards or a social setting. It comes when you look into the truth of your own heart, devoid of the emotional conflicts of the past, free of the bigotry and hatred projected by society. From looking at oneself naked, stripped of these trappings, you can define your own happiness and prosperity. WE are moving toward fulfillment.

The actual movement of the eternal spirit into the human body and the conditions that the eternal entity has to subject itself to in order to move from a sense of perception of omnipresent existence into co-habiting with an animal body, is a drastic and radical change. Just so, you entered into a physical body and then subsequently, instead of expanding back outward into the eternal entity, you jumped from one lifetime to another. Your energy, our life force, Your soul moved down the biological chain of time so that you could gain more insight and senses of perception, and awareness. There are many theories of reincarnation and how it works, but when the patterns of your past leads you to the truth that You are born from the womb of God, it really doesn't matter. You are. You have a shared connection with group consciousness in every lifetime that has ever been lived. The great wisdom of all knowledge comes to you at a certain point. All will be made known unto you. These are awesome words for this animal that runs around and has to balance a check book. To think that all things will be made known unto you! It is your right and true heritage as the individual reflection of God. You will reunite with that omni-knowledge and omni-awareness, yet differently than before, because of your personalized sense of perception. You will fulfill the intention of all Our lifetimes, what it all was for to begin with, to love God and to be loved back. That fulfillment comes not through looking into a mirror, but from looking into a different set of eyes, eyes that can love you for being you, and that you can love for being them. The one light split into two lights make the hologram, one is just reflected off of matter and is man and the other is God.

That's what all the religions and philosophies and science will come to understand. That is the divine wisdom. "To love and be loved" is the intention of the universe. Not knowing this, the general public, the man on the street, lives as the caterpillar, crawling along with his head down. He eats the grass right in front of him, with no greater perception of his world than the few grass stalks that surround him. This caterpillar cannot imagine the transformation of becoming a butterfly and flying through the forest into the sky. It's simple enough. You will emerge after you gain the precious insight as to how valuable, even with its heartache and torment, how divinely wonderful life is.

No energy is lost or wasted. For you, a reflection of God, will eventually stand at the edge of light, facing a void, a timeless place. With the infinite knowledge that you have gained, and with the infinite knowledge of God, the Creator, with the wisdom and experience of all those that share the same light of life on all levels of creation and reality, with wisdom and knowledge beyond our comprehension gained through personalized experience -- You will say, as each will say, "Let there be light". From You will come another dimension of reality, another universe, Your own hall of souls. The kingdom of God is within you. Clothed in soft raiment, you are in the temple of the kings. These words mean something much greater than our minds can comprehend, as humans. It is the reality.

Ascension is what you experience when you emerge from physical existence. With the insight of all knowledge, you will not be inclined to participate in the lie and illusion any longer. Many people have major life changes after near death experiences, because they behold the truth that They are eternal entities. Somewhere along the way, each spiritual individual, moves beyond mere faith. He knows he is God's Child, and that a lifetime is just a lifetime. At that point, the illusion begins to shatter, and priorities begin to shift.

When perceive yourself as an eternal entity, what has value to you? Value comes from something that will be meaningful forever. What is valuable is what is eternal. As you enter into this new perception, what holds value is having more mystical or spiritual experiences, more revelations, and more insights. If you can talk to God and hear God respond, what gold or treasure would have more value than that?

So, what does it matter if a man gains the kingdom of earth? What value is there in monetary things if you don't lay up something that is eternal? What is eternal? Lay up for yourselves treasure that a thief cannot steal, moths cannot eat and rust cannot corrode. What is something that cannot be stolen or carried off? What is it that rust cannot touch? What can a moth not eat? What can we lay up for ourselves while we are on earth? Memory. Nothing is ever forgotten. Right now at this moment, although you aren't consciously aware of it, a view of the waves touching the shores of China in the warm region where the palm trees sway, with soft grasses growing beneath, exists in your memory. What is on the hidden side of every leaf, every word that's being spoken, every thought that is being thought, every emotion that is being felt, every movement of breath, of wind, of nature, man, machine, electronics -- everything is recorded within Your consciousness, every single moment of your existence in your reality. We find it difficult to perceive it because it so much for the human ego. We find it difficult to cope with all that knowledge at one time while still within this existence and find application for such insight. It is stored deep within your Sacred Witness. You have earth, with every aspect, and every hair on every head recorded. That is Our eternal reward for existence in this time. You aren't missing a thing if you don't make it to that movie. You can sit back in eternity and look at it when you have the ability to, because You will have the totality of the reality of earth as it was at that moment anywhere on earth, just by shifting your awareness. You will have abilities you cannot yet begin to comprehend.

When you wonder about ascension, remember that we still perceive as a caterpillar, but soon this will be perceived as the butterfly. The need for this realm of reality is so that You have the personalized experience of life. In a physical body, Your divine nature combined with the animal creates something unique. The animal interprets what it experiences physically. The spirit interprets it emotionally and spiritually. Combined together, you have the mental body, which is your sense of perception, your cognitive consciousness flowing together with your subconscious, nurtured by or distracted by the physical body. So you have many different senses of perception which can create many kinds of relationships. Preparing for ascension, the caterpillar surround itself with spirituality, with the knowledge and wisdom that is available, with the different points of view of religions, philosophies and science, constructing for himself a cocoon. The caterpillar emerges from the cocoon as a butterfly able to serve with mankind. The work is monumental, because just prior to the vast harvest, butterflies land within the field, pointing the way for the others so that they won't fear the transformation that awaits them. This is the gentle hand of things close about them and about you. Realize that all the fears, doubts, angers and hostilities are not within the cocoon. Within the cocoon yoU are safe, no matter what happens outside, yoU are going to gain a new perspective. You will expand, stretch Your wings, and find out who You really are.

At ascension, it will appear as if you are still in your physical body, except you won't have pain or sickness. You won't have personal problems, and your mental abilities will be at their optimum, limitless and expanding. The assimilation of Your past lives will occur. As memories of your past lives flow into your mind, you will gather from Your subconscious all that You really are. Then, within the collective consciousness, You can share your past incarnations with others or experience every detail of theirs. You can give these memories as gifts to each other.

However, the assimilation of Your eternal self can occur before the ascension. Here, within the illusion, there is still much to learn and share. Assimilating every lifetime lived into the present consciousness, You will be the person that lived then as well as the person you are now, and you will expand into knowing that You are an eternal being. Usually this assimilation does not occur until you reach the next level. The lives you have lived up to this point began with birth and ended with death. You are all these lives and experiences. The integration of past lives permits you to change this life, die to this present life pattern, and be done with karma. The process of integration of the eternal self will change your views and perspective, your personality. Problems will seem minuscule, but you will still be able to relate to them personally. Through the integration process, You become an eternal entity, healing and touching many lives as well as your own.

You have been shown the preciousness of life, the value of each moment and every breath. Its value is beyond our total comprehension because it is affecting an eternal entity that will some day, beyond your measurement of time, stand and say, "Let there be light" again. The circles of God's children giving birth to another eternal ring goes on throughout eternity. The effect of this small moment in time, of this illusion and hologram of life, in this dream, is to give you a perspective and interpretation that will determine what you create. It's really clear, then, how precious each heartbeat is. However, being here with an expanding consciousness is difficult, especially at the beginning of the assimilation process. Hatred and resentment for being here surfaces, life is hard and you can't pay the bills. You wonder why all this is even necessary. Why do you have to put up with this? It becomes hard to begin the acclimation, but there is excitement in being a butterfly and creating your own reality. If you embrace being the butterfly and work to bless others, you will find that coincidences, circumstances and events provide the lift for Your wings, as you do for others.

It is a challenge to face immortality and mortality at the same time. You can look back at your own life and see what you had to deal with in order to shift Your sense of perception. Any metaphysician that has learned the truth is not just playing with a talent, but has spiritual insight that has come from struggling with the problem of the duality of eternal identity and physical life. Is physical life really necessary? Until that point where critical mass is struck, yes it is. You have to deal with the feeling that life is precious but you would like to go Home where struggles and problems don't exist. If You stay, how many more will you be able to help become butterflies? To some point Your hidden agenda has contract with you. It's best to be about the job of helping one another. Time is going by quickly enough. Soon Come.

For You who have been on this path for a long time, there have been years of formal training with teachers who have worked on this one goal with you. You came here not alone, but with an entourage of insights from the different Teachers that have given you their wisdom. It becomes impossible to reject it and walk away from it. Life becomes dedicated to this work. What you had to struggle for, You now give away freely. If you can do a life's work, something You can be eternally proud of, what is another bit of time of Your life here if it means working for others at a time when ascension is available and you can help them prepare for it? Your reward is great. Assimilation to the higher level while still on earth makes Your pathway after ascension to the seventh mansion level called Home more direct. For those how came from the Door of Home, to lead there love's, test you new abilities to be about the Work, let heart of love an truth, touch all, time soon come.

For the moment of our ascension is coming, you may not know the time and place, but You can know the season. It is coming upon us all. Knowing the season is enough..

Co-Creation: Moving Toward Ascension

Have you wondered about the true relationship with God? Does God just love the masses, not personally. You can, and may feel, think and believe you nothing in the Continuum, that is a isolation concept of God's Nature. In a honest, truthful and sincere place within yourself, you ask, "God, do you love me?" At that moment, your mind moves into listening, and a thought comes to you of a meteor shooting across the sky. Instantly, with no separation between thought and event, the sky is lit by a great, golden meteor that marks the sky from one side to another. You feel confident your question has been answered, that you are personally perceived and loved, that God and you share communion.

The communication is so vast that the meteor hurling through space for countless years reaches that precise location on the planet at the moment you asked your question. Were you led by inner, divine guidance to ask the question the instant before the meteor appeared, or was it an event used by God to answer you because it was conveniently available? There really is no difference. God's voice is infinitely broad. We all want to hear God speak. We want to hear God's words. His voice is so large that a leaf falling, a butterfly landing, a meteor, mountains being split apart, the earth shaking, a cosmic event, are all part of a voice that is His reflection and His answer to the individual and the world at one time. When you hear the voice of God, it's not just, "Hello. How are you doing today? Yes, I'm God. Yes, I'll talk to you one on one." God's answer can be a greater sense of enlightenment and the expansion of your own consciousness, of your sense of self-perception. There is nothing more valuable -- gold, silver, jewels, anything precious in life -- than a good question to ask God. And that this gift may give you rise to ask in the deepest truth of yourself and your life to see if these words are true, seek and in the time let the answer come, remember the question, remember how, where and what you ask, tell no one, forget what you want to hear, LISTENS. To truthfully seek a relationship with God from the deepest, most sincere part of yourself, is so profoundly personal and yet eternal, that God will move heaven and earth to answer you.

The insight you gain from the experiences and the lessons you learn here are truly profound. This is enhanced by understanding the mechanisms that are operating here and learning to utilize them. Some don't want to understand the mystery because it destroys their faith and romantic ideas about God. Once you can perceive things as they truly are, separating illusion from reality, then even in the middle of a lie, in the middle of a false experience, you can know your unity with God. You will know that every hair on your head is numbered, that attention is constantly paid to you by God. When you see your true nature as an eternal being, then you begin to know the significance and the magnitude that individual, personal life experiences have. Your experiences are subjective to our conscious mind and are co-created with all those in the generations that preceded us. You are involved in a process which by its own nature has created a much more complex society, a more complex life. Despite this complexity, you can still be clearly led by what appears as coincidences, like the meteor, to take whatever steps are necessary for you. No matter what your life situation is, you can follow that flow of coincidences, circumstances and events. These are not miracles, but the natural result of your communion with God, another good time to think what is the motive, and what is intent.

Even though your life experiences are temporary and illusory, they still have an important impact on the consciousness of the eternal entity. In other words, your understanding of life here is going to be an eternal part of Your sense of perception. All of life is meaningful. The hurt, the pain and suffering is valid for personal gain, for You to understand the struggle in relationships, conflicts, poverty and hunger. At some point, as an eternal being, you are through with your human lessons, and then your life will be forever changed.

When you realize You are an eternal being just having an in-body experience, a testing of this new perception begins, such as remote viewing. Think of it as the crayfish syndrome. You never have to put a lid on a bucket of crayfish, because as soon as one of them starts to crawl out, the others will grab hold of him, trying to get out with him, and will ultimately drag him back in. You are going to be tested by circumstances and situations You create yourself until your new sense of perception is solid. You do it subconsciously. When this happens, reinforce your new perception by affirming that you have learned whatever lessons you need to learn. This is not being arrogant, there is a point where there is no need to learn from more incarnational experiences. The learning is good but is not always that necessary, to learn by personal experience.

Suffering, pain, sickness, evil must seem real to you, in order to be useful in gaining true insight. Perhaps you are like the king who asked to know the depth and breadth of his kingdom. Knowledge and wisdom couldn't reveal it to him. Upon being questioned by the king, the counselors to his court told him, "Your kingdom is without end, my lord. It is infinite, always expanding and will be expanding eternally. There is no end to it. It comes in infinite ways from a series of events that you cannot perceive in your conscious mind, my lord." The king was greatly displeased with their answer. Afraid of losing their positions as court counselors and their livelihood, they devised a plan to save themselves from punishment. They told the king, "It is within the realm of the mystical arts, to know this secret, and they can reveal it to you, my lord." Having been immediately summoned by the king, into the courtyard walked the mystical teacher. The king asked, "What is the length and breadth of my kingdom? What is the height and the depth?" The mystical teacher said, "My lord, unless you put on the clothes of a beggar and walk in the streets, you cannot perceive the length, breadth, height or depth of your kingdom."

So the king put on the robes of the beggar, and slipped from the castle. He walked down the street, begging, not knowing even how to be a beggar, he received nothing and came back in fury and rage, still dressed in rags. He found the mystical teacher and said, "Upon you, I pass the sentence of death, because even though I begged, not knowing the art of begging, even though I hungered, felt the oppression and saw the evil inside my kingdom and felt the hurt and pain, I did not receive an answer to my question. I still do not know the length and breadth of my kingdom, for as I walked in these rags, I am king." Then the mystical teacher turned to the guards and said, "The king is away from the castle and has left me in charge until he returns. This madman claims to be the king, an affront to our king upon whose return we wait. This fool claims his title. Throw him from the castle and proclaim that he be shunned by all as the fool and madman who claimed to be king."

That day, the king was thrown from his own courtyard, proclaimed king of the madmen, king of the fools. He lived in a terrible state, buffeted by the rules of an alien society. Years passed, of great sorrow. Even among the other beggars, he was an outcast. Finally, in a state of utter deprivation, lying in a gutter, the beggar-king realized he was dying. At that moment, the cold of the last winter of his life coming to an end, he heard the sound of a heavenly procession and looked up. He thought, "Perhaps I really am mad. But it really doesn't matter, for I am going to die. Even if I were king, I would die. Whatever I am, I am." Suddenly, he realized it wasn't the heavenly procession he heard, but the procession of the king. The chariot stopped in front of him and from the great chariot stepped the Mystical Teacher. He reached out his hand and said, "Now My Lord, My Most Beloved King, take Your Throne. Now you understand the height, the depth, the length and breadth of Your Kingdom. To Know mortality is to understand Immortality. To understand death is to understand life." For the king to understand the least within his Kingdom, the beggar, is the Height and Depth of Knowledge and Wisdom. Now beloved you have seen your true state. Now he understood the leaves of the forest as well as the highest mountain, the depth of despair as well as the ease of reigning as king. He truly knew the Height, the Depth, the Breadth and Length of the Kingdom.

As with the king, when you are enlightened and come to understand the in-body experience, to play within the illusion, you gain a loving, eternal insight into each other, so that You are not in conflict with Your neighbors. You understand that you share the frailties, strengths, weaknesses, good, bad, hurt and joys, the enriching experiences within this temporal illusion. You develop a personal relationship with God and with each Other. An eternal relationship develops. When someone passes by You within the illusion who has forgotten the way Home, you can point the way for that person and give them a precious gift. Your very life becomes a gift by aiding other people. We are all Neighbors. We are All divine, eternal beings. What gives God the greatest joy is His children being happy, living side by side, prospering, co-creating their Own experiences with Him. That co-creation may include a thousand earths, a million stars and a billion universes that will keep on regenerating throughout eternity. God's joy is His first children gathered about Him in the vastness of the Continuum.

Though you have been to the altar, been saved, been baptized, been converted, sought out every doctrine, you were probably never taught the simple truth that you are an eternal entity, the child of God, and that you are simply having an in-body experience. From that simple perception, work out the rest: your co-creation with God; the unifying formula of creation; the holographic universe; subjective reality; the subatomic microcosmic universe; and group consciousness. The interplay of will, the power struggles, all the things you have fought with, have been merely illusions. Anywhere along the way, you could have changed your path, but you continue to struggle with things and recreate them. Everything you claim you don't want, that you are warring against, what you hate and resist, can simply fade away. Let their absence create a void, making room for what you want your life to be. Take whatever steps are necessary to make this happen, whether it's being wealthy, changing jobs, or having a different type of relationship. Take whatever steps are necessary to accomplish it, remembering to continue in that direction and not turn back. It can be that simple.

Actually, it is all an expression of love, and you have had a master teacher through all your experiences here. Your teacher has simply been life itself. It is the human experience viewed by you in all its great complexity as real in every aspect, perfect for you, perfect for your needs, even the pain, the suffering, the hate, the sickness, the sorrows. It was perfectly made and co-created by you, for you, with the greatest amount of love, for your own personal growth. When you choose, then, to step from that view point and see yourself as you truly are, as an eternal entity, then you can gain the richest and deepest appreciation for it.

The human accepting the lie cannot appreciate the suffering and pain. All the animal does is feel pain and withdraw. Unfortunately, it goes back into the same thing, another painful situation, until it learns it possesses something besides the animal -- the soul, the eternal self. And that eternal self and the animal can co-exist happily as one, learning not to war with itself.

And what of Gaia? Earth itself is laying down her very life for the Creator's children to experience this illusion. With compassion, love and sacrifice, she offers her trees for us to cut, her minerals and her seas for us to use and to pollute. Know that it doesn't matter. She will live forever within the eternal children of God. She will live a million, billion times over in each eternal being's children throughout eternity as a reference point, as an experience and an example both in her beauty and in her death and rebirth. In this duality is a completed circle which gives earth its eternal life. Gaia is the mother of the human experience.

Earth will be a Garden of Eden in the millennium which will exist for man's evolutionary process, for those who want an extended length of time to come to terms with their physical incarnations. During that time, longevity will increase and the subjectivity of reality will be much more profoundly experienced, as the illusion deteriorates and conforms to the new consciousness of the inhabitants. Consciousness and the rules of subjective reality will change. Those who remain here will have a garden upon which to lie, warmed by the grass and needing no shelter. The earth will be healed. Reality will change. There will be no more need for the chaotic school. It will be an opportunity for them to relish earth, cherish it more, and prepare to leave with a fully individualized identity. They will be able to assimilate all their past incarnations and understand the symbiotic relationship of the physical animal with the eternal identity. Although this assimilation has been a rare occurrence in the past, it will become common.

The opportunity to know yourself as an eternal entity while still in the animal body is the opportunity to truly savor this experience, to truly understand it. This knowledge and wisdom is ancient, known within the inner sanctum of the mystics. It has been known by most of the great masters of science, religion and philosophy. They all come to the same door of understanding -- that what exists as reality for us is really only an illusion, and it's only a moment in time. As you come to that door of understanding, preparing to move into the circle of truth, the circle of light, no matter how difficult the process, remember, like the king, we all make it home, from first to last. You are going to make it HOME.

Ending the Illusion

How can you move into the center of the circle of truth? Just outside the circle of truth is the illusion. To move into the circle of truth, you must do an extremely difficult thing. You must remove the illusion. What makes it difficult is that you will want to make every offering and sacrifice possible to avoid destroying the illusion. You will want to continue the dance of the illusion, to give your mind, body and spirit to its presence. Why? Slaying the false reality and giving up the illusion means giving up your particular addiction to it, giving up what gives you a high, a thrill. But that thrill is part of the lie. You may comfort yourself, feel good about yourself, and feel sure what you say and think is truth. You may believe down to the marrow of your bones that you are right, almost with a religious fervor. But that does not make it true. It is merely the blanket of faith that you wrap around yourself. Mankind has wrapped itself in that blanket to the point of slaughtering entire cultures in the name of what is right.

Standing in the center of truth is knowing that you are God's child. From that standpoint, who are you to judge others or even yourself? God's way of working is within the individual's unique sense of perception. It's not dictated by the order of society or by the specific doctrine of any religion. It is between that individual and God. It is between you and the truth. Who, then, are you to judge? How can you justify looking at another person and passing judgment? How can you judge yourself? If your line of reasoning is that you have spent years studying some philosophy or religion, and by what you have been taught, you are right and all else is wrong, you have missed something along the way. It's for every man, with fear and trembling, to work out his own relationship with God. It isn't between you and someone else, or dependent upon a church, a religion or some form of worship. It is between you and God. To perceive love from the center of truth is to be totally non-judgmental. It is to understand that "All Is Forgiven, Including Yourself".

The most difficult part of this entire process is being deluded into thinking you are in the center of truth when you are not. What will point this situation out to you? Know that the choices and decisions you have made and the perspective from which you have lived your life has been from the darkness. Don't argue with this realization or fight with it, but allow it to become a part of your new perception you try out. These thoughts may make you uncomfortable. You may have had a religion which you felt was the truth and in which you were comfortable. You may have been perceiving some of the truth from the darkness, but that is very different from being in the center of truth itself. Rather than perceiving truth from the darkness, step into the center of truth and perceive everything around you from the light of truth.

What is the truth? God is and You are.

To move into that center of truth and look at the way you expressed yourself through your life experiences and relationships will reveal your human nature. To glean this to optimize the way you live, especially if you are coming to the end of life's experiences, acclimate yourself to Your true identity, the person that You are in eternity, and look at how you conduct yourself in your daily life. If you are not conducting yourself as the spirit You truly are, then you are living a lie. If you desire to live here in the flesh as a loving, eternal child of God, compassionate and giving, then you have to make changes. Navigate your course! What truly moves you into the center of the circle of truth is to bring forth your eternal perception into your human perception. When you give up past human perception, giving up the self deception, you end the illusion.

That old perception then ceases to be. In other words, the life you have had until you enter the circle of truth has been an illusion. From that center, you know simply that God loves, and that he wishes you to be happy and prosper. He leaves you to your personal method for working it out. From time to time during various religious, spiritual, emotional or meditative processes, yoU may have come temporarily into this perception, but when you move into the circle and ultimately deal with the illusion, you learn to maintain Your position there.

It is a sacrifice because you surrender all the justifications for your actions, all your rationalizations, and your judgment and condemnation of yourself and others. This is done by going back through every single action in life and recognizing it, changing actions and reactions to situations and events, the way you made decisions, the way you conducted yourself in life, the games you played. That doesn't mean you will walk around telling the truth all the time or that you will never do a bad thing. What it means is that you change your sense of perception.

All of this is our vanity, and our growing sense of perception of self is the purpose of the illusion, to give us that sense of ourself. It doesn't mean you will be falsely humble. You have a mind and a consciousness in an animal's body that you must deal with. But you can deal with it very differently if you are outside of the influences that the animal believes are real and can see it from the eyes that perceive the truth. You no longer will condemn the animal, the human. The idea is to bring the human animal into the light. Bring into the light that mortal being that You are, the animal of your flesh. Know that yoU can actually give that animal immortality, because you have embodied its sense of perception. Love thyself!

Once the illusion is slain, every action that is taken, every thought you think triggers a cascade of ideas, situations, events and circumstances that come to you so that you can perceive them differently. Your actions and reactions from then on become a confirmation and affirmation of the union of the human animal and Your eternal spirit.

The way of the Work, is to live in the light itself. What light can you shine accurately into the illusion of the darkness? From the human, the angle would be wrong, because you would try to reflect the truth off of your perspective from the darkness and end the illusion with it, whereas, once the totality of the truth hits you, standing in the center of the truth, the illusion passes by Your perception of truth and is seen for what it is. What usually happens in the cascade that follows is that memories or thoughts bubble up from childhood through adulthood and from past lives in the form of visions, dreams, inspiration and guidance. These memories enter the light of truth, revealing whatever is false about them. Thus, you change your sense of perception in dealing with past memories and everyday life events, because all must now be calibrated to Your perception from the center of truth. This does not happen in a moment. It is an entire lifetime or lifetimes that will be reprocessed. If you are diligent and deal with the issues as they come up, you will awaken from your delusions. You will see that the reality you have been experiencing can be as profound for the eternal entity as life and death are to the animal. And the reward is this -- you gain a unique sense of perception. Eventually as an eternal entity is able to look at the stars of all the galaxies, able to look at all the universes folding and unfolding beyond time and space, you will remember that as the child of God in this illusion, in this experience which is simply your dream, something extraordinary took place -- you found out who you really are. Let us not forget that in this process there may come that time of fruit without blossom.

This is an extremely intimate act. This is the greatest intimacy with yourself you will ever have in life, because it alters the way you perceive yourself. This is your view of reality in every finite detail. It's what you were told when you were a child. It's what you thought when you were a child. It's what you felt when you were a child. It's what you felt through every stage of your life until you approached this moment. It's every hope, dream, desire, want, like, dislike, all influencing what you will keep in eternity. But what you don't keep is the perception that created it, the situations and events that governed your thinking processes, the ones that made you choose this action or that emotional response.

You can choose to dance around until your body dies, or you can come to the center of truth. If you do step into that circle, you receive a new life in exchange for the old life you surrender. It doesn't necessarily mean that you get a divorce or quit your job. What will change is how you choose to experience life. The obligations and responsibilities to other people change because there is an eternal entity embodied in the rest of your life experience. You are present in this form as the individual you are in eternity. You are now within the flesh of mankind but you are not of the flesh. You are within the flesh, saving the animal, saving the mind, reorganizing, and restructuring. And you can take it all Home with you to eternity. That's the salvation that is spoken of. It becomes the true nature of the eternal spirit to do this. You will go by instinct once you enter the circle of light, dealing with the past, dealing with the present and creating the future.

The eternal being's assimilation of the change isn't something you have to force yourself to do. Spontaneous memories and events come across the mind like a movie. It is an automatic process for the eternal spirit to re-evaluate life experiences. However, it's best if you have a teacher, a master, or a friend that can share it with you, who can stand in the center of truth to help you as you begin your processing. It can become very swift, very rapid. It may take months or years for some, or just a period of weeks for others. It depends upon how diligent you are. There are many small, finite things in your life which you react to at every moment and which are literally creating your future. When you truly can perceive truth, and start the acclimation process, it becomes a fire that consumes your life experience. From that fire, you glean understanding.

Entering the circle of truth is an act of free will. The single most important key in bringing about the permanent new perception is this: If you exclude one thing that must be faced, or accept a lie passively, it becomes a cancer that will bring the illusion back to life. You cannot be passive. Your free will holds your greatest power and the greatest danger to you, because with it, you can recreate another lie that can be just as strongly held in your consciousness as what is true. It is a commitment to weigh out all truth from day to day, from moment to moment, being constantly on guard against mental self-deception. You are dealing with the consciousness of an animal that has natural instincts that are lustful, violent, and aggressive, and whose greatest survival instinct is fear. Once the animal is truly standing in the light, it will come to face the darkness. It will fear the lies that would lead it away from that light. This moment of massive growth is completely internal and personalized. In that moment, you are actually taking the responsibility that you could be wrong and will be wrong and will be constantly readjusting yourself to the truth. Then you glean from it your own sense of perception, which is passion, which is love in action with life.

Love and life experiences on earth are the most valuable things you possess here, but the earth is only going to live so long, it is a finite experience. Earth or Gaia lives within you and within each person that has lived here. It will be unfolded for each of you throughout eternity as an Archangel of experience, a Beloved to your children. The sweet memory of earth in its complexity, its every detail, every leaf that fell upon it and became soil and part of another tree, will be what you take with you into eternity, recreated by you, to exist as it does now for you. That is the treasure you have as an inheritance for being in this life experience.

So, even though life outside the circle of truth is an illusion, it does have a validity not to be discounted, a validity that can be enhanced by how you conduct yourself within this illusion. In dealing with the illusion, all your habits of creating negative emotions or experiences must be understood. If we come into the center of the circle of light and truly lay down our old understanding, WE will glean from the past the jewel of truth, the light, the fire, the love that burns within Us and lights Our way home, illuminates Our way to God and to Our true identity.

When you are struggling, it is obvious you are not functioning from the center of light. If you are struggling, then you have misplaced your true identity as an eternal being. If you can perceive yourself in a different light, then coincidences, circumstances and events will unfold whatever is necessary to make that perception manifest itself in your life and within you. The doors of coincidence control or synchronicity, will open beyond your earthly expectations, because your motive itself converges with the intent behind your life experiences. The jokes, the humor, the laughter, the love, the light, the happiness will bombard you in positive ways. Even as you deal with negative issues or other situations, you will always come back to the center of truth.

The greatest battle is as old as time. It is the battle within self, the battle for self, the battle for your true identity. When the light illuminates every action or lack of action in your past, every action in the future, you have confidence to make decisions that will create the future you desire. At this time, one activity tolls like a bell within the consciousness, and that is aiding in the ascension of mankind. On a personal level, it means processing your life from beginning to end and transforming yourself into an eternal being so that you, the living person, can go Home. You are a vast eternal being, much more than what you can perceive that you are in one lifetime, but you will always be able, in the humility of the animal, in that child's eyes, to see the wonder in a leaf, to look at the miracle of a moment of kindness, to feel the joy and pleasure of a simple, natural sunset. That's the treasure of participating in life.

Kindle within yourself a desire for the light of understanding. Step straight forward into the circle of truth and turn around. Let the cascade come. Harvest the treasure of your life. You are a child of God. But there comes a time when childhood ends, a time to grow up.

You are an eternal being. In that simple truth, turn from the lie and the illusion. Seeing all that you have experienced within it. Then your old understanding ends, and you will live free from that lie and sense of perception. Then, every day is a new day. Every moment is a new moment. Co-creating your future. Change yourself in every way necessary to attain that future. Realize who you have been and what you have put yourself and everyone else around you through. Change whatever you need to in order to co-create the life you want to experience in this reality.

To accomplish this means far more than words can express. It is more than thought can think. It is more than emotions can feel. It is more than the earth and all the history of time. It is so profound that there is no gauge by which you can measure it. But once measured or experienced, all other things become gauged by it. It is beholding God in your own mirror, seeing the child that is the product of its father, seeing the image of God inside yourself. It is stripping away the mask, the illusion, the lie, the life experience we wear on the surface. It is stripping away the mask of how you want to be seen, how you want to see yourself, how you really conduct yourself. It is the truth within the soul. It is the eternal entity separated totally from this life, yet joined with it in every part and every detail of every experience at every moment. It is the dominion of the eternal entity, the savior of yourself and the savior of the animal. It is freedom from the pain that has been created. It is simple happiness, joy and peace, enjoying life as it was meant to be enjoyed. It is the fun, excitement, adventure, the mysticism of life's experiences filled with overwhelming, overflowing happiness and love. It is new life experiences of loving and being loved, as God manifests His love through other people and situations in a never ending, new changing way. It is standing in the circle of light, and seeing God expressing Himself as you, perceiving yourself in joyful life experience. It is very profound to be loved by God, to feel His love within the wind, within the hands of one another and to see it in action within the reality that is then created.

God's love holds within it the keys to all the mysteries of life. It opens the doors of possibilities that are infinite, the doors of talents, cooperation and participation in a divine Work. It opens the doors to life experience that is fulfilling and rewarding in its own individual, unique way, in a smorgasbord of riches for the human animal of life. It is the laughter of the soul. It is the healing of the mind. It is redemption from death. It is that which is and always will be, with the insight and understanding of how precious life experience is.

Within the circle of truth, you truly begin to turn and face your Creator, not out of fear and trembling, not out of fear of rejection, not out of fear of disappointment, but with open eyes and an open heart, knowing you are loved, that "All Is Forgiven, Including Yourself", and that you are welcome in your eternal dwelling. It is finding that your life experience is merely a room within your eternal mansion where earth is born again within the history of your lifetime, where all the things that have happened are recorded. These are treasures without end. What a great privilege to finally see how the mystery of life works, to perceive for yourself how the mystery unfolds for each individual so that they can share and experience this light of truth. What joy to experience the love that is within each of us, to touch one another as the hands of God, to care with the compassion of God, to understand with the wisdom, the insight and the kindness of God, given one to another.

This is a freedom that transforms you into an eternal being, participating fully in life, until the time is fulfilled for the ascension Home for mankind. It is your awakening from the dream of life, the dream that will be cherished as your greatest treasure..

The Circle of Light

At the center core of truth, where truth becomes a power which changes your life, literally changing your reality, is the circle of light. Moving into the center of that circle of light is your rebirth. Coming into that light means you perceive that this reality is literally what you perceive it to be.

Prior to that moment, you are standing outside the circle, in the darkness. What you experience is interpreted from the darkness, not from the light. Even though the light is shining out from the circle and exposing this to you, your sense of perception is that you are here in life and God is way out there. The doctrine and dogma of many religions are within the darkness, the illusion, the lie. You are not born only of the animal body, but you are born an eternal entity. You were known and lived before the foundations of this world were laid, before you were formed in the womb. You existed before creation. You are a part of God, the gleam of love in God's eye. "Let there be light" was the projection of the holographic reality with space for expansion, timed so that everything has reference points and meaning.

Then came the organic process of the animal form until at a certain point the spirit of man is breathed into the clay, the body of the animal. The breathing of life into the body, that which is biologically created, the animal, formed the host for God's children, his prodigies of eternity. From there, the children entered into life experiences, affecting the genetic code of the animal and intervening in the animal's behavior, patterns and instincts. In this symbiotic relationship, you still carry certain animal characteristics in your glands, body, and in instincts. You have the base instinct, which is fear, the survival instinct of a predator, as this precious being.

It is not that you are here and God is out there. God created a void and filled it with an illusion, the hologram. Just as the projection of a hologram is not real, neither is this reality. But in your symbiotic relationship with the animal and its base instincts for survival, in that combination of spirit and animal creating a mental body, a thinking process, a sense of perception, the purpose behind this reality is born; for you to individuate and move with the animal's sense of perception into eternity.

To move into the circle of light is to understand the principle behind this reality instead of perceiving it only from the human animal's view point. The animal may want to go wash the dishes or wax the car. But maintaining an awareness of the symbiotic relationship gives you a sense that you are an eternal entity that likes to keep his car polished and keep the dishes done. Because of the nesting instincts, or the social order of others around you, you choose to do that. You can spend years in religions and philosophies, in the study of God and the light, go to the altar and say you know you are a child of God, yet never comprehend the truth of that or really be viewing reality from the reasonable sense of perception. You may still be perceiving and justifying everything through the eyes of the human animal and seeing only the illusion.

Moving into the light of truth, moving into the light of perception as God's child, which unfolds universes and kingdoms beyond the imagination, is an act of your own free will. But how do you move? How do you motivate yourself? What is your position in this creation? What are the rules? How much are you responsible for the creation of the pain, sickness, sorrows, sufferings, headaches, an empty checkbook, the corruption of politics in government? How responsible are you? You are greatly responsible. Literally, you are as responsible as you choose to be, because reality is subjective. This reality is an illusion that is attentive to the host animal, the human, in its symbiotic relationship with the eternal spirit. That spirit is in mutual agreement with all the other participants in this reality. For example, we all agree that the sun rises in the morning, sets at night, we perceive this as a day.

How can you move into the sense of perception from within the circle of light? By simply stepping into the light. You may say, "I am a child of God," but when you step into the light of that sense of perception, you know you are an eternal entity only having an in-body experience. How can you tell if you are really inside the circle? Are you going by the animal instinct which is comfortable hiding in the darkness so that it doesn't have to change its patterns? One might read their experience as totally crazy, well then, your getting closer to the truth. The truth is much more than the human animal can comprehend. Understand your human animal is use to dying to get there. The animal perceives stepping outside its safe perimeters it places around itself as an endangerment to its mortal being. Its social, cultural, interpersonal relationship with its world and surroundings. The animal instinct reacts to these as possible threat or death of identity. Understanding the magnitude of the psychological trauma you will be passing yourself though, be gentle and patient with your heathy progress as you elect to deal with the rationalization of changing perception of what is the real nature of time and space and your own existence. That is a time of gentle hands with yourself, both human animal and eternal spirit. That animal has a sense of perception of reality that is based on what it perceives reality to be and it conducts itself accordingly.

Your sense of perception is literally creating your reality. It determines your subconscious choices and decisions to marry, to be in an abusive relationship, get a divorce, marry someone else that will be abusive or have that tendency, all due to a core problem with interpersonal relationship skills. Until you challenge it, your interpretation of love is based on your life experiences. If when you were little, Mommy and Daddy said "I love you" but they beat you constantly, your interpretation of love is "hit me." Interrelationship problems come from a false interpretation or a personal interpretation of reality, and the decisions that you make subconsciously create the reality you experience.

We have core emotional issues and personal views, and these affect our choices. Now you are going to move from the darkness into the light. When we step into the light, we may then turn and perceive life as what it is, perceive it in its beauty, its mercy, its forgiveness. Your sense of life, what you think reality is, and all the experiences you have had, need to be re-evaluated.

When you step into the light, turn around and begin the process of staying in the light, when your animal knows that it's not going to die after all. The whole purpose in life is to gain a personal sense of perception. So when we step into the light, the animal sees that its sense of perception is going to live forever. Then it will acclimate, shift its perception, and begin to fear the darkness instead of the light. When you move into the light, you perceive the animal and the good it has done. You understand that your animal is helping you perceive the light by maintaining its heart beat even when it is close to what it thinks is the door of death.

In the center of the circle of light, everything must be re-interpreted so that you will not be sidetracked, so that you can maintain yourself in the light. The animal now tries to help you. It makes you have feelings, makes you want to go to the light, wants you to stay in your truer sense of perception, because it is now secure there. Standing inside the light, you have the sense of perception of this reality from within the light is a divide work in progress.

In the circle of light, you can begin to understand the art and music of God, His children and their lives. This is His poetry. For God isn't the only one creating. You are co-creating with Him. We perceive that science can do wondrous things, so we create a wondrous reality. We create a vast technology with limitless possibilities. And when science gets as far as it can go, and comes to the door of physical reality in order to deal with something beyond this physical reality, it arrives at quantum physics. It finds the edge of the hologram where the rules of physics don't apply. On the subatomic level, the subatomic particles of any physical construction are so far apart, to view them is like looking at the universe and the distance between stars. Then testing that reality, science finds that it doesn't necessarily work by the laws of physics, that there can be more than one object in the same space at the same time. It discovers the walls of the hologram and finds out that the observer influences the outcome of any measurement taken. It is thought that is measured. The equipment will register differently depending upon what the observer wants to see. If you want to see particles, then the equipment will register them. If you want to see waves, then the equipment will register waves. Three people measuring the same subatomic area will obtain three different results. One could find particles, one could find waves, and one could find a beam. Science has gone to the door and found that reality is subjective.

To stand as an individual within the light is to perceive life as an in-body experience. And all the experiences you have had through all your lifetimes with all the different complexities, with all the probable realities and subjective realities, and all the day-dreams and visions, hopes and aspirations, make you different from all others, give you a personal identity, gives you a different sense of perception from God. So then you can turn, love God and be loved by God as his child. You become His child grown up. In the darkness, you perceive yourself as small, insignificant, and this earth as a single grain in an endless, infinite sea. But the truth is that the perception of the eternal being is far more vast than the sea. To have a personal, unique, eternal identity and take that identity into the light before physical death occurs, is a type of death itself. It is the death of the old perception and a life transformation. The animal becomes immortal. Its identity is sealed, all the lifetimes coming together to create a different sense of perception, knowing the pain and suffering of miscarriages, heartaches and disappointments, sorrows, joys and laughter. That is who you are.

Once the animal and the mental/spiritual parts are joined, they are very efficient. What happens is that as you stand in the light, the animal fights to survive. It coaxes the mental to give you the answers to whatever questions may arise in your consciousness. When you step into the light, you realize that you choose the experiences you have had to help other people, to be understanding, to be compassionate, to understand their pains, their frustrations. There is a purpose even in hanging on to misconceptions, because then you know how hanging on to that may destroy things.

You are in the animal body, and the animal can become dominant. You can control it or allow it to control you. You are in a body and reality you don't understand. You don't know what questions to ask. In each life there is a reason for the experiences you have. These are choices and decisions you make. You agree and you experience, even though it seems against your will. It is an agreement you have, which has purpose you may never fully perceive while here in the body.

You came here to learn. Every breath you take, with the animal struggling to make sure you take the next one, even while you are not conscious of it, every heart beat, whether you are suffering or laughing, is eternally valuable as a contribution to your sense of perception -- king or beggar, healer or killer, priest or madman. All of life is a sense of personal experience that becomes a part of your eternal identity. So it is an identity that will be diverse and multi-faceted. The great dream time, to understand the vast spectrum of possibilities, you may experience them. And you don't quit creating the negative elements until you truly perceive that you are creating them.

The center of the circle of light reveals the purpose of the lie. If God were to make you love Him, then He could not experience you loving Him of your own free will. So you have this reality, this subjective experience -- to form a personal, individualized, eternal identity, here on the earth plane you can and do that. Here, in the subjective reality, if you don't have a mutual interpretation of love, then none exists in your perception. Love is a gift we give each other, and beating, hitting, forcing and wanting it, struggling and fighting for it will not get it for you. In that search for love, all the negative things we've done, the pain, evil, tears, hatred, loss, disease -- all the things we call evil, are really perfect, a description of a crying soul crying for love. They give definition and a personal identity to us as eternal entities, which make us separate from God in our perception, yet part of God, the child and the Father together. The child comes to God, the Father, of its own free will, loves God and also loves itself.

The lie to see through is that you are born here and all you have in this lifetime is some hope you will have something more after you die. When the animal dominates, it sees only the life it is experiencing. The eternal entity sees the eternal. Since you have a free will where the animal and the eternal come together, you choose and decide how you perceive reality. You influence the incarnational pattern you choose. When you look through the eyes of the eternal being, you can choose from the insight and knowledge gained from all your lifetimes, with a sense of perception and personal identity separate from God. You, then, solve the equation "to love and to be loved".

This is all just temporary, both the bad and the good, for you to make choices and decisions, to find out who you are, what you like, what you don't like. The choices and decisions, the bad ones, the ones you are ashamed of, and the experiences you feel hurt about because someone else did something to you, they don't really matter. There is no good or bad when you are in your eternal Home. There is no good and evil in eternity. That is the illusion, your teacher in the experience of life at the lower level, where light slows to energy, and energy slows to matter, where the dominion of a lie, a hologram, is created. Perceiving from within the light of truth, you understand that you are experiencing an illusion. If it is an illusion, then it is not real. Although in eternity it doesn't exist, it has eternal effects. It has given you a sense of personal identity, a sense of perception, so that you can be different from any other.

It may appear as though there are those born who don't have a choice, because the situation never provides them the opportunity to make choices and decisions to be wealthy, healthy, happy and wise.

Being denied those things marks the eternal entity, contributing to the development of the personal identity. The human can make decisions that come to a dead end and make mistakes. But the process will be safely guarded by the Creator. You do not mess up in eternity. When you visit one another in eternity, drawn together by your different and interesting senses of perception, you will share your eternal Homes with each other. You will introduce yourselves, share the worlds that attracted you, all the facets of your personal experiences, your eternal treasures.

Understand that the objective viewing of reality from the center of the light has profound and personal psychological effects. It breaks down the perimeters of your self perception. With that sense of perception there sometimes comes depression, fear, and confusion. That is the animal passing these things in front of the light for you to recalibrate your sense of perception. These things are not to be feared but to be understood. It's a natural process of gleaning your perception so that your reaction to the events that surround you will be different. These experiences should be earnestly considered. If you feel sad, depressed or lonely, the sadness may be a perception that you are isolated and alone. Isolation and loneliness are only the result of your in-body experience. As that perception comes to you in the circle of light, you can perceive it as a falsehood. Your behavior patterns are then altered by your sense of perception. This is carried into life situations. You don't have the same emotional or physical reactions, because your sense of perception has changed. Usually this occurs near death, or during the actual death experience on the next level up from life. The eternal consciousness is always present within the animal incarnation itself it is often hidden behind the veil. You find that the eternal consciousness you experience while kneeling at an altar is lost when you move back into life and into your old sense of perception. From the circle of light, you can begin to see that it is your past experiences of this lifetime that have given you that sense of perception. With a gentleness and honesty you can deal with those emotions and they will not return. The animal will often flee back towards the illusion where it feels is safe and secure. Integrate our human and eternal spirit at their own pace with gentle and compassionate hands. Not forcing one's progress for it can be counterproductive. Do not criticize yourself for in the darkness you could not see.

When you move into this perception, there is an adjustment period, a cascade effect involving all the senses of perception that need to be dealt with, emotional problems, religious doctrines, philosophies and science. Most often it will happen easily and naturally. If you fight against the adjustment, you are dragging the animal back into the darkness. When you actually stand in the light of truth and understand the animal you are in, the body and the physical experience as it really is, you can be reassured and comforted, in a way the animal isn't frightened, and you are working with the animal in your own consciousness to help change its sense of perception. Explore different life experiences from the center of truth, from the point of view of the eternal being, and you will adjust and acclimate quickly. Don't struggle with it. Go with it. Understand not to judge the memories that are coming up but where they are coming from. Be the beloved one that helped others ascend the staircase. Perceive yourself as you truly are, not waiting until after you die to leave the animal, but take the animal and have it help you, so that it can use it's instincts of the predator to hunt out the truth in all things of life. Standing at the door, when others come after whatever length of time, with whatever sense of perception, whatever journeys they made, greet them in this humble, yet divine animal form of man, reminding them that you were there when they were in the darkness. Greet them in the light because you love and perceive the truth. That becomes your unique expression of life.

Standing within the circle of light of truth, you experience a desire to help others. From that perspective, with the illusion broken, you know you are going along with their dreams, their wants, their desires. How can you help? Does a mother help a child when she carries him so long he doesn't learn to walk? Does the marriage work when more struggle and misery is the only outcome? Many philosophies and religions say it is pain that is the teacher, giving the student insight. That is true, but who is the author of your life? Is it God? No, He gave it to you to choose and to co-create with Him. If you are miserable and sad, justifying it by this condition or this situation, or making yourself a servant through obligation, that is your choice. When you choose to fulfill the wishes of God -- and it is His wish above all else "for you to be happy and prosper" -- then you truly begin to serve with love. You become the example of happiness and joy, choosing happiness and helping others find that happiness, so that they don't have to live in conflict and depression. This is serving yourself by serving others, helping each other into the circle of light and truth, into what you always dreamed of as the life God would want for you.

Why is my life so miserable and I have no peace, joy or prosperity? A good question causes one to explore the hidden agenda of this life experience.

In the light, the earth a thousand, million times re-created is just a small portion of what you have. Life within the illusion, with all its splendor, doesn't have to be lived in sorrow, made confusing, made difficult, made a struggle. You can allow yourself just to be happy. Then the earth, the elements of nature, coincidences, a series of events, are all set in motion to fulfill that. When you move into the harmony of feeling "It's life, just an in-body experience", then nature, the world and all other things just seem to manifest more of the happiness and joy. Often, you must even struggle to stay miserable by seeking dark corners that are painful. It is a habit.

Standing in the circle of light your mind can begin to open and perceive reality. You may back away thinking, "No, no, God's in charge of life, and He made this situation for me." Maybe a truer perspective is, God did make this situation, but He lets you create it around you. Since you are a creature of habit, you choose the dark corners and the painful experiences even though you protest them, not realizing that if you would just let them go, they would fade away as dreams do in the morning. The darkness and pain can be replaced with the experiences of the joy of life, happiness and peace, naturally, without any struggle, without having to do a lot of metaphysical or spiritual work. It is your natural state of being as an eternal entity, in the body of the animal, standing in the circle of light. All the events, choices and decisions that the animal experiences would become happy ones, no longer responding to the negative. So these decisions come naturally from the new instinct of the animal, who when the time came, knew better than to stay in the darkness.

The animal and the eternal being are mixed together. Man is the animal's base element mixed with his purest, eternal nature. You swim in this mixed consciousness, choosing the thoughts of the animal, the thoughts of the mind, and the thoughts of the spirit. You do this just as easily as you move your hand through space to pick up a cup. You are part animal, part mental, part emotional, part spiritual, all together as one. You are in that symbiotic relationship that has no hard, defined lines, which is a perfect in-body experience. You are mapping out your life as a series of experiences in a physical, three dimensional reality, with a limited perspective having a beginning and an ending, so that when you have experienced enough, you can give up your life for the truth within the circle of light. You receive a mantle of understanding and wisdom that means the passage of the animal. The illusion will not survive in the physical life for long once it stands in the light of truth. Who can behold the face of God and still live? Who could touch the Ark of the Covenant and survive? To embrace God, or the pure truth, literally removes you from the illusion into the true reality of the eternal being.

In that joint union that will exist for a time, you will move back and forth, until finally you lose the ability to stay within the lie, and you no longer will exist in the physical plane. You will pass from this life to another. It is like what happens within the illusion to the animal at death. A person lives so many years or moments or decades, and then by an inner mechanism, they pass into the light of truth just before the instant their life ends. The mortal person they were is carried to a reality where they can explore themselves, their problems, their wants, their likes, come to terms with their life and then be led farther and farther until they make it home. It is not necessary, though, to wait until you die to perceive the truth. You can simply move into that form of thinking. The light of reality and truth always illuminate the pathway home.

From the center of the circle of light, you can look out at society, see all the woe, all the harm, and understand why there is suffering. There is a purpose for some to suffer, some to cry, some to have the hard times as part of their life experience. It has always been your free will and choice in order for you to become an individual. Let us not pass judgment. Let us just understand that the school is going to be closing. That is what you are waiting for as an individual, what humanity is waiting for, for the ascension back to the truth, to eternity.

All the pain and suffering you see is a choice of the symbiotic relationship. All the money that has gone into war, could have been put into aid, help and humanities well being. Where would this world be now if those choices and decisions had been made? We have created this reality through time. We have put half a trillion dollars into the war machine for nothing. For what? What territory have we gained? What security do we have? We have fear, war, and pending nuclear and biological disaster. We have not done well, but that was our choice. It was what we needed, to play this school of experience out both design an chance to bring in all the class's of past, present an beloved future. Now that the animal is always in fear, struggling against poverty and violence, it is forcing all to reevaluate what we have really created. The governments of the world are now so monstrous, they are actually taking the food, security and shelter away from those who need it, to play war games. It is necessary for you to see this, so you will have a personal treasure of experiences which would be irrational and impossible in eternity. The forces of darkness seem to be overwhelmingly against us. This too shall pass.

The graduation of mankind from the illusion is approaching. These present conditions and situations are the cause and effect for transformation and change. All this is necessary for your evolutionary process to occur. The generations that came before you propagated a sense of perception that God is far away from you, that joy and happiness come after you die, instead of in this life, that there are only spurts of love and happiness possible for you, or that they are for the rich or for someone else. When you find comfort through whatever religion or philosophy you are studying, realize that it is the core, the essential truth within all religions which speaks to you -- that you are an eternal entity, your kingdom is without end, and you have an eternal home where there is no pain and death, where there is always hope fulfilled. Then for a brief moment of time, you may see into truth, look back and know that whatever comes in life, you'll make it through, maybe kneeling at an altar, or shrine, or in a temple, or your own room. Truth has always surrounded you. It has always been for you to make choices and decisions about yourself. Once you know this, then even as a beggar, you can see yourself satisfied with what you are experiencing. If your current life is not what you want, quit struggling. A door will open, an opportunity will appear, and you will be able to make a different life for yourself.

The circle of truth is never separate from any point in time. It has been there throughout the ages. It's up to you to step into that circle. God has allowed you choices and decisions and incarnations to be what you are and have what you enjoy. For at that altar, it is written: "All Is Forgiven, Including Yourself".

God's gift to you is your freedom of choice. Understanding that, you can come to the center of truth and light and do good because you want to do good, not out of guilt or shame, or because you fear reprisal if you don't. You do good because you truly enjoy and desire it. It's what you want to do. So if it is sharing a crust of bread between beggars, or a glass of water with someone who is thirsty, or if it's saving a world or a nation from hunger or starvation or war, or if it's bringing God's children to the point of their ascension, it's one and the same. The scale doesn't matter. It's whatever is there for you to do with your talent or ability. You have free will of choices. This is where the truth of your eternal identity begins to radiate from the light of truth out into the world. It's not for your personal gain, but because you are evolving. You are in the process of ascension, becoming a unique eternal entity with the understanding and appreciation of who you truly are. You give up your incarnation, your life, your personal self-experience, to serve God's divine work, His will to make mankind happy and prosperous. You evolve to help one another gain the personal treasures of the interpersonal relationships of the children, one neighbor helping another, a true eternal reward, by helping others find their own strength and fulfill their own potential, you become part of a process that is always there in the continuum. Then, as your true identity begins to unfold and change the physical consciousness with which you used to perceive reality, you begin to see this reality as an opportunity to do some good, to help one another and express your own character as an eternal being. It becomes a conscious symbiotic relationship between the divine eternal self, emotional self the mental self and the physical self. In that awareness, you can understand your weaknesses, strengths, passions and lusts. You can care for your animal, not torturing it or denying it. You can understand yourself without guilt or shame, allow yourself to find happiness, prosperity and joy. Then, you will be part of a process in this day and time where the school of earth begins to close as the hard teacher.

The sweeping effect of the influences that are overtaking the earth, the conjunction of the influences of society, technology, environment, astronomy, astrology, and the consciousness of man, are all coming together for a real transformation. We are all part of this transformation and when you give up this incarnation with its limited perception in the darkness, and live your Legion that is eternal.

Should we refuse to see through the illusion? Should we refuse to step into the center of the light? The school of life is drawing to a close as we have known it. We are destined to graduate, one way or another. Give a LOVE in Deed, kind of sounds like "it's more blessed to give than receive", but some had to agreed to receive at this time. Let us each be here to fill our part, it goes with the love an being loved, a rather honor to both in fellowship. Standing in the truth of our eternal identities, we move into a choice and decision in this reality with the sense of perception we gained here (now or later), unfolding that perception for ourself as we help others come to understanding something each knows and doesn't. Finding the doorway Home, as you can receive in giving the reminder.

Following the Cascade Home

Imagine a single drop of dew that has collected and formed on the end of a leaf, caught in the dawn of a new day. The Light creating the rainbow of color through its passage. Uncharted space surrounding this drop clinging through tension to its host, that leaf, its veins changing the spirit in the air into the substance of that drop, that moisture from its presence from the leaf's form and shape coming from within the tree.

The roots of history, the genetic line lay behind the leaf, to the deep roots the Gaia has given life in mountain and valley. In that moment where tension of weight and leaf, the drop parts starting the cascade, following the cascade home. The journey of the living consciousness within the flow of space to the stream following through the lands returning back to the source.

Not unlike this is our consciousness returning to the Great Sea, of the continuum from which about this life is formed. That drop releasing tension begins that journey but can start the shower that can shake the tree. When the winds of change come this journey begins so within personal choice and destiny we stand each upon the edge of our leaf.

Think of this tension that binds the drop. The cascade to each is a choice and not, for when the winds of change come all in the prophecy in the morning breeze, of a new day. In that moment of sweet embrace, the cool lips of night embracing the warm lips of day, God's breath, the Intake. So as fear of falling, darkness gives way to the bright light of day. The great seduction takes place one drop effects another. We joining in that wondrous journey to where we come.

The place where our sciences of numbers become the poetry of creation, there, this is part of every portion of life, it holds a secret, a prophecy, a truth, a story untold by those that remain holding to the tension, that holds the presence so firmly to that leaf of life. Listen to what the first intake is saying. "A great wind of change is coming into which the tree is taken."

The cascade begins to bring you into a new sense of perception. Truth changes you. Truth affects you, and truth sets you free. It's a natural process both for the animal and the eternal spirit. It's a natural process for you to change the sense of what you thought was real into a true sense of reality. This happens as every memory comes up and passes through the light of truth, which is now the center of your focus. That drop of water is all forms and formless.

At this point, coincidences in the circumstances and events of your life will make sure that everything unfolds for you in just the right way for you to successfully complete your assimilation process. The events of your life will actually aid you. You will experience the secret of life, the secret of eternity.

Viewing reality from the light of truth, all is simple. That is the cause and effect of truth, of light, of enlightenment. It is that mystical state of being where your eternal perception returns, you integrate this knowledge, and all is crystal clear. You are able to perceive it and make sense of reality. It opens the envelope of your perception of reality beyond what you have been taught. Then you know that you are actually a co-creator with that reality.

Are you a human being dreaming about a butterfly or a butterfly dreaming about a human being? We are eternal entities dreaming we are men and women, but we are allowing the dream to change us. We are dreaming purposefully together. This process affects us eternally. We utilize the dream to change us and form us as unique, eternal entities. We no longer view ourselves as insignificant. We experience the profound truth that we are children of God and co-creators with Him in an eternal continuum.

So every lifetime you lived, every seed every egg, every child you could have had, is never lost, but is part of your hall of souls. Somewhere in eternity, you will give birth to them. They will emerge from you, as you emerged from God, through the experience of life. None will be lost. As the first born, you will grow up and create the second born of God. As an adult with your own unique sense of perception, you will stand before a void and say, "Let there be light", unfolding the next ring of children, of life. It is your expression of the divine formula, "to love and be loved". It is the divine sense of personal identity, an eternal species, that will eternally fill the voids with light.

You will need to view eternal reality from a designated point of reference -- Home, your place next to God, your place as his child in the field, in the universes and galaxies that you will inhabit.

As you look at the test tube of reality and the surroundings where you are sitting, as you have been reading or hearing these words, your consciousness clears. You look around and see how you have co-created the reality you are in. Your social, moral, philosophical influences, as well as your likes or dislikes, have created the reality you are viewing. When you perceive that, your natural instinct is to want it to be different, to change it. Perhaps you see dishes scattered around the house and want them in the sink, so you pick them up and carry them to the sink. Just as easily can you begin the process of changing your reality, knowing that it is within your grasp to pick up and change whatever comes to you. Instinctively, from your holographic knowledge, from your memory and your sense of perception, coincidences will appear to amplify this desire, and you will change your life. This process may already have begun occurring in your life. So as you read this, you see the steps you are making in your own pathway and know that you have the responsibility for your reality. This ability isn't beyond your control, but so profoundly within your control, it is often hard to recognize it. It is an open secret.

Changing things will change your future path. So if there are things you want to change in your life, take whatever steps are necessary to get you from where you are to where you want to be. Understand the laws of three-dimensional reality and the conditions that are applied there, but also understand the higher level of reality, the eternal truth. Take the divine formula and begin to modify your behavior, your actions, your reactions, your integration process, and begin to move in the direction you want to go. This will be instinctive because it is the survival of the self. Sometimes you may dislike yourself, feel you can't cope or deal with this reality, because it is so oppressive and the lessons so extensive, but that is simply the price you pay for being here, the tears and laughter, blood and sweat, life and death. You will earn your way by the sweat of your brow. This life is expensive. The cost is high. Yet there comes a moment in your development when you can change it. Understanding this truth makes it all the more powerful for you. Now you will know instinctively you can make decisions that will use coincidences to change the flow of your life, spontaneously changing your future. The doors will swing open. Struggle will cease. Your karmic patterns will end, simply because you now truly realize that fire hurts and you don't need to test that law anymore. So you quit doing that which hurts you. You no longer have to feed off the pain.

When the divine formula is understood, your life and emotions begin to heal, because you can use the truth to put the pieces of yourself back together. You begin the process of rebuilding yourself as you truly are. The angels will bless each piece you put back in the right place, and you will feel reassured. Likewise, each piece you put in the wrong place will be destructive. If you enter into detrimental relationships repetitively and refuse to work out those problems, life will be your hard teacher, eventually urging you back into the light.

You put all your pieces back together by assimilating your eternal self and all your lifetimes without judgment. Then, you pass through a door, kneel at an altar, and know that "All Is Forgiven, Including Yourself", that there is no sin. There is no sin in this life and all its negative aspects are forgiven. There is a perfect grace which enabled you to experience life in the lie, the illusion. Though not eternal, it has eternal consequences, forming your sense of perception through the way you structure your likes, dislikes and judgments. Finally, you perceive morality as a social construct having nothing to do with the eternal truth, although necessary within the illusion. When you learn to deal with a sense of your own immortality, the reality that you are an eternal being, then you are liberated from that sense of judgment and condemnation. In that moment, you become aware of all your lifetimes without judging yourself, because as the eternal entity, the child of God, all the good and bad are just things that contributed to your identity. Standing between the pillars of light and darkness is crystal clarity.

Remember, if you simply perceive truth, it doesn't change anything. What causes the final change in you is not the aloofness of being an observer, but the truth becoming the actual center of your perception of reality. It is not merely perceiving the divine formula, the intent "to love and be loved". It is not through observation, nor by reading this or meditating about that we achieve God's intent. It is by moving into that evolutionary process of actually experiencing the feeling of love and being loved, together with your Creator, and perceiving reality from there. It is not through analyzing or reasoning, but through the wholeness of your own experience.

So you move into truth, and from that point, you view everything else. Then you start to see that you are more loved than you are capable of loving at this point in your existence. You come into a personal realization that God is conscious of you as an individual, numbering every hair on your head, moment by moment. God's consciousness of you as an individual is constant, with no shadow of turning. You know this directly through the experience of feeling His love, an unconditional love, and by returning that love. It is more than mere prayer or worship. You are the expression of His Divine, as it emanates from you. You are loved and you can choose to love. God does not demand you love Him. You are loved whether you love Him or not.

So, experience the truth, perceive it, personalize and integrate it into the sense through which you perceive reality. You are loved, you have always been loved, and you have the capacity to return that, even while you are here. It heals your soul. It gives your life purpose. It begins a communication and communion between you and God. This is possible to you here and now. It gives you the understanding of how precious life is by how precious it feels in the animal's body while you are joined with it. You understand life because you lived and died through it. You understand first hand.

Moving into the center of the circle of light and truth, you flow through and with the cascade. The cascade takes you Home.

Home

Even with the great value of life, with the great preciousness of existence, Home awaits you. It is a place that loves you and exists for the unfolding of your lifetimes, your dreams all unfolding from your heart. It is your desires, unfolding, seen through the eyes of mortal man, seen through the eyes of life, with its temporal needs, wants, hopes, desires, and its frailties. The richness of understanding, like the spectrum of light from the sun, begins to emerge, cascading down as light, with all the different colors flowing from it, flowing together and out, bringing the welcome and the call for you to come Home.

For everyone that passes through the door has a Home, not made by hands, but made by the heart, the mind and the spirit, unfolding outward to meet every eternal need, every eternal desire, to give joy and prosperity to the human experience. At Home, every moment is a new morning, a new day, where the eyes of mortal man perceive eternity. What a divine life awaits you in eternity, always to be alive and to be able to view every moment with this sense of perception that you will have coming from your life on earth into the light of eternity. You will have a million years to sit and think, or to look into a pool and see the universe and galaxies unfold, to see loved ones and memories of the past, to interact with one another throughout eternity, to have every dream and fantasy fulfilled beyond any earthly expectation.

Home is full of all the surprises that wait for you in boxes in the rooms of your mansion. A little, blue pocket knife a little boy wanted to have. All the love and affection and desires of a young teenager from one of your lifetimes sits there on a shelf. Perhaps in a drawer lies the richest treasure of all, the tattered, old Holy Book of a missionary dying on the plains, a reminder of the only thing he had left at the end, and what that lifetime meant.

Home is where the robe is soft, where the garden pathway about the mansion has the lushest ferns, and where the animals that we loved and shared life with can play without fear. Home is where you can see and understand and commune with nature on a million worlds; where friends of all the lifetimes gather and share moments of joy and happiness together; where there is privacy of thought and yet a consciousness of eternity.

Home is where mystical experience and touching into unknown or unexplored realms of reality is the weekend journey of a thousand years. It's taking a vacation on a tropical island you didn't have time to do during a lifetime. It's traveling backwards through time to perceive the crucifixion. The ascent of Allah and the enlightenment of Buddha.

The journey Home is the rising up from physical life, the masses moving forward, the elements of time and space converging. It is all of the elements of existence combining, the coincidence of the shifting of the planets in our solar system, in our galaxies, an element of time and an interaction with God, marked in an alignment of planets.

A pattern forms once again, as it did in ancient times. We stand on the threshold of space and time and see the movement. How slow it seems, yet how quickly it has come. We see the reaction as earth once again is engulfed in non-local light, and light begins to flow backwards from earth into eternity. Flowing backwards, expanding the light outward, each individual drawing back to their eternal self, but with a new sense of perception and understanding of life. We are carried on the wings of time into an adjustment as gentle and as loving as moving into another reality just slightly different from this one, for us to acclimate of our own free will, no matter the length of time. For some it will be a long time, for some short time. Each will make it from first to last, as they proceed on a pathway that will be laid for them by the guidance of the angels and one another, on the journey Home.

Finally, we will emerge to stand in the presence of the Truth, intimately understanding what is the continuum, understanding there is no problem, understanding the truth that all things are present and known. Standing there, we will understand we can go Home and prepare before we have a discourse with the Creator, maybe 100,000 years, maybe a week. It doesn't matter. It's our free will and choice.

Finally, each one stepping forward, and saying thank you, and feeling that love that gave us this life. That is all that is hoped for. That is all that is wished for. With the joy in the eyes of the Creator as we look and we love one another. The Creator's joy is His family, His children, His beloved gathered about Him, unfolding millions upon millions of lives in the continuum. The gift you give back to the Creator is what you gleaned from paying the price of life itself with its many pains and pleasures. You pay that price to understand how precious life is on the level of matter. This gives you a child's sense, a child's understanding, so that as you emerge, you can always view eternity from a great, broad spectrum of perception, personally and intimately. For life is but one thing, the intimate experience with matter, where light has slowed to energy, and energy slows to substance.

Simply put, you can take comfort if you know three things, which really are all wisdom and all knowledge: knowing where you came from, where you are, and where you're going. You come from God and are born His child. You're here, in the physical existence. And you're going to go Home. This reality is actually a hologram that is created by light, just for you, just for your experience. It exists just so the children of God can have a sense of perception, an understanding of love and how precious life is. How meaningful this reality is. To know how the animals must feel having a sense of life and death, of beginning and ending, having that intimate experience, is what this journey is. The reward isn't the treasure at the end of the journey. The prize is the journey itself.

The answer to one question answers it all: "Why?" The answer to this question that came before eternity and goes on through eternity is, "Because I Love". The Creator loves us. He created love, and He gives it. It is His definition. Love may become twisted by some who anguish over it and can't interpret love any other way but pain. But that only defines their need to experience this life in order to gain a true understanding of God's definition of love.

In eternity, we are all healed, we are all made whole. Yet you can be every fraction of what you have ever been. You can experience every dream, every hope, every fantasy. It is part of the pathway Home.

Home, decorated with the things of life, with simple, earthly things, is a wonderment to angels. What's a spear? What's a feather? Why do these words, written on a piece of paper placed on the wall, have so much meaning? Why would you labor so long? You will turn to the angels and say, "Come touch and share the memory of my life. Come share the moment of a vision in my darkness, when I saw no light, and my hopes were gone. Feel how I reached out beyond any limit that I could perceive and found God standing and waiting, and when I returned, this feather was laying at my feet." The angel wraps himself in that very moment. Is the angel present here, or is the angel just present there? It doesn't matter. It really doesn't matter. It's the same moment.

Your pathway is the pathway that none other can follow. It is your pathway alone, unique from everyone else's. For no one else can be you, but only you.

It is an interesting thing, as many find themselves saying, "Oh, I am not worthy of such a gift." Yet a gift from God, freely given, is given to all, with the least given the most. You can give all that you have in eternity to another and never be diminished. Another world, another binary galaxy, another universe can be a gift that you give to another, but wouldn't have the value of your love. You will want to change it to fit them, with every dream they have ever had and every lifetime they have ever lived, dutifully recording everything that they ever touched, what they loved or desired or hoped for being represented in some way. As it was done for you, so will you do for your children. What if they should journey through their personal experiences too, or be born with all your knowledge, with your experiences as their memories, and you will see how they mature and grow? It will be interesting to see your Children's Homes.

Allow yourself to shift and assimilate. Look at the vastness of the unfolding of your lives, look with wonderment, look into the eyes of your eternal self, to that part that you know is forever you. Let yourself float out, out of the envelope of life, out of the safe perimeters of the body, and out into the wholeness of eternity. Let your heart sing, your spirit travel on the winds of time, dancing through the light of eternity, diving into a pool of light, swimming through the essence of being, emerging and flying into the stars, leaving a trail of light behind you. Visit worlds and galaxies, feeling the joy of meeting and sharing your very being with others, and sharing the lives they have lived with their unique sense of perception. Flicker into another place and another time, walking along the beach in a time of the past, standing in the crowd at a market in ancient history. Fly through the stars, going to the presence of the Creator, remembering life on earth as a medicine man or shaman, hearing the flowing procession of others moving with you.

A cloud of golden light begins to gather, a special inspiration coming out from the Creator, bathing you in the light of love and wisdom, refreshing and renewing your life. Angels circle about you just to feel and be in your presence, to feel that radiance of life that you've lived, creating an illumination around you, your own shining glory radiating out from wherever you are. Gently, you move backwards into life and all its experiences, all flowing together, as you stand in the presence of the Creator. As your own voice joins with the chorus of all those gathering, a vibrational sound will flow together with the Creator's, marking a spectacular moment in time, a moment that will last throughout eternity, a combined life force going out in every direction, the energy of love and compassion.

Quietly, gently, you move and shift to the body, to the flesh. You stand and sit, walk and crawl, laugh and cry on earth and in life. Yet you feel the movement of the stars, and hear ancient words flow from your tongue.

The Final Chapter

You've made a magnificent journey. As you've read these words, as you've looked at ancient mysteries, the insights of the metaphysical realm and the laws of physics and quantum physics, looked at your own personal growth and experiences, you come now to the final chapter. It is the final chapter of this book, but also the final chapter of life and its multitude of experiences.

What lies beyond this moment in time? Look into this moment, where you exist now, where you are experiencing life, its joy, its sorrows, its disappointments, its frustrations, its passions, its tears and its laughter. Contemplating all that is beyond here, all that is here, and all that has been, look into the moment of now. You are reading these words. Perhaps they say things you already know, truths you have already gained, and they have not told you anything you didn't know somewhere inside yourself.

Now move beyond these words. You can see the greater truth unfold for the future, for a battle rages during this time in life. It is an ancient battle where fear and greed fight love and hope. There is only one outcome, and it is beyond this moment of now. No matter what course mankind takes, we will eventually move out of this realm.

Following the path of fear and greed, the apocalypse of natural disasters, war and famine looms large. Yet this apocalypse will force mankind to find a higher way. Following the path of hope and love, the same inevitable end comes, but through a different way. Through a loving, gentle way, man passes into the millennium which prepares those for eternity.

Through your personal experiences of love, you learn of your eternal Home. Moving through life, you learn the deep understanding that you are loved by your Father, that you are loved eternally. Within that understanding is a reward of love, hope, comfort and security.

Within the consciousness of fear and greed, you feel unworthy, undeserving, that you have not done enough. You cannot accept yourself. You struggle to gain through the illusion what is waiting for you in eternity. And in that struggle, love and hope elude you. From fear and greed, you offer a kind of superficial love, duty and labor. Even with the knowledge and ability to cause mountains to be moved, and having infinite knowledge of all things, you still do not have what you seek. You miss it. You do not realize that the necessary offering is the true offering of the heart shining through your motive not your intent and deeds. When the offering is from the heart, perception and judgment are not clouded, and truth gives manifestation to your motive. You then learn that to love others is to understand and accept their ability to receive love, to accept their sense of perception and interpretation of love as precious, unique, and a part of their eternal identity. You offer your love, expanding it to encompass the sense of perception that each unique, individual has. It does not mean that you agree or disagree, or you respond or don't respond with them.

Unfolding from that sense of loving and being loved, in that atmosphere of hope and comfort, will be a thousand year reign. The spirit of mankind emerges from life to a much higher, greater sense of man's own being, that which man will be in eternity.

You have come to the final chapter. You are loved with the total love of your Creator. If you are not conscious of that love, take comfort. By all that is true, you are loved. Your expression of love may be fraught with every imaginable curse of psychology or personal debauchery, fear, hatred or anger. Your fear and your anger exist because you don't feel the love that surrounds you. You hate because you think that which you really want is not given. Love is always with you. You are loved in a unique way. Take comfort from these words, you that do not know the deep comfort of the truth of love itself, of its creation of this reality and life, you that only know the bitterness of the physical, emotional and spiritual pain that you feel in this reality. Know the hope that this pain comes to an end. It comes to an end and is completed. The eternal truth, the truth that gave this creation reality, you will appreciate more than all others whose path is not as difficult as yours. Your reward will be great in the love and richness you will experience, a love designed uniquely for you, awaiting you at a moment in the future. Allow yourself to unfold, and allow it to unfold for you. Allow the truth of your eternal identity to unfold within your consciousness. You are an eternal entity, embodied in flesh, but you are not limited by life and the constrictions of that body. You are eternal, and you shall find love, joy and happiness that is unique to you. You will feel love as an infant within the womb. You will feel love as a child that goes through the pain of birth and feels life for the first time. You will feel love from nurturing arms. You will feel love of family, friends and loved ones caring for you. You will feel the liberty to express love and the liberty to receive it.

How will this moment of emergence come for you? Will it be through understanding the quantum physics that bind all forces together, or through seeing eternal reality itself as the great example? Will it be through understanding that you express the divine formula in your deepest desire "to love and be loved"? Will it be through your realization that you desire to be loved by others as you truly are, rather than through trying to be what you think others want you to be? Will it be from your acceptance of the truth, preparing the pathway of your consciousness to enter into eternity, into the great spectrum of reality beyond this life? Will it be from your acceptance that this earthly life is the illusion and the dream? No matter what your path is, the reality of love in its eternal sense will bring us to a place where we can greet one another with love that is unconditional and non-judgmental, revealing the profound beauty in each aspect and action of every individual. We will experience that same love for ourself and know that it is the same love God has for each, as you, His precious child. This is the gift you wear as the Mantel as you ascend to the Presence.

At this final chapter in the school of our life on this planet, look deeply into what all of this means to you here in the present, and to the physical consciousness of mankind. Two roads are parting, both coming to the same end. One is fear and greed, reaping as much as it can gather for itself with no regard for anything else. You can see how we have traveled on this very road in what we have experienced in our own lives, how it has brought us here. It has brought us here as much as the love and hope we have experienced. We are just sharing a small dream about what it is like to be in the body of an animal, to feel the pain, the heartache and the pleasure, to have victory and defeat, to have hope, passion, desire, and anguish. We are dreaming of life at the level of light where it slows to a place called earth (Gaia). And when you awaken, you will remember you were here, walking down that pathway, finding in your dream our true character.

The master of this insight, the worker or the enlightened one, has always laid down his life for God, to help Him guide the lives of others into truth, light and love, maintaining God's covenant with man. The masters have served mankind continuously. Their numbers are great. It may be that you stand within that group yourself even unaware. For those of you that do stand within this midst, within the temples. Within your private life, standing alone within the light of truth and love in whatever you do in your service to Him is what you do to others. You may be called from this life experience at any moment, so that the divine formula can unfold. The prophecies have proclaimed it, and the time approaches when a new and unique pattern is formed for this human race.

The subatomic universe is the same as the cosmic galaxies of stars. It is the same fractal pattern. The future of mankind unfolds naturally, as it unfolds in everyone's life, in your life. Mankind's battle is the same battle as yours, the battle of love and hope versus fear and greed. To experience this struggle is the prize. It is simply the way that it is. It is based in the hope of mankind to love and be loved. It is your hope to love and be loved. This is man's deepest desire and your deepest desire. Its manifestation is within the spectrum of perception and is unique to each individual, unique to you.

The pattern you manifest is just as true and real to all as it is to you. What can you do to change the course of events for yourself? What can you do to change the course of events for mankind? Simply open your heart "to love and be loved", to God's unconditional, non-judgmental love. If it's a smile, if it's a kind word for another, if it's that unselfish, charitable act which you simply do spontaneously, it is the greatest victory you can give to your brothers and sisters. It is the greatest triumph throughout eternity.

For in your dream of life, you were loving. In your dream of life, you learned that you were, you just were. In your dream of life, you discovered the truth and lived the final chapter. In your dream of life, you awakened and found the way Home.

Epilogue

This is how it begins. Once again, a unique story begins to unfold. The earth is entering a unique position once again in the heavens. Circles are now complete, emotional cycles have rotated, karmas have come full circle, life experiences, teachings, all coming to an apex once again. The planets continue their journey. Around us the stars, the Moon, Mercury, Mars, Jupiter, Venus, Saturn, Neptune, and Pluto, are beginning to align. Years ago, a conjunction of planets heralded the beginning of this time. Now we see the first stages of something new, the heralding of a new age on earth, the age of enlightenment. Man is charting this course of history. The vibrations of life, our subjective reality, the hologram of our existence in this reality is changing, preparing, unwinding. The sun is rising and setting, the Moon the night light of God's love. An infinite voyage of journeys has been experienced on earth. But repetitively in these cycles, in the age of the mind, other societies through the periods of time, have come to this moment. They, too, built advanced cultures and came to the epitome of greatness in their technology, the science of the stars, both astrology and astronomy, the art of healing, and religious and spiritual worship. Their government and religion also became corrupt. They, too, came to a certain place in time where a point of enlightenment, of truth, unfolded. They, too, passed from this dimensional reality to the next. Mankind prepares once again to make that journey as the cycles of time begin to unfold.

We are not far, not far at all, from Home, a place just beyond this moment in time and space, a distant shore that we can remember. It is a memory, a quiet, safe place inside the heart and inside the soul that gives us strength as we climb mountains and walk through the valley. There is purpose in our journey, and it is not simply the reward we gain in arriving home. It is the experience of the journey itself, the planting and harvesting of our own being. Now, within that journey, the children of God are emerging from their childhood and coming into their own. As we touch and are touched by the love of God in all, we are gathering up the treasure of our lives, and are being welcomed into eternity. We are merely going Home.
