

The Ascension of the Planetary Consciousness

An overview of a Planetary Leap Towards the Light
As transmitted through Starbuilders

Third Expanded Edition

Copyright 1994 and 1996 by Starbuilders Publishing.
All Rights Reserved.

PDF version by Rado

Permission is granted to distribute this book, either whole or in part,
if both these conditions are met:

- 1. It will not be sold -- only given away or distributed freely, and
- 2. The following credit is given:

Copyright 1994 & 1996, by Starbuilders/ULC
www.starbuilders.org

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Part I

Prologue
Acknowledgments
Introduction
A Brief History of Starbuilders
The Federation of Light
Who Am I
What On Earth Am I doing Here?
Can I Go Now?
How Did I Get Here?
How Do I Do It?
The Dimensions
What Is the Ascension, Anyway?
An Ascension Scenario
Other Planetary Ascension Programs
Heaven On Earth Is Already Here
Buttons
Instincts
The Planetary Consciousness
The Importance of a Vision
File: Save/Tear Down/Build
Allowance
Three Worlds to Live In
The Illusion of Good and Evil
Transformations
Questions and Explorations
Walking the Earth as a Master
Pillars

Part II

Living a Miraculous Life
Onward to the Fiction: An Abridged Cosmic Tale
The Second Coming of Christ
Update
The Unconditional Ascension
Unconditional Ascension Update
Greetings from Aldin
Eternity in a Moment
Exploring the Planetary Consciousness
Directions of Consciousness
Varieties of Ascension
Embodying the Unconditional Ascension
Liberation and the Unconditional Ascension

Prologue

The Ascension of a Planetary Consciousness is at once an evolutionary "process" and a "flash point" event. We can use the analogy of a caterpillar transmuting into a butterfly to describe this Event. The "process" aspect is similar to the caterpillar's weaving and inhabiting the cocoon. The "flash point" aspect represents the moment when the beautiful winged creature emerges from the cocoon - the Ascension Event.

Using this analogy, we would compare what is happening in the world today as the cocoon phase. Other-dimensional forces are wrapping the planet in Light. Planet earth and her inhabitants are undergoing radical change. After these forces have completed the transformational work, the "butterfly" - ascended humanity - will emerge. This "flash point" may appear as a flash of Light.

This book describes aspects of both the "process" and the "flash point" event. However, what is more important now is not the goal itself (the "flash point"), but the process that we are undergoing. (Actually, the "flash point" is a part of the "process." They are one. The division is artificial, but helpful in presenting this model.)

How do we know that this Event is underway? Is there any hard evidence or proof? Many ideas are circulating about the extraordinary events of the day. Each has its own logic and proof.

In our picture of reality, the only "evidence" that we have is this: We are here. Millions of E.T.'s and Angelic Masters are in human form. Billions more are working from other dimensions. We are Planetary Transition Team specialists. So, why else would we be here? On a Mission such as this, we don't seek outside authorities for proof. The only way to know, is to go inside. Besides, the only ones who could confirm this view would be other Transition Team Members.

The Planetary Consciousness is now supporting and inexorably moving towards the "butterfly reality"; the "caterpillar reality" is dying. Earth's next step is to exalt herself, humanity, and all her other life forms. We are here to be part of this. What follows is a Vision of this divine transformation.

Acknowledgments

Millions of Planetary Transition Team members are in human bodies today. We thank them and acknowledge their work. We also gratefully acknowledge all other wonderful beings we have met (at one level or another). Our love and support goes to you as you move through your life, manifesting your Vision. You are not alone; we are one.

Introduction

The theme of this book is the Ascension of Planet Earth. It contains many different models of reality. We've received many of these insights directly from our off-planet sources and from our spirit. We have adapted some models and languaging from other Planetary Transition Teams.

We are continually changing and upgrading our pictures of reality. Sometimes we revise them completely. In proper timing, Spirit provides more details. Our view of the word and of our cosmic wholeness continues to expand. Like this, the information contained within this book is like a snapshot of our current perspectives. Tomorrow, the pictures will have expanded and deepened/heightened. Part II describes many radical leaps in vision.

The Collective Unconscious of the human race has a premonition. It knows that something of planetary importance is under way. We believe this something is The Ascension. Further, we see it as an unfolding process. It unfolds in organic, ordered phases. Using the analogy of a growing plant, we can see Phase One as the planting of seed. Phase Two would be the subterranean sprouting; Phase Three could be the sprout penetrating the surface, and so on. The flowering of the plant represents The Ascension itself.

Part I

A Brief History of Starbuilders

We established Starbuilders on February 17, 1990. Its founders, Michael, Khatrie, and Emmanuel, were each involved in different aspects of the New Age. Michael had practiced astrology for 20 years. Additionally, a Great Master of the Rosicrucian Order taught him metaphysics for 14 years. Khatrie lived in an ashram for 15 years studying Eastern mysticism. She also worked in drafting, accounting, and computer programming. Emmanuel taught Kundalini yoga in Holland, lived on a kibbutz in Israel, and was a therapist for the brain injured in Boston, Massachusetts.

Shortly after forming Starbuilders, Michael and Khatrie began channeling a variety of entities. They also produced several "Psychic Power Tools." They made these exotic instruments out of various crystals, copper, and ceramic. Then, on March 10, 1993, the first team of walk-ins arrived. Zal-Zen walked into Michael's body, Zol-taire into Khatrie's. Through this team emerged the first series of fifth-dimensional technologies, "The Orion Ascension Technologies."

When they completed these technologies, it marked the end of the first team's assignment. On August 18, 1993, Zal and Zol walked out; the second team - Malenchen and Maruna - walked in. Maruna embodies the Essence of Divine Jubilation. She functions as a Free Radical Code Breaker. Malenchen embodies the Essence of Divine Compassion. He functions as an E. T. Alchemist. This team produced two more sets of technologies, "The E.T. Alchemy Series" and "The Miracle Path," which completed the techno-trilogy ("The Orion Ascension Technologies").

Having projected their consciousnesses into human forms, they had to live, like everyone, in the current third-dimensional drama. Part of their Mission was to remain centered in their spiritual truth and to face the "manifested illusions" presented by the Planetary Consciousness.

Other aspects of the Mission include (a) serving others, (b) sharing energy, technologies and insights with other masters, and (c) staying in Integrity.

The Federation of Light

The beings at Starbuilders are emissaries for The Federation of Light, a council of over 1,000 E.T. masters. This council sources from different dimensions, various locations in space, and points in time. When in human form, they function as portals. Transdimensional energies, models of reality, and technologies enter the Earth Plane through them.

The Federation recently participated in another successful Ascension. This Ascension took place on a planet similar to earth, located in the Orion Sector. Malenchen and Maruna worked there during the pre-transition phase. Zal and Zol were at the Ascension. They saw the birth of a star.

The Federation of Light is one of many Councils involved in Earth's Ascension Process. One of The Federation's specialties is to create integrated technologies of consciousness. These technologies aid us to embody our Divinity rapidly. They develop a solid, fifth-dimensional, energetic foundation.

Who Am I?

"Who am I" is an old question; yet, how you answer it shapes your experiences. This idea is simple to understand. For example, if you picture yourself as unworthy, that is the image you're going to project. Physically, your body language and posture will reflect this. On the emotional level, you'll be insecure. You will have difficulty meeting challenges gracefully. Mentally, you'll be prone to rationalize. Many defensive mechanisms will be in place. (Conversely, as a strategy, you might project the opposite image: strong and confident.) The world will believe that you're unworthy, because the universe rearranges itself to accommodate your picture of reality. (You also might project this image onto others and feel that others are unworthy.)

A workable option in the identity game now exists. You can redefine yourself. So, where do you look for alternative identities? They are within yourself. Being honest with yourself is the golden key to finding the answers.

First, decide if you see yourself as a human being. If you feel you are human, and maybe something else as well, then maybe you're an E.T., Angelic, or other dimensional master. If this feels true, and you acknowledge it, new realms of possibility immediately open. You can now expand beyond the limits of a strictly human lifestyle. The part that you play in the New World can now unfold, because your new identity can sustain these new realities. "I am an E.T. master, therefore I AM."

Whatever you're fascinated with, you get more of. Why not focus on your divine aspects, rather than your fractured sense of self? This new focus invites the universe to expand and unify your identity.

What on Earth Am I Doing Here?

You've explored the possibility that you might be a multidimensional being. Now, you might ask, "Why did I come to this place? Yes, the earth is beautiful and all that, but, I don't know; the systems seem to be all messed up." The systems aren't really messed up, though. The Planetary Consciousness has designed them to function that way. These systems offer us the opportunity to experience suffering, adventure, limitation, emotion, and separation. They're perfect for that. The Planetary Consciousness, however, did not eternally etch these systems and perspectives in stone. Systems transform and evolve.

Our presence on the planet indicates that planet Earth is beginning to transform in a major way. Let's face it: Earth is not the vacation spot of the galaxy. A karmic system is in place. We're here to work and participate in this transition - the shifting from one reality base to another. Does this sound true to you?

Are you here by mistake? You've suffered a lot and sacrificed much of your truth to survive. Or, perhaps you decided to fight the system (result: suffering). Shutting down or fighting are both normal responses when living in a Limitation system.

Once you become aware of your Mission, a higher form of energy begins to enter your "ground crew" (the mental, emotional and physical bodies). The universe provides you with this new energy and information, because that's what it takes to do the Mission! You probably already have the job skills you need to do your work. If you don't have the skills, however, spirit will give them to you. You'll have whatever skill you need.

God did not leave you stranded. You're not alone or forgotten. There are no mistakes. You're a cosmic being on a cosmic mission, and your Mission is happening now.

Can I Go Now?

You wanted to be here, remember? So, why would you want to leave so soon? To avoid suffering? To escape from "government oppression"? How about, to get away from those people who bother you?

Part of the discomfort stems from being socialized. You start to believe that Earth reality must be THE reality. Your reality becomes less real to you. You feel that, somehow, you missed something along the way. But, you haven't. This "something" is internal; it's the real you. Once the real you - the I AM - begins to manifest, your perspective expands. You won't want to leave. If it's the pain aspect that turns you off to earth life, well, you knew this before you arrived. (And I quote, "Earth? No problem.")

Life on planets such as earth can be intense and painful. We come from where suffering is unheard of, separation is unimaginable, and unhappiness is nonexistent. Why should we leave and come to a so-called civilized place, where beings injure and insult one another daily? There are plenty of reasons: it's our job. Because, we are loving beings. Because, for any of us to return to the Source, we all must return. We also love our work, and we love everyone. We know that this Mission is an adventure. Our only choice is to follow our spirits.

Being here is a holy act. It demands that we go through a lot during the pre-wake-up "preparatory stage." However, once we're awake, the suffering feels like it happened in another lifetime, like a bad dream. We can bless that suffering.

You begin to focus your attention on living your life as a master. You let go of wanting to escape from the dreaded Planet X (Earth). This changes your life. Painful impressions about your life - once hard to face - melt away. Now you can look at them, instead of fighting or denying them. Once you realize that you are an immortal consciousness in human form, you find no need to escape. You are here on a Holy Mission, and you bring your beauty with you wherever you go.

How Did I Get Here?

How do E.T.'s, Angelics, and humans get into human bodies. We at Starbuilders are "walk-ins." Walking in implies that we were outside these bodies and then slipped inside, making them our home. To be more precise, however, we are "project-ins." We are projecting our consciousness from our higher-dimensional bodies into these human forms. We "source" from the seventh dimension. (Our light body lives on that dimension.) This higher-dimensional source/self is the I AM.

"Crawl-ins" (or "wake-ups") are E.T. or Angelic masters who arrive on the planet through the birth process. Like walk-ins, they source from another place, as well. Their light bodies are still "at home" in the other dimension, but they project their consciousness into a human about to be born. They gain a "dual citizenship." They are human and other dimensional. All E.T.'s and Angelics are "project-ins."

So, how about humans? Human beings are "project-ins" that source directly from their spirit, not from a light body. However, this does not limit their spirit's experience to this planet. Almost everyone is multidimensional. That is, their spirits project into a multitude of forms that exist throughout the span of spacetime, dimensions and universes.

While we're describing how we arrived here, we might as well mention "How Do We Get Out." On Earth, the image of the ominous Grim Reaper tells the tale. When our time is up, Death comes a callin' and strikes us down. This fear-based image does not agree with our picture of "how it is." Instead, when it comes time to leave, we "project out." Now in Earth's history, it may not be necessary to "project out" at all. In our version of the Ascension, after the planet ascends, no one dies. Our bodies shift from dense, material forms into Light forms, but we don't have to leave for this to happen.

How Do I Do It?

Could it be that you are enough? Is it possible that being is not only an acceptable life style, but a way to fulfill your Mission as well? Consider this: You are a multidimensional being. Energetic links exist between the "you" on Earth and the "you" on the other dimensions. Imagine that through these links, or passage ways, energies travel.

Consider that the human form can transmit these energies into the Earth plane. Consider that the planet is mutating human bodies, enabling them to send increasing amounts of this energy. When these other-dimensional energies impact this dimension, they can use it to mutate. In that sense, being here is enough. So, what do you do while this is happening - sit around and vegetate?

The prime directive for this Movement of Consciousness is to "follow your spirit without hesitation." By following your spirit, you'll know what to do in every moment. If, in any particular moment, you aren't receiving that information, you take a break until you receive your next "orders."

Most beings seek outside authorities for information about what to do. They go to the experts. However, in True Reality, outside authorities don't exist. (True Reality is what is real for you - the "how it is" - on the dimension from which you source.) Your spirit is the only authority.

So, being is enough. You relax to the point where you can hear your spirit more clearly, and do what it directs. You find there is no "Right Way" to do it. (This can loosen up your attitude. We judge because we think we know "The Right Way" to do it.) And then what? As a being who is here to co-create Heaven on Earth with other Masters, you dedicate your life to following your spirit. Spirit reveals the many aspects of your Mission one step at a time. And before you can say, "Heaven on Earth" in your native tongue, you'll be serving the Mission in a most efficient way.

It's that simple; you start, get the gist of it, and voila!

The Dimensions

We can intellectually divide the universe in many ways. One way is to slice it into different dimensions. For our purposes, we will describe three dimensions, numbers three, four, and five. In Part II, we will share our views on the other dimensions, numbers six through twelve.

The third dimension is the material plane. Human bodies, trees, air, the oceans, all belong to this realm. This "what-you-see-is what-you-get" dimension operates linearly, with a strict sense of spacetime. Perceptual lenses (eyes, ears, touch, taste, and smell) filter out more information than they allow in. Limitation systems function best at this level. Most of humanity and the Old Civilization base their lives on this reality.

The fourth dimension is another name for the astral plane. It is where magic, both white and black, happens. The more Personal Power that you have, the higher your position is in the hierarchy. Forms, including spacetime, are more fluid in this twilight dimension. Beings easily "morph" from one form into another. This gray dimension is moral: You are either for Good or for Evil. You fight for one or the other. The battle for souls is popular here. As you might expect, The Dark Forces dwell here. Find purgatory or limbo in the darker regions; in the darkest, find hell.

The fifth dimension is the dimension of Light. People who have had near-death experiences call it Heaven. They describe it as the Light at the end of the tunnel. In this vast plane, the impulse of spirit gives us the motive to act. There is great comradery here. Joy, harmony, and truth are a given. All are aware of their immortal identity. Everyone is holy, because spirit flows unrestrictedly through them.

Enemies don't exist on this dimension. We have no battles to fight. There is nothing to prove or win. A different kind of excitement and purpose exists. In every moment, we are in ecstasy to be alive, as we explore the wonders of a loving and miraculous universe.

What is The Ascension, Anyway?

Ascensions happen to people, cultures, planets, galaxies, and universes. What interests us is the planetary variety, because that's why we're here. (Earth won't ascend because we're here; We're here because it's going to ascend.)

Ascensions can happen overnight, depending on Who's Involved. Today there are many versions of the ascension event. The trick is to find the one that sounds true, and live your life as such. You've probably heard the popular versions, so we're going to share an E.T. version. It goes like this:

The Ascension is the conscious, evolutionary jump of the Planetary Consciousness (and its inhabitants) from one dimension to another. Planetary ascensions affect everyone and everything on the planet - big time.

Planetary ascensions are so radical that when one approaches, those who are identifying with the soon-to-be-outdated reality begin to feel uneasy. "The End is near!" In a way, the end is near. The old way is passing. However, if you aren't attached to the old reality, then The End is not the end - it's The Beginning. Bad news is good news is no news: Ascensions happen all the time, all over the universe. Now, the Force of Evolution has scheduled Planet Earth to transform into Earth Star. Earth Star is a fifth-dimensional form.

An Ascension Scenario

Test flight: The forces of evolution are wrapping the planet in a cocoon of transforming Light. The Light, which comes from transdimensional regions, enlightens the planetary body and the inhabitants, too. Much like the cocoon spun by a humble, crawling caterpillar, this Light web marks the end of one way of life. It signals the beginning of a beautiful and glorified existence. The "before and after" realities hardly resemble one another.

For humans living a caterpillar life, they must have a deep change in attitude. They must break their old habits to make room for the new: "You don't pour new wine into old containers." Attachment to form becomes a big source of grief, because the Caterpillar forms are passing away.

Energy levels increase. Those aligned to the Caterpillar World start to scramble: The sky is falling! Those who can't flow and expand with these new levels become excited, anxious, more fearful, and even suicidal.

Non-spiritual systems begin to crumble. Part of the job of Planetary Transition Team members, however, is to act as "buffers." We help balance and stabilize these incoming energies.

Now, imagine when the Planetary Consciousness emerges from its cocoon of Light. All "caterpillars" who have been preparing themselves for this moment consciously let go of their old "caterpillar" forms. They watch and experience the miracle of themselves transforming into cosmic "butterflies"! We can't imagine the thrill of this.

(Yogis spend their lives preparing themselves so they die consciously. They are fully awake when their body dies, and their consciousness exits through the Crown chakra. The Ascension experience, though, isn't about consciously leaving the body. It's about remaining conscious when the body transforms into Light. That's why identifying with our immortal nature is helpful. If, at the time of the shift, we're acting as if we're mortal, we might do what a mortal would do: die.)

Other Planetary Ascension Programs

We live in a universe that will rearrange itself to accommodate our picture of reality. The universe is amazing. It allows everyone to play out their pictures simultaneously, including Ascension pictures. (A story exists that says the Ascension happened 500 years ago.) So, let's explore some other Ascension probabilities from a dimensional perspective.

Third-dimensional versions usually say that, after the Ascension, materialistic Earth will remain. The inhabitants will return to a "Garden of Eden." This happens after a Purge of corrupt systems and people.

The Saved are spared death in several ways: (1) By being in the right place at the right time, (2) by aliens beaming them into spaceships, or (3) by owning many guns and supplies. (There is the chance for a Hi-Tech Heaven on Earth, as well. No Ascension is necessary.)

Add a fourth-dimensional twist, and we can expect strange phenomena. Dead people (the Saved) climb from their graves and rise into the sky. Deities appear, and glorious cities descend from the sky. We usually describe The Purge as The Armageddon: the bad guys finally get what's coming to them. This represents the beginning of eternal suffering or happiness, depending if you've been good or bad. Believing in the True God could mean salvation.

Here's a quick and easy fifth-dimensional possibility. A powerful being (who happens to be in the neighborhood) points its "finger" at the planet, causing the planet to ascend automatically into Light.

Heaven on Earth Is Already Here

Or, "Did I miss something or what?"

From a perspective unaffected by the spacetime veil, seeing into the future isn't a problem. From that viewpoint, ascended Earth is already in place. She will show her bright, shining face at the right moment. (In the "Cocoon" Ascension model, this futuristic view implies that you are already the butterfly - just currently in caterpillar form.) Practically speaking, what does this have to do with anything?

For us, it's good information to have. We can say, "Great job! Good Work!" to each other, even before we finish our job. We can relax and let spirit and the off-planet teams do whatever they need to do. Now, we work without rushing or having deadlines to meet.

If it's a done deal, then why struggle? Besides, the Divine Plan is in charge. If you can't trust the Divine Plan, you might as well worry.

This picture of reality has another advantage. You approach third- and fourth-dimensional phenomena from a different angle. Instead of fighting or avoiding unpleasant events, you see problems as dense fog, shrouding the True Reality of fifth-dimensional Earth.

If this sounds true for you, and you start to live that truth, the universe will rearrange itself to accommodate that picture of reality. You'll be more relaxed about your Mission and less attached to results. (The results have already resulted.) Experiencing more ease, you follow your spirit with greater precision.

But, what if the Ascension doesn't happen? Who says the universe can't change its mind? We don't dictate the fate of planets; we love and serve them the best we can.

In the end, being attached to the goal of the Ascension is the same as being attached to any other goal; it causes suffering.

Buttons

These Buttons are hypothetical, internal switches. When we press them, we act like robots. External circumstances usually move us to push these Buttons.

Buttons are our socialized or biological responses to everyday situations. Once activated, the option of following our spirit is no longer available. The Dark Forces use them to their advantage. (Follow your Buttons without hesitation.) Here is a partial listing of Buttons that we've seen and explored.

* The Agony and The Ecstasy Button

Have you ever stepped on the gas to "make the light," and then zipped through the intersection? Have you become frantic when you've lost your keys and then felt relief when you've found them? These are two examples of "the Agony and Ecstasy." The tension that you create to "make the light" or to "find your keys" are the Agony aspects of this Button. You feel Ecstasy when you drive through the intersection before the light turns red or find your keys. But, Agonizing doesn't make the light stay green: You'll either make it or you won't. It doesn't help you find your keys. This drama is artificial. This roller coaster ride goes in circles; after it's over, you're back where you started.

* The Crime and Punishment Button

On the third and fourth dimensions, committing crimes and punishing criminals are an integral part of the scenery. Every institution in these dimensions has crime and ways to deal with it. Even when you judge someone, you imply that they've committed a crime of some sort. You punish the wrongdoer (that you have mentally convicted) with the psychic force of your judgment. On the fifth dimension and above, however, no one punishes anyone.

* The "I Want" Button

This implies conditional happiness: "I'll be happy if. . ." We limit our happiness with rigid parameters. The Personal Will loves to use this Button.

* The "I Don't Want," or, "Do Not disturb" Button

This Button is similar to the "I Want" Button. Both reject what spirit is offering in Current Reality.

* The "Look at Me, I'm. . ." Button

The ego loves this Button. It says, "Hey, I'm cool [smart/having a great time]." It allows you to explore empty space.

* The "I'm Afraid" Button

This Button has multiple uses. It can make you feel weak, helpless, powerless, or like a victim.

* The "Pushing" Button

When you think that you have to push to get the results that you want, the Pushing Button is on. This lets us know that the Personal Will is acting.

* The "Magnify" Button

When life isn't intense enough, hit the Magnify Button. Exaggerate. Lie a little to make an insignificant event appear important. Or, you can blow up a slight hurt into a major injustice.

* The "I'm Right (you're wrong)" Button

For immediate separation, press this Button. Want to make something wrong? Be Right (like righteousness). This also implies there is a "right way that it is." Taking a stand for your truth isn't the same as being right.

* The "I'm Unworthy"

Stop everything! How can you efficiently co-create Heaven on Earth with other masters if you're unworthy?

* The "Payback (or, 'Revenge')" Button

When we vent dark anger, the Payback Button is on. Payback guarantees an enemy, and that we leave the Oneness space. It happens when we take things personally: A victim thing. This personifies Karmic consciousness.

* The "It's Mine" Button

This reflects the illusion that we can own something; yet, we don't even own our bodies. Everything is on loan from the universe. Attachment to persons, places, and objects can be a source of pain and disillusion.

* The "I'm a Victim" Button

This creates struggle and defensive/offensive behavior. We find victims in the third and fourth dimensions. On the fifth dimension (and above), everyone knows that we are all immortal beings.

Instincts

Limitation systems allow you to do this: Not follow your spirit. At least that's the illusion they support. One of the mechanisms that support this illusion is "instincts." The Planetary Consciousness programs instincts into the cells of most animal species, including humans. The "Survival," "Sexual," "Territorial," and "Hierarchical" instincts are the prominent ones.

A survival instinct (associated with the Root Chakra) allows you to experience the fear of becoming extinct. A shot of the bio-chemical adrenalin into the bloodstream gives you the jolt.

In general, the sexual instinct (Second Chakra) makes males and females try to attract one another. They reproduce. This keeps the game going.

Related to the survival and sexual instincts is the need to control territory. You need your space to feel secure in and to gather food (survive), and to mate. This instinct projects itself into groups: home, state, and country. If, however, we call these areas "our place," then the rest of the universe must belong to someone else.

Hierarchy - one's level in the pecking order - is a Third Chakra concern. It concerns personal power. If you can dominate others, then you can eat first, have the best space and mate, and get paid more.

We can agree to limit ourselves to the parameters of our instincts. Most people do. If we do this, the universe will make this real for us. When we're busy playing out a planetary hallucination, how can we follow our spirit? We can only follow one master at a time.

The point, however, is not to "kill" our instincts. They're just mechanisms. We can watch them in action. Instead, we can act on what our spirit directs. This moves us one step closer to who we really are.

As we stand at the gate of the New Civilization, we practice not identifying with these biological mechanisms: Light Bodies don't have biological instincts.

The Planetary Consciousness

Everything that you can see (except objects in outer space), feel, smell, hear, or taste are products of the Planetary Consciousness. The trees, oceans, and all earth life are creations of this great consciousness. Even the "sixth sense" is a gift from the Earth.

Life on Planet Earth is a co-creative process. Your consciousness projects into a human form and dances with the Planetary Consciousness. Historically, Earth has provided the rhythms of Limitation as our dance music. This guarantees that terrestrial life forms must struggle and suffer. Times, though, are a-changin'. The Planetary Consciousness has a new Vision of what type of music to provide. And why not? Planets are dynamic entities. They have destinies and Visions. Their taste in music can change.

Let's call this new vision "Heaven on Earth," where we base our actions on love, instead of fear. Let's call Heaven on Earth the True Reality of Earth. If Heaven on Earth is the True Reality of the planet, then let's call its Current Reality - the one that we see now - the planetary hallucination. So, all the instincts - all the Buttons - are aspects of the planetary hallucination. (They look and feel real, however. If they didn't, what good would they be?)

Most beings experience pain and separation and think that it's their fault. They feel like a victim of either circumstance or themselves. But it's not really their fault: It's not their stuff! On a spiritual level, they've agreed to play out planetary hallucinations. While the planetary hallucination is in place, someone will suffer.

The dance radically changes when the planet ascends. After the Ascension, we interact with the Planetary Consciousness joyfully. We explore life in wonderful new ways.

The Importance of a Vision

A Vision is "the way that it is" as defined by the I AM. The master that you are - the I AM - lives by its own truths. You bring your I AM Vision to Earth. By taking a stand for it, you help to manifest Heaven on Earth. Your Vision, combined with the Vision of the Planet, produces your experience of Heaven on Earth.

We first need a clear sense of our Vision. Before we become aware of our Mission, we have only a vague sense of the Heaven's qualities. Vague pictures, however, produce vague results.

When assembling a clear, well defined Vision, we don't have to "make up" the elements. All the pieces are already within us. We become conscious of them and then integrate them into our life.

Our inner reality, is an alternative to our old habits. For example, say you have a particular "problem." The options available in a Limitation system are: (1) to deny, rationalize, avoid, or ignore it, or (2) to fight it, or drive it away. The drawback of the first option is obvious: ignore it, and the ghost remains. If you choose the second option (fighting it), then you give life to the problem. You are implying to the universe that the problem is real, and that's what it will manifest for you.

Without a fifth-dimensional Vision to base our actions on, we're like a ship in a third-dimensional ocean without a rudder. With a fifth-dimensional Vision, we can stand confident in our truth. We can live as masters. This deepens our faith in spirit, and we can allow our Vision to change and expand. We are not attached to our Vision. Once you experience that this lifestyle can work, then you rely less on outside authorities to tell you what's real.

File: Save/Tear Down/Build

/Save the Old World.

That's one way to dedicate a life. The old structures are passing; we have much to do. We show plenty of good intentions by trying to save the Old. As (apparently) the planet is dying, saving it is a logical response.

/Tear down the Old World.

We can direct our energies in this direction. After all, Those In Charge are destroying the planet with their greed, power, and nearsightedness. Fighting this ignorance is Good and righteous.

"Maybe it's our job to fight for God, and stop the evil!" In one sense, this feeds the enemy energy: Whatever you're fascinated with you get more of. From another perspective, however, bad guys are illusions. Tearing down is a natural part of the unfolding into Light.

/Build the new.

Scene 1: Imagine a tidal wave. Imagine ants on the beach trying to stop this incredible force.
Scene 2: Imagine a cosmic evolutionary wave. The wave is sweeping the consciousness of a planetary body. A new way of being is unfolding. Imagine the inhabitants (or governments, or any group) of the planet trying to stop this incredible force.

The Force of Evolution is setting up new structures of consciousness. They allow us to ride this wave in the easiest possible way. They also help us to know ourselves more fully, including internal aspects that we have denied. This leads to a greater understanding of our wholeness. Only holy beings will populate the New World.

When you dedicate yourself to the building of a Star, discovery, surrender, joy, and structural testing lace your life. Your newly revealed divine aspects become part of your fabric that will weave into the whole of the New Civilization.

Allowance

Allowance is a valuable quality. It includes the traits of patience, compassion, willingness, and love. Allowance is something we can extend to others and to ourselves. It says, "fully explore all experiences that spirit puts before you."

Without allowance, we must lead a life of violence (although not necessarily physical violence). At the least, we must experience psychic violence. If we don't have allowance, we must control ourselves and the world around us. We must manipulate everything, to make it conform to how we want it to be. No one gets slack.

Allowance is not a valuable commodity in the Old World. The Old World encourages us to fulfill our Personal Will. From that perspective, we can only use allowance as a manipulatory tool: I'll give you slack, if that's what it takes to get what I want. When we use allowance like that, however, it's conditional allowance. It will only serve us superficially. Once we integrate allowance into our life, our explorations go deeper. Our wisdom has more chance to seep into our Earth vehicle.

Allowance is beautiful. It says, "It's okay that you are going through this or that." It caresses aspects of yourself (and of others) that your personality might reject. Allowance lets you expand into your wholeness.

This quality is a divine gift. It makes the rigid, supple. It brings together that which is separate. By opening illusions to the Light, it shows how evil is merely a mask of fear. Allowance doesn't condemn, as it watches life unfold. It grants permission to the Breath of the Universe to blow through you. This purifies and gives life to innocence.

Three Worlds to Live In

We gain "dual citizenship" by being an other-dimensional consciousness projecting into a human body. Now, we find that we can live in three worlds. There is the Material World, the Magical World, and the Miraculous World. Each world has its own way of measuring what is real.

For example, in the Material World (the third dimension), no one questions dying, punishment, and eating: That's the way that it is. Although people may debate the different aspects of these phenomena, everyone knows that they are true and real. These facts are beyond debate. Furthermore, anything contrary to these facts is false.

In a Magical World, punishment still exists, but has a more enduring quality. In the Material World, as punishment, you could have your hand slapped or go to jail for life. The Magical World, however, allows you to spend centuries in karmic prison. Those who live in a Magical World can read minds and emotions. They can astral travel, share dream-time, and act self-righteous in the name of Light. The Magical World is a world of wonder, shadows, and magical phenomena.

We can define living in a Miraculous World as, "living a life that unfolds exactly as the I AM knows it will," and being aware of this. In a Miraculous World, there are no victims. Unconditional love is at the center of our actions. Ease, Grace, and Light are an integral part of the inhabitants.

The Illusion of Good and Evil

Good and evil, an illusion? How could this be? Programmed within everyone is the sense of good and evil. Some call this programming one's conscience. Yet, much of the information that we use to determine what is good or evil is someone else's viewpoint. Additionally, the moral values that we pick up are exceedingly relative. What's "wrong" in one society (or sect) may be praised in another. To complicate matters, circumstances can turn "wrongs" into "rights."

Good and Evil, and the eternal battle between them, are fourth dimensional ideas. If you're not "good," you could spend eternity in hell, or live out hundreds of miserable lifetimes. Astral punishments sound harsh. Third-dimensional institutions use these punishments to enforce their command(ment)s. They rule using fear.

Hells, however, are not eternal. The forces of Light can transform them into Light in a moment. Karma is not absolute. The same forces can instantly absolve karmic patterns.

Knowing

We prefer to use the word "knowing" (instead "conscience") as the mechanism to determine how to act. Knowing is the intelligence of the I AM. The I AM doesn't say, "Well, if I do this, then I will be doing something good [or bad]." It spontaneously acts in harmony with the Divine Plan. On a tenth-dimensional level, when we act, we are the Divine Plan unfolding.

Life would be chaotic in the third and fourth dimensions without the moral parameters of good and evil. When living as masters, however, truth supersedes this polarity. In this kind of life, there is no reason to fight evil: We are one. We have no reason to do good: Spirit is leading us back to the Source.

Basing actions on our knowing is a fifth-dimensional way to do it. We are in our Integrity. We are following our spirit. Beyond the walls of judgment and duality, the fear of wrong-doing doesn't cloud our vision. Neither does the idealism to do right. Instead, the gentle voice of spirit directs our movements. We are guiltless.

Most humans live a material life. The qualities of the Magical, however, are appearing more every day. Many New Agers are opening the doors to astral phenomena. They anchor the Magical in the Material. We can't, however, force another to step from one world to another. To do so triggers fear. Huge chasms exist between worlds.

The same holds true when moving from the Magical to the Miraculous - try to force someone to make that leap, and they will resist.

Transformations

People have described their transformational experiences in many ways. For our purposes, we will briefly describe, (1) "waking up," (2) becoming "Activated," (3) being "walked into," and (4) experiencing a Soul Rotation.

"Waking up" is like becoming enlightened. It starts a radical shift in our views. A new I AM projects into the body; the original inhabitant projects out. We suddenly realize, "Wow! I'm a master!"

"Activation," which often goes with a wake-up, is when our evolution speeds up so fast that we can no longer consider it normal. Interacting with awakened masters can Activate some beings.

A "Soul Rotation" is when one's spirit removes the current incarnated soul and replaces it with a new one. The new one usually has expanded parameters. Soul Rotations can be more disorienting than a walk-in experience. Though the perceptual grid shifts radically, the energetic signature of the I AM remains unchanged.

Many beings embrace these radical changes in consciousness. Others, however, usually out of fear, may even deny that these changes have happened.

In these cases, the ground crew remains relatively the same. Most of the memories remain intact (except a few that are archived and are not easy to access). These changes do not directly alter the genetic, socialized, and astrological aspects, either.

The work of the new inhabitant is to present its Vision to the ground crew. The best result is that the ground crew aligns itself to the new Vision.

Once aligned or Activated, our vibrational rate shifts. We begin to function as an energy transformer. The miraculous, transformational power of the I AM starts to show its power. It eases the pressures that dimensional shifts create. This buffers personal and transpersonal mutational tensions, including Earth changes.

Question and Explorations

Questions point to new pathways. When someone asks us a question, we use it as an opportunity to explore.

Question: "I've read that the Orions worked with the dark forces. You offer the Orion Ascension Technologies. Does your work support the darkness or the light?"

Exploration: We, The Federation of Light, are not from Orion. Our most recent and vivid memory of a planetary transition took place in that sector. We developed The Orion Ascension Technologies for use in that system. (We altered the Earth version of these technologies to fit earth's situation.)

The planet that ascended (in the Orion sector) was similar to Earth, except that the inhabitants were more civilized (and more anchored in fourth-dimensional reality). They were advanced psychically, but were more paranoid. Psychic control was big. They weren't "bad" or "evil"; they were exploring fourth-dimensional hallucinations.

We asked ourselves, "Are we good, or are we evil." Well, we are not evil, because our work supports the evolution of planets. However, we aren't good either. Built into the language system and rooted in the collective unconscious are the implications of moral duality. These imply that if you are good, then you must be against evil. So, maybe we're not good. What is evil, anyway?

In the third dimension, evil is doing malicious harm to others. Fourth-dimensional evil adds an insidious aspect. In the fifth dimension, good and evil don't exist. Beings live joyously, exploring and following their spirit without hesitation.

If we were to fight evil, then we would be acting out a third- and fourth-dimensional reality drama. The universe allows this "evil drama" to exist. If we are to be one with the universe, then we must be at one with its allowances.

Walking the Earth as a Master

How do you do this? First, there are no rules, including the "there are no rules" rule. That's it. We would like, however, to mention other qualities that masters exhibit. How about following their spirit without hesitation, and taking a stand for what's true about themselves. Another is allowing life to unfold through and around them without resisting. They also honor the sovereignty of others and stay within their Integrity.

Walking the Earth as a master is a practice. After the Ascension, you'll have to walk the Earth as a master, or you won't be walking the Earth. The new, transcended Earth will require this from everyone. Don't feel threatened. Cosmically, if you (as spirit) have chosen to ascend, then it is written. If not, you'll walk somewhere else. This is no big deal; there are no victims.

Besides being good practice, walking as a master gives other awakening masters an example of "doing the walk." Inside, they already know how to do it. They are masters already. When we enter a human body, however, the Planetary Consciousness drapes the Cloak of Forgetfulness over our eyes. We say, "Ahhhhh, Er, Ummmm...?" We think that if we can figure out this third-dimensional maze, then we'll be free. But that won't do it. Remembering the feel of our True Reality and how we move that way sets us free.

You can't copy how other masters "do it." That's because masters don't copy, unless they do. It's like being here and not being here at the same time, or being miserable and not being miserable simultaneously. It's like living the impossible. We must walk the hair-thin line between good/evil, life/death, and other paradoxes. Walking this way impacts the mass consciousness, contributing to the co-creation of Heaven on Earth. It's a good way to spend one's time.

Pillars

- m Everyone is in the hands of their spirits.
- m Everyone is a multidimensional being.
- m All hallucinations pass. Hells are not eternal, and karma is not etched in stone.
- m Whatever you're fascinated with, you get more of.
- m The universe rearranges itself to accommodate your picture of reality.
- m Everyone inhabiting a human form hallucinates.
- m Allowance is a golden key.
- m There are no victims, no good guys, or no bad guys.
- m Follow your spirit without hesitation.
- m Hallucinations are like rooms: Some have the wallpaper of hell.
- m Remain open to aspects of your higher reality, and take a stand for them. They will integrate into your life.
- m Are your actions based on fear or love?
- m Your spirit is the authority.
- m You have a divine right to define who you are and what you are doing here.
- m The game has changed: Return to Perfect Vision.
- m Live the Impossible!
- m Live a Miraculous Life!

LAST WORDS AND TESTAMENT

By the way, once you become Activated and are on your way at hyper-speeds, you will still have to deal with hallucinations. Living the life of an other-dimensional master has more than its share of dying and being reborn. As you become established in that lifestyle, a funny thing happens: You start to become invisible. You're still right there, but many people don't see you. And you know that this is okay.

Part II:

An Update on the Ascension Model

Part II of this book contains expanded information on the Ascension. It represents the perspectives of the next four teams of walk-ins who used this body. In this section, the walk-ins share a variety of models - pictures of reality - about the Ascension, miracles, reality, and more. These models may prove useful in understanding the processes that we are now undergoing.

Greetings! My name is Jal'Kae. I'm the third walk-in to inhabit this body. After we wrote the original version of the Ascension, new information arrived. It arrived as fiction story, although I don't usually write fiction.

First, however, I want to share an effective way to serve the Ascension.

LIVING A MIRACULOUS LIFE

After exploring some possibilities of co-creating Heaven on Earth, the first two teams of walk-ins realized that their Mission was impossible. Nothing they could do would make this happen. For Heaven on Earth to manifest, everyone must embody fifth-dimensional principles; everyone must act from love, not fear. The teams knew that they couldn't make anyone do this. You can't force anyone to make a dimensional leap. If you try, they will staunchly resist. They will feel fear or anger and will go against you.

At first glance, this was depressing news - "Oh, great! (not!) An impossible Mission!" Yet, this news had a freeing effect. They didn't have to guarantee the success of the Mission; Spirit has to do it. This meant that miracles - beings and forces intervening from the fifth dimension and above - will cause the Ascension of the Planetary Consciousness. (When spirit moves through us, living the impossible becomes possible.)

If the Ascension is to happen because of miracles, then we can best serve by allowing miracles to flow through us. Recognizing this, the Second Team created technologies that would serve this end. These technologies gave us (the Third Team) a base for living a miraculous life.

Aspects of a Miraculous Life

Living a miraculous life means flowing in the Miracle Continuum. When you are in the Continuum, the details of your projects unfold flawlessly. You meet the right people. Doors of opportunity appear and open with ease. Everything falls into place. Even your food always tastes delicious and is what the body needs, because your off-planet Team laces it with Light.

When living a miraculous life, love and respect for yourself and others deepen. Insights flood your consciousness. You are living in the Eternal Present, becoming lighter. Everything is all right as you watch the drama unfold from that still, untouchable place inside. You are more transpersonal, less personal. This lets you extend a loving hand to everyone. Because you treat the body's instincts (survival fears, territorial concerns) for what they are, you stay in integrity. Now, you see mutating and disintegrating structures as integral parts of the Ascension Process. You live in a miraculous universe.

Familiarity breeds contempt (?)

We recently explored the picture of reality that says "familiarity breeds contempt." (This means Oneness is impossible.)

At first, we thought the idea was ludicrous. After we considered it, however, we realized that this idea was true in the third and fourth dimensions. Often, people focus on one another's distorted third- and fourth-dimensional aspects. When we live a miraculous life, however, our focus is on the other's true identity. Like this, familiarity increases respect, and we admire the other's qualities. Our love expands. At this level, we treat the distorted aspects of identity as minor (or secondary) aspects of our wholeness. This encourages both parties to express themselves fully.

The Miracle Connection

Living a miraculous life means letting the Divine Plan effortlessly manifest through you. Personal Will can't make this happen. Instead, you surrender to spirit, it flows through you.

Forcing events causes struggle or friction. For example, we received that we should start to network. Wanting to obey, we contacted another Star Group. We wrote and said, "Hey, let's swap tapes!" because they said they were doing cool stuff with sounds. Suddenly, however, the lines of communication went dead. We said, "Yoo-hoo?" but they didn't respond. At first, we fretted: "Geez. . . Maybe we did something wrong," but we didn't. We were hallucinating. They were either hallucinating or following their spirit. Either way, the outcome was okay.

Soon, we quit trying to make this relationship happen. Then, we saw that spirit had already established a magnificent network. We didn't have to do anything. Groups and individuals from all over the world had sent us letters saying, "Hey! I just want to tell you we're here, too!" and, "Keep up the great work!" We envisioned energetic lines connecting us together. Through these lines, wonderful energies flow. And, unless spirit wants, we don't need to be in touch with them again. The link is active and in place.

Further, we see an intricate Light-web - an energetic infrastructure of masters. This network is not about personalities, or even about building networks. Rather, this structure serves the divine Force of Evolution. We are its servants - all of us - playing out the Divine Plan.

Surrender is the Key

Everyone isn't living a miraculous life, because they are exploring realities that don't allow this to happen. If life threw someone (who was unprepared for it) into a miraculous lifestyle, he would feel insecure. That's because the Planetary Consciousness designed the ground crew to function in third- and fourth-dimensional modalities. For example, to feel secure, the mental body needs to think it is in control. In a miraculous lifestyle, it would not feel safe, because spirit - not the mental body - directs our actions.

Miracles aren't reasonable, and you can't make them happen. You can use magic to bend something to your will, but that's not a miracle - that's magic. And while magic, healing, science, publishing, business, teaching, and politics can all serve the Mission, the New Civilization will not emerge because of this work. Instead, miraculous forces will use these forms.

We can serve the Force of Evolution more efficiently. We can use technologies, follow our spirit without hesitation, or make our intention to "live a miraculous life." Like this, the impulse of spirit directs us, rather than the desires of our ground crew. Spirit moves us inexorably to the miraculous state.

It's in Your Destiny

Many beings tell us how much they want to play an active part in the Ascension Process. They suffer, because they feel that they are ineffective, or that they are doing it wrong, or that they are unworthy. They feel that life will punish them for not doing enough. The fear that they will miss the Ascension haunts them.

To us, however, their desire and intention show that they don't need to fear. They are simply hallucinating. We see that they are doing it right, doing enough, and are worthy. In time, they will realize this.

If you feel this way, realize that happiness is in your Destiny. You won't find happiness, however, because you are feeling bad. Feeling (this kind of) bad means that you miss your True Reality. It confirms, at least to us, your identity as a divine master. How could you long for something so intensely, if it didn't exist in your cosmic memory?

What It Takes

Little by little, the Planetary Consciousness is encouraging us to live a miraculous life. It didn't however, design the human organism to live a miraculous lifestyle. Instead, the body seeks to survive, devise strategies, and multiply. It wants others to accept it. To function in the Miracle Continuum, other-dimensional Light must alter the ground crews. This Light expands the capacity of the body so it can live this lifestyle. One way to bring in this Light is by using divine templates.

Receiving a Template is like opening a door to a grand room. Out beams magnificent, piercing Light. We can only take it in small doses. As we integrate the Templates within our system, Light streams in at an acceptable rate, allowing more miraculous probabilities into our life.

It's Not What You Think

Miracles have remarkable qualities. One is that you never know what to expect. Miracles represent the unknown, and it's a bit frightening. You are entering, head first, into a transforming way of life. Once you become used to it, you only need to rely on your spirit. Spirit miraculously takes care of everything. Your life becomes an expression of something greater than you.

Conclusion

Living a miraculous life is possible; many people are starting to live like this. Spirit is drawing us, like moths to a light, into this reality. We don't need to do anything, except what our spirit says.

ONWARD to the fiction:

An Abridged Cosmic Tale

"Let's see. . ." said the Old One. He paused, tightened his lips for a moment, and then continued. "How about a blue-green planet with a yellow star?"

The Little Ones, gathered comfortably about his feet, smiled and nodded their approval. Their approval was expected: They would have happily embraced any tale that their wise mentor would have spun. For these were not ordinary stories in any sense of the word. The words of the wise One would never fail to whisk the listeners away. The Little Ones would land in the midst of whatever story-world the Old One described. They would live the adventurous plot of the script.

"It was a curious planet," he began. "It had weather. . . and rainbows. . ."

Leema found herself in a child's body, sitting on a shaggy, beige rug in a cube-shaped room. "Sharon, honey, time to eat!" called the voice of someone called "mom." "My name isn't Sharon," Leema reflected. "And who is this 'mom' being [loving though she may be], anyway?" She felt as if she had awakened into a dream. As she sat at the dining-room table, she could not shake the feeling that this whole setup was somehow strange. However, she didn't know exactly how or why.

The Old One continued. "And at one point, you will feel lost and abandoned on this strangely beautiful world."

For the last few years, Leema's consciousness had deteriorated into a sad side-show. A cacophony of alien images and characters entered, trampled about, and dispassionately left. She would try, haphazardly, to stitch together some kind of coherent reality. To do this, she would use the frayed and mismatched reality fragments that she gathered from the parade of specters (and sometimes, loving beings), who had strayed into her life. Failing to assemble anything meaningful, she assumed that something was wrong with her.

"And then something divine will touch you," said the Old One lovingly.

Time had slowly and painfully passed. Suddenly, a veil lifted. Leema remembered who she was - a beautiful being of Light. The distorted reality that stuck to the inside of her head like week-old bubble gum on a sneaker's sole had vanished! In its place was a dynamic picture of purpose; she was here to serve the planet.

By now, everyone, including the Old One himself, had sunk deeply into this dream-spun story. He could still speak, however, with such lucidity and gentle authority. The Little Ones (who were, indeed, great ones), didn't notice this story was dream-spun. From this place that was far away, yet closer than anyone could imagine, the Old One spoke: "Little by little, all of you will come together."

Leema and Zanje met under normal conditions; yet they knew their relationship was special. Their intent and integrity bonded them ever closer. They noticed that wave after wave of people were making the same discovery: consensus reality was, indeed, only a secondary reality. In time, these people flocked together, forming Star Colonies, for they were "of the stars."

The Old One paused for a moment. The Little Ones, still immersed in their expanding star story, sensed that something was being internally rearranged. "It's the Ancient One," said Old One, "whispering a new twist in the plot." With his eyes cast upward, he asked, "What's to become of all of this love?"

The Little Ones were finding their days filled with divine communion. Usually, they moved freely and effortlessly through their lives, fulfilling their part in the story. Somehow, as the story drew to a close, all of their expectations were surpassed.

NimRa was the first to return from the story. "I wish I could have written that," he said.

"Oh, I see that you're back," said the Old One. "Looks like you're the first."

"Yes," replied NimRa, "But if you don't mind, I'm going back to visit the others."

"Of course. Of course."

The Old One looked at all the faces. Everyone was glowing radiantly. He looked inside and saw the Ancient One beaming.

"Oh, yes," he said, "And everybody lived happily ever after."

The End

The part of this story that relates to the Ascension is the "new twist in the plot." This new twist would expand our understanding of the Ascension. Before we had a glimpse of what this "new twist" was, though, we explored one other Ascension version. We based this extraterrestrial version on a traditional religious perspective.

The Second Coming of Christ

Let's explore some possibilities. We'll cruise down a few side streets of insight before we pull onto the main highway. First gear. . . .

Let's talk about the Ascended Masters. Who are they? What do they want? How did they get here? They are highly evolved, loving beings who had entered Earth's karmic system and transcended it. They've remained lovingly close to the Earth and its inhabitants. These masters advise and help others who are going through the same process. Now, they are interacting more closely than ever, as they join in this exciting chapter of planetary evolution.

Then, who are we, the millions of beings who came from great distances to help? (Chopped liver?) We are the Descended Masters, swan-diving (or belly-flopping) into the dense medium of third- and fourth-dimensional reality.

We project our consciousness into human (animal, vegetable, and mineral) forms so we can have a first-hand account of the action. The doors to the Earth plane have been lovingly and unconditionally opened. Beings sourcing from the fifth dimension (and above) are arriving in droves. They arrive as "crawl-ins," "walk-ins," and through channeling.

Not everyone wants to channel; even less want to get walked in to. For many, the notion of a walk-in is frightening. It represents the unknown. You might think that only materialistic people would be afraid of this. Many New Agers, however, are afraid, as well. The previous team of walk-ins held an Event at a New Age shop. When one of the participants at the Event realized what a walk-in was, she exclaimed, "Gasp! Is that what a walk-in is?! I sure don't want to be walked in to. I'm having too much fun!" On this note, let's drive up the entry ramp to the main highway. . . .

At the beginning of this book, Malenchen shared an Ascension story. He said that a very big entity (who happened to be in the neighborhood) would "point its finger" at a planet, causing the planet to ascend. What if such an entity was in our neighborhood right now, and its job was to ascend Earth?

What if that being's name was The Christ? Perhaps, the Second Coming of Christ does not entail Him pointing His finger at the planet. Instead, He permanently channels into all of Earth's inhabitants. His descent into humans, animals, crystals, plants, and the Planetary Consciousness itself, would cause the planet to ascend instantaneously. This happens in a flash of divine light.

Viewed from this angle, that would explain what the millennium commotion is about, and why everyone (who is aware something is in the making) is preparing themselves. They want the capacity to sustain the Christ consciousness.

Don't bother to scan the skies for His arrival. Just wait, and He'll personally (well, transpersonally) enter through the door that's on top of your head.

Update

Since I presented the idea of the Christ channeling into everyone, I feel a more precise version exists. I believe that the individualized Christed Aspect of each person will channel into them.

Dimensionally, our Christed aspect is our tenth-dimensional identity. This is where The Christ, in His pure form exists. (Actually, the tenth dimension is a formless dimension.)

Greetings! My name is Azlor. I'm the fourth walk-in to inhabit this body. My spirit has presented a refined model of the Ascension to me. This model is the "new twist" that we mentioned in the above fiction story.

THE UNCONDITIONAL ASCENSION

Parallel Universes

A vast number of parallel universes exist. Many include parallel Earths. From the perspective of this Earth, the other Earths are "probabilities." However, if we were to shift our consciousness into a body that lives on another probable Earth, it would no longer be a "probability." Instead, it would become the current real one.

Some parallel Earths are almost exact duplicates of one another in terms of form. We can distinguish these Earths by their distinctive feeling tone and the unique characteristics of their astral planes. In terms of evolution, each probability has its own strong and weak points. Some areas of experience are primitive, while other areas are advanced. For example, a probability may be fiery, yet possess an easily forgiving atmosphere.

Ascension - the mutation of a planet into its Light body - is the destiny of several probable Earths. Spirit wouldn't send us to support gloom-and-doom, non-ascension versions. Our presence in this probability, therefore, suggests that the fate of this Earth is to ascend.

Several Ascension stories are now circulating. Here are a few. Some predict the arrival of our space brothers who will beam up their followers; the E.T.s will then clean up the planet and return the Saved to a pristine Earth. Other religious groups claim that their deity will descend from the sky. God will purge the evil from the Earth. The previous team of walk-ins explored yet another possibility. They toyed with the notion that The Christ will channel into those who could handle His energy.

Now, however, a different picture of reality is emerging. Before we explain how this new version is different, however, we'll first describe a common element in the mentioned versions.

Each of these stories has something in common: If a person had sinned in some way, then he wouldn't go to Heaven. If that wasn't punishment enough, God would condemn the wrong-doer to die, or at worst, send him to hell for eternity. We call this the "Crime, Punishment, and Forgiveness" syndrome.

Crime, Punishment, and Forgiveness

We see the Crime, Punishment, and Forgiveness syndrome inherent in third-dimensional (material plane) and fourth-dimensional (astral plane) interactions and institutions. We commit a "crime" (or wrong-doing, in general) when we break the rules.

Institutions may formalize these rules into law or dogma, or they may be unwritten, implicit ideologies. When we commit a crime, the institution punishes us. (If we break our own rules or fail to meet our expectations, then we will punish ourselves, using guilt and other psychological tortures.) Forgiveness - an important part of the process - follows punishment: without forgiveness, karma lingers on.

The Crime, Punishment, and Forgiveness syndrome is a necessary element in third- and fourth-dimensional realities. (On the fifth dimension - "Heaven" - no one commits crimes or punishes others.) This pattern, however, is implicit in most Ascension stories, as well. It goes like this: If you've sinned or didn't do your spiritual homework (the crime), then you won't ascend or enter Heaven (the punishment). In other words, salvation is conditional upon our behavior. (Where's the forgiveness?) However, from a fifth-dimensional perspective, the Crime, Punishment, and Forgiveness syndrome is not absolute. Alternatives exist.

Unconditional Ascension

We live in a miraculous universe. (The reason why everyone doesn't experience this is because we are too busy hallucinating that we do not.) In our vision of Unconditional Ascension, we see the Force of Evolution working with a Great Entity (from the tenth dimension). We will call this being "The Christ." The Christ embodies the properties and perspectives of a miraculous universe. For such Beings, miracles are "the way that it is."

The Unconditional Ascension version goes like this: divine light is flooding the planet; forms are becoming more transparent to the Force of Evolution. Suddenly, the planet and all of its inhabitants transform into their Light bodies (the Ascension "flash point").

At the time of the flash, some will not have "done their spiritual homework" and some will have behaved like sinners. Christ will say, "Well, Historic Earth is at an end. I would forgive all of you, but I've never blamed you for anything. You don't need my forgiveness. I now [instantly and miraculously] absolve you of all sins and karma. Your energetic structures are now in tune with Earth Star. Take your place here, if your spirit so directs. So be it." So, all are saved. (However, some spirits may want to continue exploring karmic systems. They could co-create new forms on other planets that offer the option of karma.)

Do you believe this is possible? Ask yourself this: "Anyone who does [or doesn't] do _____, should not be saved. They should be punished." Whatever you fill in the blank with may give you insight: where do third- or fourth-dimensional "necessities" overshadow unconditional love? Remember that these limitation patterns (including the Crime, Punishment, and Forgiveness syndrome) are not binding on the Force of Evolution.

Many Probabilities Into One

Many probable Earths will ascend. Although several versions exist of how the Ascension will happen, the number of versions is decreasing. People are beginning not to support the chaotic, strife-filled, Ascension stories. As we travel between parallel Earths, we foster this trend by cutting energetic pathways, spreading information about alternate possibilities - including the Unconditional Ascension. Linking probabilities is unifying. Furthermore, this unification suggests the chance that all ascending Earths may experience an Unconditional Ascension.

The Cosmic Significance of an Ascension

Ascensions represent the converging of many probabilities into one, like many small streams flowing into a river. Once a planet ascends, all other probabilities that might have unfolded, collapse. As an ever increasing number of planets (and other cosmic forms) ascend, the number of probable universes decreases, until, finally, only one probable universe remains. The final probable universe will say, "Our return to The Source is imminent. Now, we are going Home." The universe unconditionally returns to the Source - the Final Unconditional Ascension.

In the highest sense, Earth's Unconditional Ascension is like a microcosm of the Final Unconditional Ascension. Furthermore, Earth's Unconditional Ascension is the first of its kind in the history of the universe. This might be the reason entities from all over the universe are focusing their attention on Earth now.

Humanity has a right to be proud; we are undergoing a breath-taking transformation of cosmic significance. We have great cause to be grateful and humble: Holy Forces are supporting us more than we can possibly imagine.

In the winter of 1994, a new team of walk-ins arrived at Starbuilders. Here is their story.

Greetings! My name is KenDon. I am the fifth walk-in to inhabit this body. I want to share an additional insight into the Unconditional Ascension.

UNCONDITIONAL ASCENSION UPDATE

A KenDonian View

A few months ago, Azlor suggested that the upcoming Ascension of the Planetary Consciousness would be an Unconditional Ascension. This would make it a unique event in the history of this Universe. Conditional Ascensions herald flaming swords at the Gates of Paradise. They prevent those who are impure from entering. In contrast, an Unconditional Ascension invites everyone to enter the Garden - even the "unworthy."

It Can't Happen Here

For some, an Ascension of this kind is an all-too-easy solution to the complex problems of today. Unconditional Ascension lies beyond the borders of their third- and fourth-dimensional reality parameters. This Event is not possible. What we are dealing with, however, is a miraculous Event. It supersedes third- and fourth-dimensional constrictions. Like ants on a beach debating and denying the rapidly approaching tidal wave, human opinions cannot hinder the divine transformation.

Others have said that they "don't want the muggers" in Heaven with them. If the Ascension is unconditional, then criminals can enter the Kingdom, as well. We envision that at Ascension time, The Christ would "channel" into everyone (for a brief, eternal moment). He would ask whether or not we wanted to ascend. In this instant, everyone would realize that the New Civilization would not support criminal behavior - it's not an option.

Bypassing the Small Self

When some people die, they don't enter the Light at the end of the tunnel. The reason is that they keep the human/karmic notion that they are unworthy. The Christ Consciousness, however, bypasses this illusion. During the Ascension "Flash Point," He addresses the I AM of the individual. He doesn't address the Small Self, with its distorted identifications (including guilt) for the answer. If the I AM knows that ascension is right, then The Christ will transmute the suffering, karma, sin, and guilt of the Small Self.

Suffering. . . Transmuted?

Unconditional Ascension may sound too easy for some. This Event, however, is hard to accept, because it addresses and transmutes humanity's big problem: suffering. That is what The Christ will absolve at this historical moment. (Do you believe there are beings who are capable of this?)

A New Phenomenon?

Earth's Unconditional Ascension will be the first Unconditional Ascension in history. That is why so much transdimensional attention focused on this planet today. We believe that this unprecedented Event will produce a powerful physical/metaphysical phenomenon.

At first, we imagined the creation of a Stargate, but there are already Stargates in place. (Because no Unconditional Ascensions have taken place to date, Stargates must form by some other, more common process.) We don't know what kind of cosmic effect this Event will have on the Universe. In any case, the impact will be great.

Turning Point

This Unconditional Ascension marks a turning point in the evolution of the universe. As the information about this Event spreads across the universe, Unconditional Ascensions will grow commonplace. The earth has set an example; it has shown the way. This creates a snowballing effect. It increases the speed of the evolutionary process to its conclusion: the grand, unconditional leap of the universe back into The Source. This ends a Cosmic Day.

GREETINGS FROM ALDIN

Introduction

Greetings. My name is Aldin. I am the sixth walk-in to inhabit this body. Having projected my consciousness in here on March 1st (1995), I am not yet fully grounded (as of March 21st). Although I know little about who I am, I am discovering daily what I am not. I share this because, for me, the information is useful.

"What!? No Info!?"

Speaking as the ground crew, when a new consciousness walks into me, the new inhabitant comes with an energetic "portfolio." This includes his name, Function, dimension of origin, Divine Essence, and more. So far, Aldin has received only his name. His Divine Compliment (was "Kumara") didn't even receive that much. She said, "I can't deal with it [being walked into again]. Just give me a name." So, he called her "Alara." She liked it.

I have learned not to push for information. When I do that, I am usually using Personal Will. This only invites suggestions from fourth-dimensional entities, which may or may not be accurate.

The Nots Have It

Aldin: One of my first realizations was that I am not my memories. A common practice is to identify with our memories. After all, we did have those experiences, didn't we? This, however, opens the conjecture, "Didn't these experiences happen in the past, and isn't the past an illusion?" Of course, they are illusions. We can never really live in the past anymore than we can live in the future. So, I cannot really be the memories of this body.

I will list other "I am nots" and go into detail when appropriate.

I am not my image. In a materialist society that places value upon our "looks," people constantly judge us by the image we project. ("Looks" include our weight clothes, smell, car, house, family, and job.) I will add that our image, in many ways, reflects our ego. We bow to the gods of Image.

I am not my physical, mental, or emotional bodies. To not identify with these is tough. If I get an ouchie on my finger, or if someone treats me badly (hurts my feelings), I can't easily say, "I am not this," because I am suffering. The same is true if so me thought is pestering me. However, I am cultivating a generalized awareness that I am not the various feelings of this vehicle. This gives my consciousness a place to go during these moments of illusion.

When there, I am "The Watcher." I experience a form of transcendence. I am not that which suffers. (I am not the sufferer.)

More Nots

I am not my beliefs. In these days of accelerated change, if you identify with your beliefs, then you are begging to suffer.

I am not my actions. I know that I often act unconsciously. Being in human form connects me, at a basic level, to the mass unconsciousness of humanity. This requires me to play out dramatic actions. Again, as The Watcher, I am not my actions.

I am not my ideas. My mental body creates many models; however, I am not attached to them. As The Watcher, the Mind Stream simply flows.

I am not what I eat. Food is the fuel to make this vehicle run. I assume spirit will direct me to eat properly. My other-dimensional friends may even fill the food with other-dimensional Light. Hey, why not.

I am not my reactions to the actions of others. As The Watcher, I observe my reactions (and theirs), saying, "Very interesting. . ." or, "Oh, that behaves like that."

I am not my sexual drive, nor my drive to protect my space. Neither am I my desire to "be on top" of the pecking order, nor my desire to survive. These are instincts of the body, and I respect them.

A Comment

As I continue exploring different aspects of my wholeness (including my humanness), I transcend many of these identifications. The results are that I can relate from a place of unconditional love more of the time.

Even More Nots!

Here are a few more "not" discoveries.

I am not my race. Racism - attachment to race - can be ugly.

I am not my religion. To kill or discriminate against another because of their religion is most absurd. The logic is: "You are deluded and are my enemy, because God says you're wrong." Religious dogma creates enemy consciousness by claiming to know God's view of The Right Way.

I am not my class. I saw class discrimination happen between two people from India, where class takes on a religious nature (the caste system).

I am not my ego. The ego thinks the universe revolves around it; it doesn't. The ego is an illusory shadow. Transcending this identity crisis is a relief.

I am not my judgements. When we judge somebody, first we separate ourselves from the other, then we punish him. Then, perhaps out of guilt, we punish ourselves.

I am not my stupidities, mistakes, and idiosyncrasies. This covers a multitude of sins. As I become detached, I can forgive myself. Then, I can forgive others. When I become fully detached, I cannot blame myself or others.

I am not my sins.

I am not my psychological makeup.

I am not "what is wrong" with me.

So Where Is Responsibility?

"Taking responsibility for our actions" has become a cornerstone for the New Age movement. This advice had merit - it takes away the excuse that we are somehow victims. Where, however, does The Force of Evolution fit in? Isn't it true that we are all in the hands of our spirit? Doesn't some responsibility lie there? Once we move from beneath the illusion of being victims, we can safely turn over responsibility for our lives to spirit. (Some religions say, "Give yourself to God, and you won't be a victim anymore.")

Legally, ethically, and morally, I take responsibility for my actions. I do not believe, however, that spirit would guide me to do anything outside my integrity.

So, What Am I?

By the process of elimination, it looks like only The Watcher remains. Speaking as a ground crew, I have had a variety of consciousnesses use me. Though only a couple of the walk-ins experimented with The Watcher model, it allowed me to make general observations about the qualities of Watchers.

Watchers are (1) peaceful, (2) allowing and loving (not judgmental) (3) transpersonal (not personal), (4) not subject to suffering, (5) The Center.

Yet, each Watcher has its own unique way of expressing these qualities.

The Watcher - Divine?

I imagine that The Watcher is our Essence - our divine, tenth-dimensional aspect - peering into form from its formless state. This Christed identity is the thread that runs through the multitude of our incarnations. It weaves diverse, multidimensional patterns of identities and forms.

I am this, a unique point of consciousness that sends its Light into the universe.

So What?

In this state, I can accept everyone and their actions. We call this state "unconditional love." Of course, this body still has many trigger points. Push them, and I go 3- or 4-D. If I am lucky (a fourth-dimensional viewpoint), the universe will allow me to spot the hallucination and to say, "Ah, ha! Another 'not!'"

I don't practice being detached to become enlightened; my Essence is Light. If I strive to become what I already am, then I imply that I am not what I am. In terms of The Mission, I do this so I can serve the Force of Evolution more effectively. The less walls that I have up, the more smoothly I can serve this Force.

Some may call this idealism. An ideal, however, is a picture of reality. We use it to compensate for some perceived lack in the present. It gives us something to shoot for when we are not in touch with True Reality.

Conclusion

There are many things I am not. I imagine that what I really am is rather simple, as simple as the day is long.

ETERNITY IN A MOMENT

As we travel through life, we experience many different states of being. One of my favorite mystical states is what I call "embodying Eternity." This lifestyle works with the cosmic principle that states, "there is nowhere to go and nothing to do [except take the next step that spirit directs]." From a third- and fourth-dimensional standpoint, this may sound apathetic or downright boring. In my experience, however, nothing is further from the truth.

Eternity is in us and around us in every moment. We live in the Eternal Now. Yet, from a strictly human standpoint, we can distort this truth. We can imagine that time is not our friend. We must race along at the pace it dictates, doing important and trivial tasks. These tasks may include saving ourselves or the world.

At some point, we begin to realize there is nothing to do (except the next step). We start to bring those nagging and stressful time-based illusions to light. After we become conscious of them, they soon fall away. (Time dissolves the illusion of time. . . .) Some might say, "I can hardly keep up with myself!" In this case, you may be living out the survival realities of your ego. Or your spirit just might have plenty of work for you. (Our relationship to time depends upon where we are in relation to our Right Livelihood and how we involve ourselves with the Old World.) Despite how much we have to do, there is only one step that we can take at a time.

What I am suggesting is to be aware whenever you are rushing or pushing yourself (or others). (Key phrase: "I am pushing.") Remind yourself: "There is nowhere to go, nothing to do." This helps to break the hypnotic spell of being a victim of time. We are children of eternity.

Sometimes, I make plans to go somewhere or to do something. Unless, however, spirit gives me the spark to carry it through, it won't get done. If I do it without the spark, I am participating in an hallucination. When spirit does support an action, it happens effortlessly - like nothing happened. Spirit makes everything happen. Additionally, when I embody eternity, I am never early or late. Ease and grace rules.

Eternity as a Lifestyle

Living in Eternity is living in the state of grace. Embodying our timeless nature, we allow life to structure itself through us in optimal, harmonious patterns. Our mental bodies could not possibly plan this. It allows us to live a miraculous life. We enjoy more, and our wisdom expands. We allow events to unfold without fighting. This magnifies our capacity to love.

This state is peaceful and awe-inspiring; from here, we watch the mystery of life unfold. We participate, but at a level in which we are above or outside our actions (transpersonal, not aloof). It doesn't matter whether others agree or disagree with us (or ignore us). Being so open, we don't believe our disbeliefs. Why should we? We are all here, with nowhere to go, nothing to do, and nothing to prove. (If ego interrupts, you may suggest that everyone is in the hands of their spirit. The universe is unfolding as it should, according to the Divine Plan.) Living in eternity is freedom.

"Nowhere to go, nothing to do": I find this to be an excellent mantra and an effective spiritual discipline. It works like a pole-vaulting device for hurtling me over the hallucinatory walls of time. It shows me where my ego still controls my views and actions.

When living a miraculous life, we consciously act in a cosmic drama. We witness events that lovingly unfold within us, through us, and around us.

While we're here on planet Earth, participating in the Ascension, let's take a closer look at who we are serving.

Exploring the Planetary Consciousness (and other related topics)

Call her "Gaia," call her "Earth," call her "mother." Whatever name we choose, the planetary body is responsible for all human life.

Planet Earth is a vehicle of consciousness, similar, in a way, to our own body. She can even channel other entities; other consciousnesses can walk into her. (A new planetary entity allegedly walked in to the planetary body during the late Eighties.)

Human Error

Many believe that we create our own reality. That we "create our own reality" is a half-truth: If I create my reality, then I must create you and the planetary body. This implies that I am God the Creator. Therefore, if I die, you and the Earth - my creations - must vanish. Do you believe that?

Humanity is a thin texture spread across the living globe. It amazes me when I see egos proclaiming themselves God. I realize, though, that it is not always about arrogance. This view could be a reaction to powerlessness - an attempt to put fearful or unfathomable circumstances within a manageable, mental framework. Or, this view could be a high, cosmic truth, made impractical by the ego:

A: "I am God."

B: "Great! Please relieve all suffering in the world!"

A: "Er, I can't."

Or, like an apple claiming, "I am the tree!" this could be a distorted version of the truth that we are a part of God. Life, however, is a co-creative process. To become human, our consciousness must project itself into a body, usually when the body is developing in the womb. Our body is a product (or extension) of the Planetary Consciousness. Human life is a partnership, a merging of Heaven (spirit), and Earth (planetary form).

Complete Responsibility

The idea that we must take complete responsibility for our experiences is a half-truth, as well. For example, I have heard there are at least thirty thousand children that starve to death every day. This horror story is within the realm of my experience. Am I responsible for this? Many forces are at work in that story. The Planetary Consciousness, however, is a major player. All terrestrial experiences, both positive and negative, can only happen with the permission of the Planetary Consciousness. Without her consent, it cannot happen. For instance, if she was not allowing (the illusion of) death, no one could die.

Additionally, billions of other human, animal, and plant consciousnesses (not to mention a multitude of Light and Dark Forces in the fourth dimension) take part in manifesting terrestrial reality. Each of them is a co-creative force and contributes to the synergy operating on Earth. They have their own pictures of reality. No single being could possibly be responsible for all of this (except, perhaps, the collective tenth-dimensional being, The Holy Spirit).

What is the limit of our responsibility for events we experience? When we say, for example, "I am sad," what is really happening is a shared experience of Heaven and Earth. The more accurate (but absurd sounding) response is, "We are sad." That may sound ridiculous, but only if we think sadness is personal. (It sure does feel personal.) Our relationship with the planet exists on a level too deep for the rational mind to grasp. Cosmically, Earth is an extension of our wholeness. Therefore, in a small way, we are co-responsible for what ails the world, because we are in a human body.

The best we can do is to follow our spirit, forgive ourselves and others, and, perhaps, lessen the suffering of others, in whatever way spirit directs. We could argue that karma is responsible for tragedies, or that we had agreed to suffer before we incarnated. Earth's (fourth-dimensional) karmic system, however, could not exist without the Earth's support. Although the apparent victim may have agreed (on a spiritual level) to suffer, the Earth had to approve the request to suffer. Planetary consciousnesses are sovereign entities.

Veils

Every species has its own innate intelligence. They instinctively know how to do astoundingly complex tasks. The Planetary Consciousness embeds this intelligence ("Earth smarts") into her creatures, including Homo Sapiens. So, our bodies have a mind of their own! This complicates our search for identity, because we must live out planetary archetypal directives. You may have heard about "veils of consciousness." I believe that the embedded creature intelligence is a major veil of consciousness. This veil has many layers.

How Smart Is She?

Look at humanity. In many ways, it imagines itself as the hottest (if not the only) act in the universe. (Next to God, of course.)

Look at the Planetary Consciousness. We can't imagine how intelligent she is. Our experiential filters (the mental, emotional, and physical bodies) are on loan from this remarkable being. She made our brains - brains are Earth stuff. She makes the air we breathe, the water we drink, and the DNA codes that control our development and biological functions. (Many take these gifts for granted.) Our astral body is, in a way, an extension of her astral body. These creations are her doing, not God's. (Ultimately, of course, God made everything.)

Save the Planet?

In our pride or confusion, we may think that we could save or heal the Earth. This implies that something is wrong with her, and that she is not in the hands of her spirit. At one time, the original inhabitant of this body believed these implications were true. He gave plenty of money to charities dedicated to this cause. His support escalated to the point where he felt he should join GreenPeace to have a clear conscience - to do enough.

One day, he heard something. The planet is not sick or dying; rather, she is miraculously transforming. She is fine. If the Earth wanted to protect herself from humanity - the big eco-destroyer - she could make our species disappear overnight. Fortunately, she is a loving being.

If, however, spirit directs us to join a heal-the-world organization, we should join. And just because the Earth can take care of herself doesn't mean that we should abuse her. As spiritual beings, we love her. We are naturally harmless.

Working to save the Old World has merit. Dedicating our lives to the New World, however, has much value, as well. We can support the New by living our truth and following our spirit without hesitation. The Force of Evolution will do the rest.

Free Will: An Earth Commodity

"Free Will is like a free lunch." Zantron

When the Planetary Consciousness ascends, all life forms on her body must shift with her. We must follow her rules, because we are playing with her "toys" (Earth bodies). Can we say, "Hey! I've got Free Will, and I say I'm not going to change!"?

The Planetary Consciousness gives us free will; we don't bring it with us. Where we are from, we can only consciously act out the Divine Plan - we have no choice. Free will gives us the option of not following our spirit without hesitation. We are also free to ignore what is true for us. Instead, we can favor someone else's (or some group's) picture of reality.

Furthermore, we can resist our humanity. We can deny, suppress, distort, or fight our human nature. Allowance is born, however, as we integrate our consciousness. Allowance invites us to live spiritual lives. As we become more divine, we become more human. This completes the circle.

Hierarchies

Humanity thinks that it is on top. This may be true as far as the food chain goes. Dolphins, however, are intelligent and live beautiful lives. Are we superior to them just because we have cable? I am not belittling humanity. Sometimes, though, our self-importance blinds us. The way I see it, Earth is on top, and all of her creations are second.

The solar system has its own hierarchy. At this level, the star/sun, Sol, reigns supreme. The planets, including Earth, take second place. Without the sun, the planets may never have been born.

As the Earth sets rules for her inhabitants, so the sun puts parameters on his children. (Planets must orbit the sun, for example.) Hierarchy exists at other levels, too. For example, hierarchies exist that include the consciousness of the galaxy, the super-galaxy, the universe, the omniverse, The Source, and ultimately, God (or The-All-That-Is).

I am a small part of this gigantic organization of consciousness. I do my work, serving the ascension of the Planetary Consciousness, one step at a time. My mortal consciousness does not know how to do this. My "I AM" aspect (my immortal consciousness), however, interacts with the Planetary Consciousness. It guides me to right action and service.

Humility

Like everyone, I am an eternal light. Occasionally, I dip into the darker realms of spacetime. Yet, the magnitude and wonder of it all humbles me.

To feel this way in relation to the planet is natural. I believe humility - a form of surrender - opens a door for this magnificent being to share her wisdom with us. But whether or not we are humble, she is benevolent.

Even when we think we are superior to her, she still supports us. Like a loving mother, she watches her one month old baby playing king of the world.

Evin, the sixth walk-in to inhabit this body, completed the model of the Unconditional Ascension. He also presented a new model of how beings apply their consciousness when on earth.

Directions of Consciousness

In the West, tradition teaches us that consciousness moves in one of two directions - upward or downward. Eastern traditions include the directions of no movement and omnipresence. What follows is an extraterrestrial model. Like all models (and traditions), this model is a picture of How It Is - a sketch. Models are not reality itself.

In this model, there are five classes of movement. Try viewing each class as a way that spirit interacts with the Planetary Consciousness, rather than one being superior or inferior to one another. Each class has its own pleasures, insights, and adventures. When you are exploring a class, don't expect those who are exploring other classes to understand your experience. It may not be real for them.

We don't blame anyone for exploring any of these classes. If we attach ourselves to any class, however, we will suffer. When we are against a class, we are in illusion. Spirit and the Force of Evolution are at work in all classes. None of them are "The Right Way" or "The Wrong Way" to live.

The five directions of movement are (1) Horizontal, (2) Upward, (3) Parallel, (4) Downward, and (5) Transcendental. In an instant, we can shift from one modality to another. Yet, moving from one to another is usually a gradual process.

(1) Horizontal Movement

Horizontal Movement is how most beings on the planet operate now. The Planetary Consciousness, however, is phasing out this possibility. We will find it harder to live this way.

Behavior

When we are in Horizontal Movement, we are unconsciously living out patterns of the Planetary Consciousness. Horizontal Movement is strictly a spacetime reality. The planet embeds these spacetime patterns in our genetic structure. They include the animal instincts - survival, mating, protecting territory, and pecking order - plus the need to know "How It Is." This last instinct, the need to know, is a real human need. When someone challenges our picture of "How It Is," we may fight to defend it.

"What can I get [or do] next?" is a part of the Horizontal Movement mindscape. (A promotion, a better car, new clothes, or a new conquest are examples.) We search for "more and better." We try to look and act our best. This brings us linear rewards, but we may feel like we are on a treadmill. Since we focus on linear goals, we have little time to invest in spiritual realities.

We are usually very active when exploring this class, with much to achieve, many good causes, aspirations, and noble hopes.

Free Will

When we act out planetary programs, are we any different from other species? A cheetah charges a herd of bison. At some point, she singles out one of them and chases him down. Is this Free Will? To an extent, it is: She has made a choice. A human takes a seat at a restaurant. Pondering the menu, he thinks, "Do I want a t-bone steak or a tofu burger?" Is this Free Will? To an extent, it is.

Let's distinguish between two kinds of free will: free will represents choosing between two or more options that our instincts present to us. Free Will represents our ability to act beyond the parameters of planetary programming. In this context, the previous examples show the use of free will.

The Planetary Consciousness drives us to seek pleasure or to avoid pain. We exercise free will when we try to enhance our chances for survival, mating, power, pleasure, or pain avoidance. At this level, our decisions seem very important: free will feels very real. Most people live this way all of their lives. This adds to the irony: when we use Free Will the least, we defend free will most vehemently.

Self-Help

If our strategies for dealing with life are dysfunctional (we are not getting what we want), we may seek the services of a Horizontal Movement Professional. They teach us better strategies, which may relieve some degree of suffering.

Defining Reality

While in Horizontal Movement, we label all of our experiences, whether positive or negative, as real. Bad is bad, good is good - all is real. We think reality is objective reality and etched in stone. We only consider information that we receive through the five senses as real. (Although we sometimes use "hunches.") The mindstream is our major source of information.

(2) Upward Movement

More and more beings are practicing Upward Movement. We practice Upward Movement when we try to fight our "blocks" in an attempt to become more spiritual. Let's picture the relationship between our intent and our "stuff" (imperfections, blocks, karma) in Upward Movement. Make a "T" with your hands, like the "Time Out" signal made by the referees in a football game. (For the sports challenged, place your right hand in front of your chest, palm facing left, fingers extended upwards. Lay your left palm on to p of your right finger tips, making the "T.") The right hand represents our intent of upward movement (ascension), while the left hand represents the stuff blocking our way. Push upward with the right hand; our stuff blocks our ascension.

Behavior

When we explore Upward Movement, we are unconsciously participating with the astral aspect of the Earth's consciousness. We gain a sense of moral right and wrong and do our best to rid ourselves of the wrong. At times, we can find ourselves on the "I've-got-to-get-myself-together [spiritually]" treadmill. We send our good works upward, hoping that God will acknowledge them and reward us in some way.

As in Horizontal Movement, we hold a tight grip on our definition of How It Is. We may fight (or resent) others who contradict our hard-earned pictures of reality.

In Upward Movement, we perceive ourselves as "different" from those in Horizontal Movement. We may see ourselves as special. While this distinction adds to our sense of identity, it also separates us from the Horizontal Movement masses.

In Upward Movement, we often display much good will, devotion, and love. Most of us have a heart-felt desire to serve God, humanity, our higher self, or the mission. Our intent is to do good and be nice.

Free Will

Free will is very important, because we perceive it as a choice between good and evil. If free will did not exist, how could we measure our progress? How could we define sin, or know how to act?

In Upward Movement, we are still acting on astral information provided by the Planetary Consciousness. Is choosing between two planetary options (good or evil) considered "Free Will" or "free will"? Or, is it a sign of a spiritual agreement to act in astral planetary drama?

Self-Help

In Upward Movement, we try to clean out our chakras and release painful memories gained in past lives. We seek information from psychics or channeled entities. Feelings of being unworthy, guilty, or powerless can be a source of much suffering.

We view the position of our consciousness as below our stuff. To be worthy of grace, we must push upward to become a better person. We work very hard at it, trying, at times, to fix others as well.

Because of our struggle, we often find it difficult to accept the notion of an Unconditional Ascension. We are working hard to be free. Why should God save others who are lazy or are downright evil? (The others, too, are suffering. They work in the only way that they can.)

When we explore Upward Movement, we can become psychically weary, because this stage feels like it goes on forever.

Defining Reality

The Planetary Consciousness provides us with another means of veiling ourselves: dogma - word structures mistaken for reality. In Upward Movement, dogma, mixed with belief and experience, defines our reality. Since Upward Movement implies movement "towards God," we must find and use the right dogma to guide our actions. In Upward Movement, we do not believe in illusions. Only one reality exists: whatever conforms to our world view is right; whatever does not conform to our view is wrong.

We fear and fight the Dark Forces in Upward Movement. To gain support for our cause, we may use the specter of the Dark Forces to frighten, or, to alert others to the dangers of wrong behavior. "If you're not good, they'll get you!" Sometimes, we might even "quote God." Sometimes, the force of God's word can coerce others to behave like we believe they should. "If you are a male and have long hair, you will burn in hell for eternity. God hates men with long hair." This practice is fear-sharing and can be contagious.

In Upward Movement, we need to be right and to do good. If we attach ourselves to being right, however, we create polarity. The universe rearranges itself to accommodate our picture of reality. When we must do good and be right, we imply that something is bad and wrong. So, we simultaneously co-create problems. Living in the state of "doing it right" guarantees suffering, because it is dual.

(3) Parallel Movement

Parallel Movement differs radically from Horizontal Movement and Upward Movement, because it recognizes the possibility of illusion.

Behavior

When we are in Parallel Movement, we classify our experiences differently. Instead of judging them as right or wrong (as in Upward Movement), or asking ourselves, "what is the best strategy?" (as in Horizontal Movement), we define our experiences as either real or illusion. Just because we perceive something with our senses doesn't guarantee its reality. At best, we can say that the phenomenon may be real to our senses.

In Parallel Movement, what criteria do we use to determine if something is real? We use our vision of Heaven on Earth. If an event is something that we would call heavenly, then we call it real. If it doesn't conform to our view of heaven, then we call it an hallucination. Because the universe rearranges itself to accommodate our picture of reality (as opposed to illusion), we manifest portions of Heaven on Earth through our selections.

Free Will

Parallel Movement is the first level at which we exercise Free Will. We are labeling experiences as real or unreal based on our spiritual vision, not our animal instincts.

Self-Help

Our goal is to separate illusion from reality. Many fifth-dimensional technologies work to this end.

Defining Reality

In Parallel Movement, we define reality, in part, by labeling negative experiences "illusions." When viewed from other modalities, however, this practice can look like denial. Ironically, conscious labeling is actually an affirmation exercise. Here, we use the universal principle that says, "Whatever you are fascinated with, you get more of." We focus on the real, and we accent it. We acknowledge illusions as such and either ignore them or deal with them quickly. This practice is another means of manifesting our divine vision.

In all forms of Movement, we know that suppressing our emotions is harmful. In Parallel Movement, however, we extend this understanding to include our thoughts. Suppressing our thoughts - even negative thoughts - is viewed as harmful. The universe does not rearrange itself to accommodate only our thoughts. (Our emotional, physical, and spiritual bodies project pictures, too.) If we try to suppress our thoughts, we imply that they are dangerous and, therefore, real. Instead, negative thoughts are illusions. They pass through us easily.

When in Parallel Movement, we define the struggles associated with Horizontal Movement and Upward Movement as hallucinations.

(4) Downward Movement

The term "Downward Movement" may give the impression of lowering one's awareness. In this model, however, it describes the grounding of spiritual awareness into the body.

To picture the relationship between our intent and our stuff, make an inverted "T" with your hands. (An upside-down version of the "T" used in Upward Movement.) The hand that is pointing downward represents the movement of our consciousness; the horizontal hand represents our stuff. In Downward Movement, we allow our stuff. It does not trap or cover us.

Behavior

When we explore Downward Movement, we realize that being right does not serve our mission. Doing good does not necessarily serve. To be "New Age Correct" doesn't motivate us to act. Allowance and awareness are our friends. We are direct and deliberate.

In Downward Movement, do we play out our role in the planetary drama? Yes and No. Yes, because we are here: we engage with it. No, because we act on information from our spirit (instead of planetary directives). We are not attached. The Watcher is at the forefront of our consciousness. There is nowhere to go and nothing to do (except to take the next step that spirit directs us to take).

Free Will

In Downward Movement, we observe planetary imperatives. They push us in different directions. Love, however, directs our actions. We move smoothly. We use Free Will to love or not to love. For example, say someone insults you. Instead of automatically defending yourself, you can see the situation rather objectively. You need not hide your feelings; instead, you express your wisdom. (Wisdom is a divine, living art. Wisdom masterfully blends divine and planetary consciousnesses. Its expression is an illuminating form of love.)

The idea of using Free Will to love or not to love is paradoxical. If we choose not to love, we instantly leave Downward Movement. (Not to love means we are acting unconsciously and, therefore, are incapable of exercising Free Will.) If, however, we have anchored our consciousness in Downward Movement, we can watch ourselves - detached - moving in Upward, Parallel, or Horizontal Movement. That is the paradox: At one level, we leave Downward Movement; yet, at another level, we don't leave. We note the momentary shift. If we begin struggling to get back into Downward Movement, we are, in effect, practicing Upward Movement.

A question: If our true identity is spirit, and spirit always follows the dictates of God, can Free Will (and free will) be anything other than illusion?

Self-Help

We don't struggle to move through our stuff, nor label it real or unreal. Instead, we are open and investigate the problem. Sometimes, we use technologies. We use them because spirit directs, not because we want to blast through the negativity.

In Downward Movement, suffering still exists. As long as we are in human bodies, we (our mortal consciousness) must suffer. Our relationship to pain and imperfection, though, is different. We aren't trying to push ourselves through it. Instead, pain is below us. As immortal consciousnesses, we are above it. Pushing is unnecessary.

Defining Reality

In Downward Movement, everything is (relatively) real, even hallucinations. As immortal consciousnesses, we impartially observe, "Oh, that is real for their mental, emotional, physical, or spiritual bodies." The line that separates the Movements grows very thin.

Trusting in the divine nature of the universe, we embrace our experiences. We interact to see what happens. The Great Mystery deepens. Life and the Divine Plan unfold in ways we don't expect. We accept that, and we are willing participants. Sometimes we play the Fool, the Normal, the Bad Guy, the Hero, the Wrong One. We do not judge ourselves. As servants of The Force of Evolution, we just do it.

(5) Transcendent Movement

Transcendent Movement is no movement at all and is omnipresence. The more that we say about this class, the less accurately we can describe it. Transcendent Movement is a paradoxical way of life.

Behavior

We give the Planetary Consciousness 100% free reign. We give the Divine Consciousness 100% free reign. The two become one ($1+1=1$). There is nowhere to go and nothing to do.

Free Will

"Free Will is like a free lunch."

Self-Help

Not applicable.

Defining Reality

Truth is not words. Truth is something that we can experience as a living Force.

We are here.

Conclusion

Each of these Movements offers us unique ways to explore our dreams and visions and to manifest beautiful (or not so beautiful) forms. The awe-inspiring cathedrals, for example, are by-products of exploring Upward Movement.

No matter what Movement you explore, remember that you are in the hands of your spirit, as is everyone. Despite any perceived shortcomings, the Creator of the Universe and the universe itself, love us unconditionally.

Varieties of Ascension

Three popular Ascension stories are circulating today - Personal, Group, and Planetary. How we relate to the Ascension can reveal many of our unspoken desires, beliefs, and fears.

Personal Ascension

A Personal Ascension is an event in which an individual shifts from a dense physical body to an immortal Light body. (Materialistic versions do not include transforming into a Light body; rather, they envision having an eternally healthy physical body.) Here are two examples of Personal Ascensions.

The most publicized Personal Ascension is that of Jesus of Nazareth. According to the Christian Scriptures, after He died, his body disappeared from the tomb. He descended into Hell - the darkest realm of the fourth dimension - for two days. He then returned to Earth in His luminous Light body. After visiting His disciples, He ascended into Heaven.

The Hindus do not reserve Personal Ascension only for their deities. They know that many perfected yogis have ascended. When this happens, the immortal life force leaves the body, and the physical body either disappears or crumbles to ashes.

Today, Personal Ascension is a very popular goal. For many, Personal Ascension is an attractive way to escape suffering. Most prefer this alternative to dying. If escape from suffering is our motive for ascending, then our work may lack force, conviction, and clarity. At some level, though, it will serve.

We can see three motives for Personal Ascension. These motives are dimensional perspectives. The third-dimensional motive is to escape the anguish of Earth hell. The fourth-dimensional motive is to leap from the wheel of karma. Finally, the fifth-dimensional motive is to serve The-All-That-Is in a higher way.

Group Ascensions

Many religious and philosophical groups have Ascension stories. To ascend, one must abide by certain rules: "If you belong to our group and do what [we say] is right, then you will ascend with the rest of us." In this context, Group Ascensions are conditional.

There are also stories about Cultural (Group) Ascensions where entire civilizations ascend. As Group Ascensions are conditional, however, the probability that an entire civilization could ascend is unlikely. All historic civilizations have members whose vibrational frequency would disqualify them from ascending. This leads to the conclusion that Cultural Group Ascensions (and Religious Group Ascensions), are illusions.

On the plus side, those involved with these movements can find comfort and support within the group. Many others share one's vision of salvation.

Planetary Ascensions

Planetary Ascensions come in two flavors - Conditional and Unconditional. In Conditional Planetary Ascensions, anyone who meets certain criteria enters the Kingdom. If they fail, they do not enter.

Conditional Ascensions are planet-wide Group Ascensions, composed of consciously advanced members from various groups. No single group has an exclusive on the Event. It is improbable that all the members of any one group ascend.

Many psychological forces are at play for those pursuing Conditional Ascension. These forces can manifest as "Get yourself together, quick!" or "You've got to be in the right place so the E.T.'s can beam you up!" Some groups preach, "Fight the Evil!" or "Go out and save everyone!" This approach is dualistic by nature.

Conversely, in an Unconditional Ascension, the Planetary Consciousness invites all of its inhabitants to enter the Garden. Our information states that the Ascension of Planet Earth will be the first Unconditional Ascension in the history of the Universe.

The psychology of the Unconditional Ascension says, "We are all in the hands of our spirit. Earth's 'Third- and Fourth-Dimensional Reality' phase is ending. Everyone can now come home." The Unconditional Ascension represents a planetary expression of unconditional love. Our motive for participating is, "It's my job, and I love my work [most of the time]."

Embodying The Unconditional Ascension

We are here to live miraculous lives. We do this to serve the Force of Evolution. Like a dress rehearsal for living in the New Civilization, we act according to the principles of ascended Earth.

In this process, we see everyone as saved. This requires that we surrender judgment and forgive ourselves. As we do this, we embody aspects of our divine self. Our other-dimensional Light expands into the third dimension.

To embody something means that a particular trait, energy, or perspective becomes integrated into our ground crew. Whether or not the Ascension happens, by embodying these traits, we invite divine love to merge with the ground crew. This, in itself, can motivate any spiritual undertaking.

Elements of The Ascension

We may embody oneness, eternity, divine direction, allowance, divine identity, faith, immortality, divine support, presence, and integrity, to name a few. Let's take a moment to define these qualities.

Oneness: Differences never separate us, because they are secondary.

Eternity: "There is nowhere to go and nothing to do [except the next step, as directed by spirit]." Ascended Earth is timeless. We never have the need to rush or push.

Divine Direction: Because we respond spontaneously to the direction of spirit, we act in harmony with the divine will.

Allowance: Allowance is natural respect for other beings and their expressions.

Divine Identity: We are masters, angels, points of conscious Light, or other cosmic beings, co-creating a miraculous civilization.

Faith: We cannot and need not know everything. Yet, we have faith that the universe is unfolding exactly as it should, in its cosmic sequence. This we know.

Immortality: As children of God, we are immortal. All forms change, and at the time of the Final Ascension, all must vanish into the Formless. Our spirit, however, which is beyond form, always is.

Divine Support: We know that wherever we go, in whatever dimension, the universe always supports our work.

Presence: We are aware in the moment, the Eternal Now. We remain current and alive in our thoughts, emotions, and physical sensations. Our perceptions are clear.

Integrity: Integrity ("The Internal Hound of Truth") means acting upon information that we know in our hearts to be true. There is no blame.

Results/Implications

The more we embody our Divinity, the more our ground crew mutates. Rigid internal structures start to collapse. They cannot remain stable in such expansive energetic atmospheres, because the "negative pressure" created by the newly embodied state causes them to explode.

We become living examples of the Unconditional Ascension, cutting pathways in the direction of this Event. Our ever increasing vibration moves us and the planet towards that reality. The Force of Evolution paves the road through us. It manifests circumstances, perceptions, and relationships that support that Event.

We are StarSeeds. Plant us (in the energetic soil of a planet soon to ascend), and watch us grow. We embody the Ascension and shine. Eventually, our ground crews, with the Earth's body, burst into Light, fulfilling our Mission. We are microcosms of the future Earth Star.

Liberation and the Unconditional Ascension

Unconditional Ascension means that everyone, despite how flawed we judge them to be, will have the option to ascend. Many will object to this, stemming from third- and fourth-dimensional beliefs.

If we put a price on salvation - have limits on love and forgiveness - then Unconditional Ascension will sound unfair. This response is logical. The Planetary Consciousness has structurally designed our vehicle (the mental, emotional, and physical bodies) to love conditionally.

Eventually, however, the entire universe - with everyone in it - will leap back into the Source. Earth's Unconditional Ascension heralds this Event. By understanding the principle of Unconditional Ascension, we realize that we need not save others or the world. This perspective is very freeing. Even saving ourselves is a fear-based activity. If our true identity is divine, who will condemn us?

Instead of the Ascension being "The Day of Judgement," we call it "The Day of Forgiveness." This embodies the loving nature of The Christ more accurately, as we are all Children of God.

STARBUILDERS

PO Box 220964

Hollywood

FL 33022-0964

USA

Fax1: (954) 927-7659

Fax2: (954) 925-7618 (24 hour)

starbldr@gate.net

<http://starbuilders.org/>